

INSTRUCTIONS GIVEN FOR HOUSING SURVEY

Information Vital in Prosecution of War.

PEOPLE ASKED TO ASSIST

Mrs. E. M. Bothwell Appointed Outside Field Captain—Residents Who Can Help Invited.

Mrs. Eunice M. Bothwell, of Troutdale, has been appointed field captain to organize committees in outlying districts of Multnomah County to conduct the housing survey, similar to that which will take place in Portland this week, and already has taken steps to organize committees in Troutdale, Gresham, Fairview, Rosewood, Pleasant Valley, Borner, Pleasant Home, Linemans Station, Parkrose and Melrose. Residents of those sections desiring to assist in the undertaking are asked to communicate with Mrs. Bothwell.

Owing to the fact that meetings could not be held Friday evening for the instruction of captains and precinct workers, the committee has circulated copies of the instructions that have been given by speakers, and every effort has been made to familiarize the workers with the nature of information desired by the Government. Tomorrow and Tuesday have been designated as the two days on which the canvass will be made, although the task may not be accomplished until after the middle of the week.

Chairman C. C. Colt, who is in charge of the emergency survey, yesterday announced the following instructions to precinct workers, and they are published in full for the information of those who may not have received copies otherwise:

Information is Vital.

- 1. Information is vital to the Federal Government in the prosecution of the war, and is vital to the continued prosperity of this country.
2. The Government desires the canvass completed in two days.
3. Workers are requested to deliver their reports to captains that the latter can deliver the complete report for each precinct at liberty.

People Willing to Assist.

- 5. Work in pairs. Do not go alone unless you have an. Ask permission to do your writing inside the houses. One worker should write and the other observe.
6. Fill out your cards completely. Be sure to enter your precinct number, also the name of the street and the number of the house.
7. Be careful.

Questions Should Be Answered.

- 10. Wherever private homes are found where the positive statement is made that the rooms are available for housing, make note on the general housing report after the question is answered regarding private families, until the line near the bottom of the report which reads "total number in family" after which all succeeding questions should be answered.
11. If the apartment-house or other housing facilities from an elevator or garage, or either desirable "extra" utilities, please mention under "remarks."

IRISH WAR EXHIBIT COMING

RARE BATTLEFIELD RELICS TO BE SEEN SHORTLY.

Display Will Be in Charge of Countess of Kingston, Working for Disabled Soldiers.

For one week, beginning November 2, the shamrock fund war exhibit, including more than 100 official photographs and about an equal number of war relics, will be given space in the Meier & Frank store. The Countess of Kingston is in charge of this display of trophies from the battlefields of the western front and photographs of interesting scenes. The Countess of Kingston has taken a prominent part in war activities, especially in preparation for reconstruction aid. As vice-president of the Dublin Branch of the Soldiers and Sailors Help Society, Lady Kingston consented to make the American tour to raise funds for teaching disabled Irish soldiers useful trades. There are more than 4,000 soldiers disabled in the war registered with the bureau of the society in Dublin now, and the number is constantly increasing. Books and souvenirs are sold as a means of raising funds, and donations are accepted.

AMAZING SIDELIGHTS SHOWN OF HUN PLANS TO CONQUER WORLD

Bishop Homer C. Stuntz Gives Specific Instances of Kaiser's Systematic Programme for Subjugation of Whole Earth.

Bishop Homer C. Stuntz, the author of the accompanying article entitled "The Menace of the Hun," recently spent some time in Portland. He lived eight years in India as a missionary and was several years in the Philippines. He attended a number of Methodist conferences in the Pacific Northwest before leaving for India on a special mission for the Methodist Church.

ONLY a small portion of the American public are fully aware of the dangerous menace of the Hun. During the last 40 years the plans for world domination have been deliberately laid and coldly perfected. When the present Emperor came to his throne he quarreled with Bismarck because the iron chancellor refused to fall in with his plans for making Germany mistress of the world. Bismarck had high plans for the Germanic people, but he had too much sound common sense to suppose that the rest of the world would tolerate the overlordship of Germany in all their affairs.

I was editing a paper called the Indian Witness, published in the City of Calcutta, when the present German Emperor succeeded his father. When I read his famous "Ich und Gott" speech I was cured of one of our ablest missionary writers to prepare an editorial which would adequately interpret the blasphemous utterance. This editorial ended with substantially these words: "If the man who uttered these words lives to the usual age of the Hohenzollerns, and if his plans for world domination are supported by as thorough a military policy as the Kaiser's, then will the second of the Houses of Hohenzollern prove the most dangerous man ever born of woman."

