

NEWS OF WORLD AS SEEN BY CAMERA

SYSTEMATIC destruction of the country in Belgium occupied by the German army, which is being gradually driven back, is described in the newspapers of the enemy country. King Albert and Queen Elizabeth have been through all the tribulations of their land, the former at the head of his army and the Queen in activities for the welfare of the people. On a recent visit to the front they were shown a giant Gotha that had been shot down by Belgian gunners.

Clearing of the Arras-Cambria road opened the way into Cambria. It was accomplished by the guns of the Canadian heavy artillery, which destroyed the Hun defenses.

In the advance of General Mangin's army on the western front a German 38 gun was struck amidships by a shot from one of the guns of the advancing artillery. The shot broke the carriage in two, completely separating the gun from it.

Cologne recently felt the effect of the bombs dropped from the powerful planes of the British army. The magnitude of these great machines is better understood when it is related that they are towed to position when ready for flight by giant caterpillar tractors. Participation in German industrial centers and cities has created consternation wherever their presence has been felt. The morale of the German people has been undermined by these appearances and hindrance in munition plants and factories resulted.

Prompt aid by the American Red Cross, Army and Navy detachments relieved much suffering following the destructive explosions at the Gillespie munition plant at Morgan, N. J. In addition to the loss of plant and munitions, many homes were destroyed. It is extraordinary that where so much property was destroyed the casualty list was not larger, numbering only about 100 persons.

