

CLASH AT CAPITAL WILL FOLLOW WAR

President and Congress Apparently Lining Up for Reconstruction Fight.

PARTY DIVISION PROMISED

Resolutions Providing for Readjustment of Nation to Normal Conditions Indicate Lively Conflict Is Coming.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 5.—(Special.)—The first legislative move having Administration earmarks to prepare the United States for peace was made yesterday when Senator Overman of North Carolina introduced a bill in the Senate creating a Federal commission on reconstruction composed of five members to be appointed by the President. The function of the committee will be to study problems expected to arise out of the war and to frame a programme of measures to readjust the Nation to normal conditions.

The measure promises to precipitate vigorous opposition on the Republican side of the chamber and to bring about a sharp division along partisan lines. The Republicans promptly interpreted the introduction of the bill as an Administration move intended as a counter-thrust at the resolution of Senator Weeks, Republican of Massachusetts, creating a Joint Congressional committee on reconstruction.

Weeks Resolution Indorsed.
Senator Weeks' resolution, identical with one introduced by Representative Madden, of Chicago, in the House, has been indorsed by the Republican conference and is expected to receive the support of the Republican Senators almost without exception.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, chairman of the committee appointed by the Republican conference to take charge of the Weeks resolution, declared tonight that under no circumstances would the Republicans acquiesce in any proposal for taking the reconstruction problem out of the hands of the legislature and not executive function. "The Overman bill would take the reconstruction problem out of Congress and turn them over to the administration," said Senator Watson. "These problems must be dealt with by the legislative branch of the government. Congress has surrendered many of its functions during the war, and it must reassert itself with a view to questions after the war. I believe that one of the things in this country most in need of reconstruction is Congress itself."

Lively Struggle Promised.
With the Republicans standing behind the Week's resolution to keep reconstruction problems in Congress and the Democrats backing the Overman bill, an interesting struggle is promised. Senator Watson said he would call the committee together tomorrow to study the Weeks resolution with a view to determining whether it would be necessary to amend it.

Regarding the functions of the proposed commission, the bill provides: "That it shall be the duty of the commission to examine into problems and conditions arising out of the war and that may arise out of the transition of the economic, industrial and social life of the Nation from a state of war to a state of peace, and with a view to meeting, as far as possible, such problems and conditions as are actually forced upon the Government, the commission shall report to Congress from time to time the results of such investigations, with recommendations for new and additional legislation."

INDUCTION NOW PERMITTED

Men Seeking Service Need Not Wait for Order Numbers.

That applications for induction into branches of the military service will be accepted though the applicants still lack their order numbers is the substance of a message received by Alma D. Katz, chairman of the Military Training Camps Association, from Colonel Carter, commanding the field artillery central officers' training school at Camp Zachary Taylor, Kentucky. Confirmation of this ruling has not been received by the state selective service bureau.

Text of the message received follows: "Provost Marshal-General will temporarily induct men in new draft without order numbers. Advise all accepted applicants within new draft to wire us immediately their serial numbers and designations and street addresses of their local boards. Have this information included on all future applications."

OPENING IS IMPRESSIVE

Flag-Raising, Taking Oath of Allegiance and Reading of President Wilson's Message Are Features of Day's Programme.

More than 300 students now attending Benson Polytechnic School for industrial training for military purposes were formally inducted into the students' army training corps last week in exercises that lasted all day Tuesday. At the same time more than 150,000 young men in all parts of the United States were being enlisted in the students' army which has extended to practically every college of importance in the country.

Importance of the undertaking was fully recognized by President Wilson, at whose suggestion the ceremonies were held and whose message read to the students and prospective students at the opening of the day's programme was inspiring and to the point. "By this act you have ceased to be individuals, but are bound together in fighting for the common cause," said the President.

A flag-raising, taking of the oath of allegiance by nearly 3000 young men, short talks and reading of the chief executive's message were features of the morning programme at the Benson School. A concert by the school band was another event.

In the afternoon the 338 Benson students paraded before thousands lining the downtown streets. This followed a battalion drill on the school grounds. The band, at the head of the parade, played lively military airs throughout the march, which extended from the school, across the railroad bridge and through the business section.

Prominent in the day's exercises was Major Robert Ross, commander of the Benson unit, who read the President's message and had charge of the programme and drill following.

"There will be no sale of Red Cross Christmas seals throughout the United States this year," said Mrs. Sadie Orr Dunbar, executive secretary of the Oregon Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis. The distribution of the seals and of tuberculosis literature has been taken over by the American Red Cross and will be conducted in connection with the rollcall or membership drive which the Red Cross will put on in December. With each $1 membership to the Red Cross 10 of the little Christmas stickers and literature concerning the cure and prevention of tuberculosis will be given.

The Oregon association and health specialists have returned from Spokane, where they attended the Northwest tuberculosis conference. A veteran's smoking advice

If you listen sharply you can generally learn something from an American soldier. For example, "That the Americans take off their hats to the French—but not to French cigars. There's nothing like a dependable smoke from the U. S. A."

So think how fortunate you are that the nearest cigar store will sell you the dependably fragrant Owl and White Owl Cigars. Always dependable because their dependability is guaranteed by a great store of ever-curing leaf. Always nearly $2,000,000 worth.