It is 20 years since that was written, but I am sure that the verdict of the world agrees with the opinion of the good man who wrote these strong words.

Stages of Conquest Planned.

Two important conferences were called by Emperor William very soon after his accession to the throne. In the first of these he consulted with the financiers, the diplomats, and other leaders of Germany regarding a comprehensive plan of putting his programme of world control into effective operation. These proposals were accompanied with maps, and the different stages of conquest were all dated. The first stage was to end at the close of 1914, and was to include the subjugation of England, France, nearly all the Balkan States and Turkey, as well as the smaller fringe states of Belgium, Holland and the three Scandinavian nations. Berlin was to become a county seat, London the same, and all this stretch in Middle Europe was to be controlled from Berlin.

The second stage was dated to close by the end of 1922 (or earlier). This was to be Brazil, Paraguay, Uruguay, Argentina, Chile, the most fertile and wealthy portion of the South American continent—brought under the German flag.

The third map covered Canada, the United States and Mexico, and this was to be brought under German "influence" by the end of 1932.

Colonial Plans Made.

Almost immediately he formed the Hamburg and Silesia, and began making extensive colonial plans. Each one of these plans was shaped on the view that the conqueror should throw of some portion of the world which he thought would give him a key position, or put him in possession of coal, iron, rubber or other raw materials in which Germany is deficient. One of the first large enterprises of this kind was set on foot in Brazil. Several million acres of the most fertile soil, with fine ocean and river navigation were secured from the Brazilian government for 30 cents an acre for land as rich as Iowa or Oregon, and in a climate as fine as Southern California.

Soon after this a bill was put through the Reichstag abolishing such colonialists as refused their allegiance to the Kaiser, and many became citizens of any foreign country, from the oath thus taken, and held them still as citizens of the Fatherland! This German colony in Brazil now numbers over 600,000 persons, the men of the families being German reservists, and when the great war broke out four years ago it was found that they had been supplied with uniforms, arms and ammunition, so that they would be ready for "Der Tag." It was expected of them that they would deliver Brazil from within when the German navy knocked on the Brazilian door from without. But the German navy has been kept from giving that signal by that other navy which has kept the open sea free from the ships of the world, the navy of Great Britain.

Kiao Brutally Taken.

Similar colonies were planted in Chile at about the same time. A few years later Kiao Chow was taken, the most brutal and unwarranted act of international brigandage that has been witnessed during the last quarter of a century. Its vast deposits of copper, iron and iron became the temporary possession of this grasping Emperor, who aspired not only to own the world but to trample it beneath his heel.

I will tell you something which will interest you in about 15 years. I am not afraid to tell you, because I doubt if you will believe me, and if you do not believe me enough to repeat what I say, no one would believe you. But in about 15 years my country will begin its Great War. We shall not be ready to meet them, whom we attack will not be ready. We shall take France within our control within three months. We will then put you in your place as far as the Monroe doctrine is concerned, and then we will take so much of South America as we need. It is not our purpose to conquer your country, but we shall have your indemnities upon New York, Washington, Philadelphia and Boston, and take you there before proceeding to the further conquest of your country. I hope you will remember this in about 15 years, for I am sure it will interest you.

Year 1914 Fixed. This burst of confidence may have followed too great indulgence in the cup that cheers and inebriates as well, but it is interesting to note two things: first, that the year 1914 was fixed, secondly, that 1893 and 15 added together make 1914; and all this becomes more interesting when we remember that the Kaiser at his Potsdam conference in the early '90s fixed upon the end of 1914 as the period when the first stage of his programme of world conquest should be achieved.

We now have documentary evidence to prove that on the fifth and sixth of June, 1914, at another Potsdam conference, it was determined to launch the war during the Summer of 1914. The assassination of the heir-apparent of Austria in the streets of Sarajevo did not take place until June 28, and was seized upon as a pretext for doing the Kaiser's bidding. The date was determined upon in the conference of June 5 and 6.