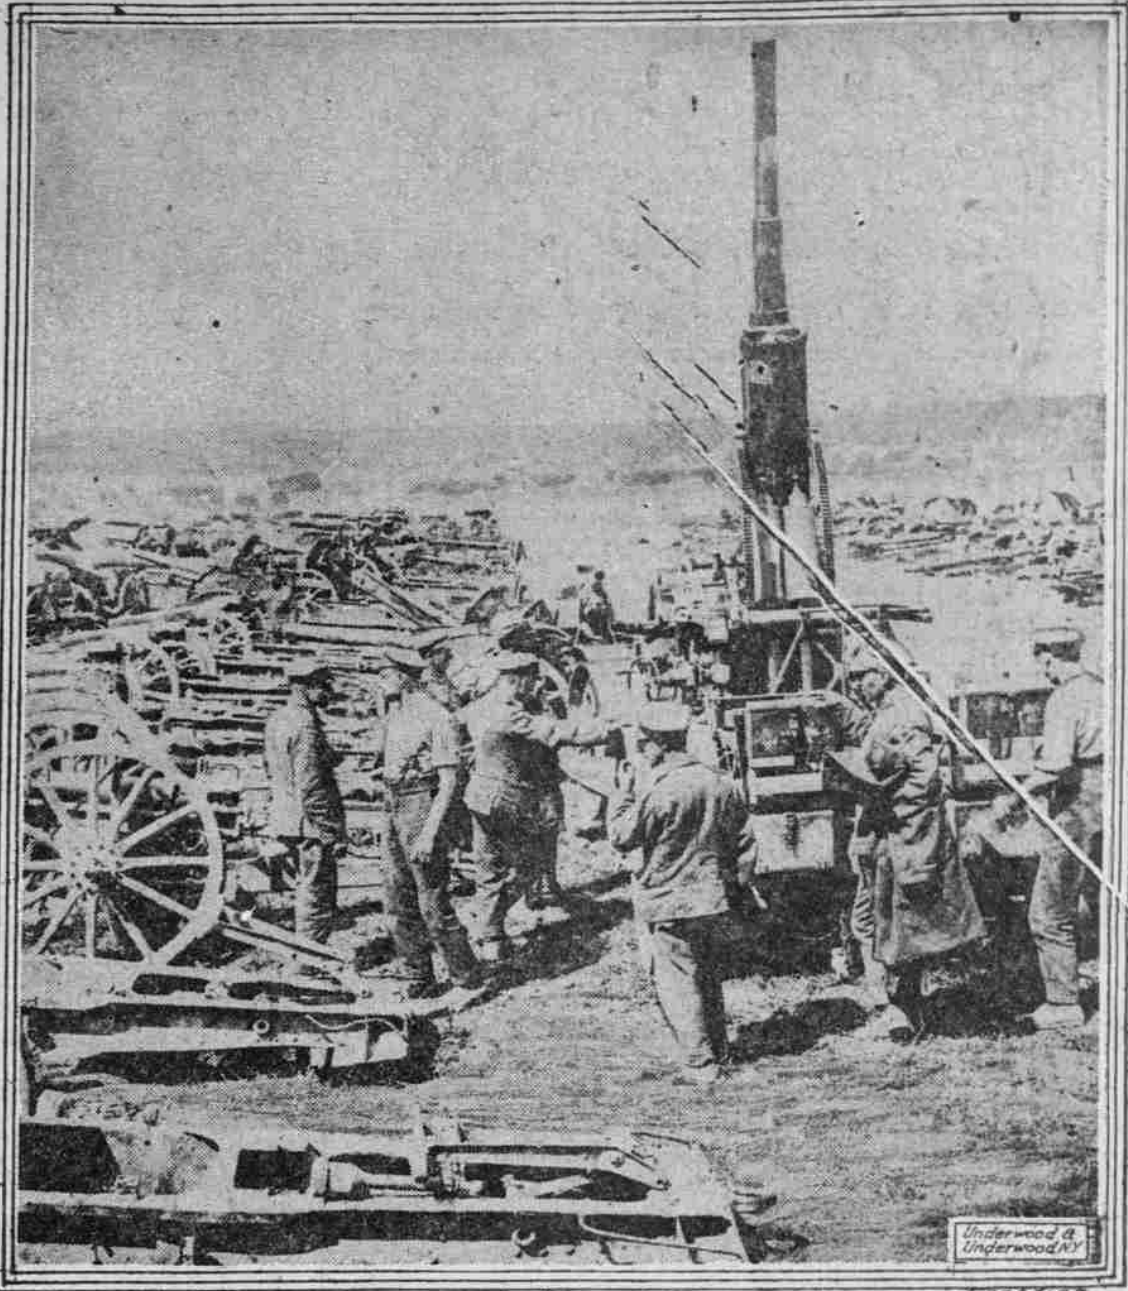

Ships of the Italian, British and American navies destroyed the Austrian naval base of Durazzo in Albania, sinking a great part of the enemy fleet. Italian and British cruisers, protected by allied torpedo-boats and American submarines, succeeded in making their way through the mine fields and avoiding attacks by submarines, go into the harbor.

The stalwart Canadian forces, incessantly hammering at the Hun ranks, have fully avenged the former defeats administered by the enemy during the earlier periods of the great conflict. The annihilation of the Princess Pats, which stirred the British nation into unremitting efforts to settle accounts with the enemy, as has surely been done, resulted in the intensity of the Canadians in battle to right the wrong.

It is almost impossible for the civilian who has never had an opportunity to behold the wreckage of war to realize the devastation wrought. Albert, recently taken by the British, was an important railroad center, but a half hour after the Hun troops had gone it was nothing but a mass of debris.