We have also been told by our Ambassador at Constantinople, Henry Morgenthau, that Baron Wangenheim was called from Constantinople, where he was serving as German Ambassador to a conference in the Royal Palace at Potsdam on July 6, 1914, and that at this conference the Emperor and his military and naval advisers determined upon the end of July or the beginning of August as the time when the war should be launched. Baron Wangenheim told Mr. Morgenthau with great glee of this conference and gave him in much detail the cold-blooded determination of Emperor William and his advisers to launch the war, using the Serbian situation as a pretext.

USE OLD BUILDINGS, SAYS MAYOR BAKER

Reconstruction Committee is Appointed.

MANY MAY BE HOUSED

Casual Survey of West Side Shows Number of Vacant Buildings That May Be Utilized.

Appointment of a reconstruction committee, to take charge of a survey of vacant dwellings and business blocks of Portland, has been decided upon by Mayor Baker as the latest step on the housing campaign, and he has placed W. B. Fletcher at the head of that work, with G. W. Zieseman, Building Inspector Plummer, W. C. North and Herbert Gordon as his assistants. The committee will maintain an office in room 258 Morgan building, and persons owning old buildings that can be made habitable with the outlay of a little money are requested to communicate with headquarters by telephoning Main 2615, or A 2015.

A casual survey of the West Side already has been made, and a number of large blocks determined upon as available for use as apartment or rooming-houses. Among these are the Commercial block at Second and Washington streets and the old Columbia building at First and Clay streets.

Old Buildings May Be Used.

The block bounded by Ash, Pine, First and Second streets also contains a number of buildings that the committee believes could be utilized to excellent advantage, while a number of large office buildings, not now in general use, may be converted into rooming-houses after owners are informed of the necessity for supplying quarters to the city's workers.

War Contracts Depend on Success.

"Much of this information on vacant dwellings will be secured through the emergency survey to be conducted this week," said Chairman Fletcher, of the reconstruction committee, yesterday. "But the demand is imperative and we cannot wait. Owners, therefore, are asked to notify us immediately as to the location of buildings that can be put in condition with little work and money. Portland must have more homes, and this is the quickest method of doing it. The Government is watching Portland; war contracts depend upon the success of the housing undertaking; these old buildings are doing the city no good in their present state; here is the opportunity for owners to make a sacrifice to their city, but to their Government, as well."

ONLY 2 LEFT ON PLATOON

HUN SHELL WIPES OUT ALL BUT COUPLE OF CANADIANS.

Sergeant-Major Christy, One of Badly Wounded Survivors, Will Reside in Oregon.

He used to be a riding master in the piping times of peace—before Hun high explosives went off at his feet and sent him back to Canada minus one eye and with his left side riddled by shell fragments. So Central Oregon, where they still ride the range, has peculiar appeal for him.

Principles Assailed.

We are not only in a war which is peculiarly our war because our institutions and our very National life is in jeopardy, but we are in a war in a deeper sense because the principles which America first gave to the world in any definite formulation are now being assailed, with the determination to bring them to a final overthrow.

Allies Must Take Berlin.

Again and again we are asked, when victory is at hand, why are we not concerned with when it ends, but how it will end. I am a "bitter-ender." The war are calling the English and the world who believe in putting this war through to such a finish as will make another of the same kind improbable if not impossible. I shall not be satisfied until the allied troops take Berlin, root out the Hohenzollern dynasty, and intern them upon some lone island where they are not to be seen, and never again be permitted to see the land which has plunged the world into this horrible bath of blood.

Year 1914 Fixed.

This burst of confidence may have followed too great indulgence in the cup that cheers and inebriates as well, but it is interesting to note two things: first, that the year 1914 was fixed, secondly, that 1893 and 15 added together make 1914; and all this becomes more interesting when we remember that the Kaiser at his Potsdam conference in the early '90s fixed upon the end of 1914 as the period when the first stage of his programme of world conquest should be achieved.

But it was Harney County that enmeshed him, as a horseman, and that invoked a determination to seek employment there until open air and "three squares" shall have "made a man of him again."

Sergeant Christy saw a great deal of the most vicious fighting of the war when the armies of the allies were outnumbered in men and guns, and when the British soldiers from the trenches roundly cursed their own artillery for opening fire on the German positions.

They had 30 guns to our one," he recalled, "and when ours shelled the Hun they sent us back such a bombardment as might well call for curses."

The military career of the young Canadian—he is only 22 years of age—ended with abruptness when an enemy shell landed within two yards of him, shattering his left side and stripping the uniform from his body. Of his platoon only Sergeant Christy and one other comrade survived.