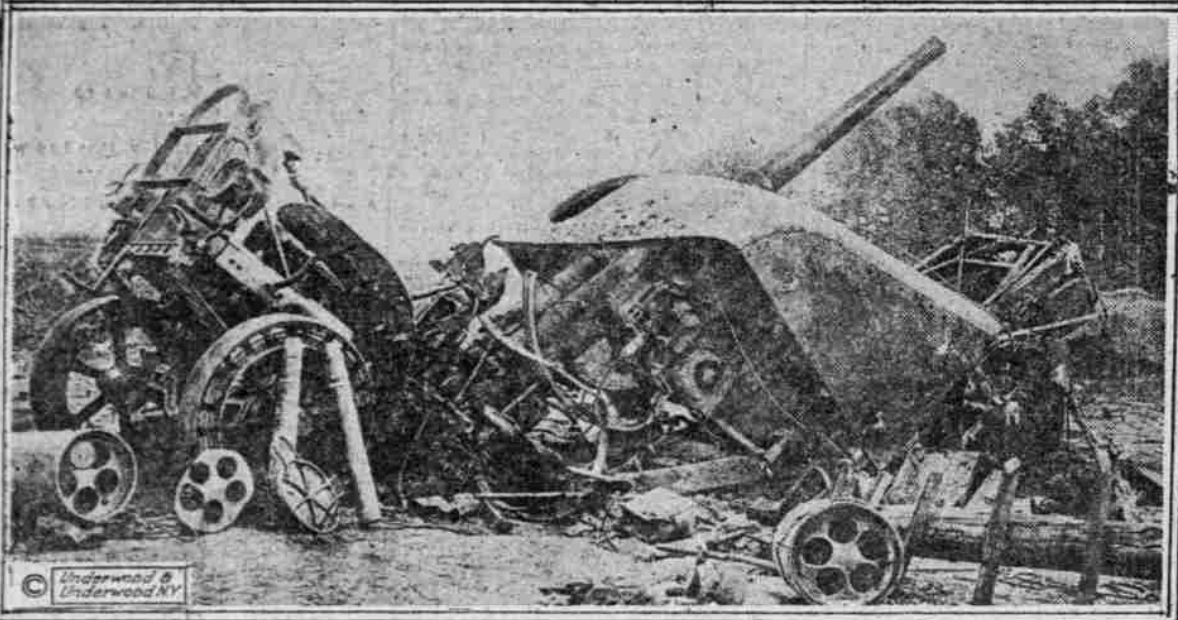

Belgian U.S.A. Official Belgian Royal Pair View Wreck Of German Gotha.

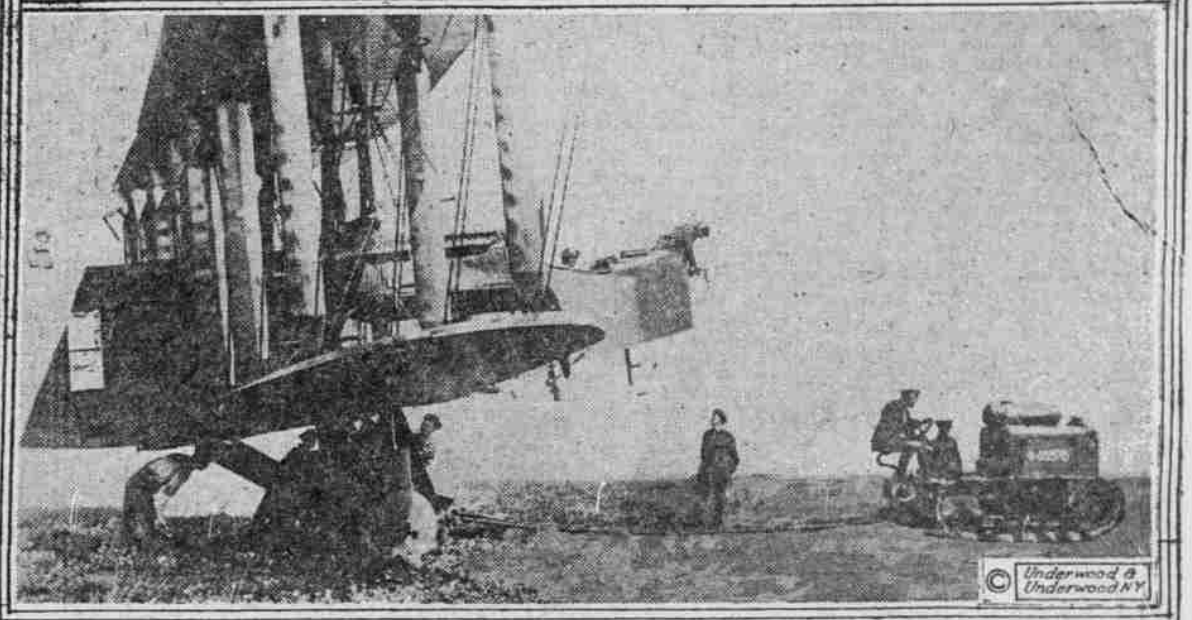

Types Of Guns Taken By Canadians

Canadian Official Photo

One Shot From French Battery Did This To A German Gun.

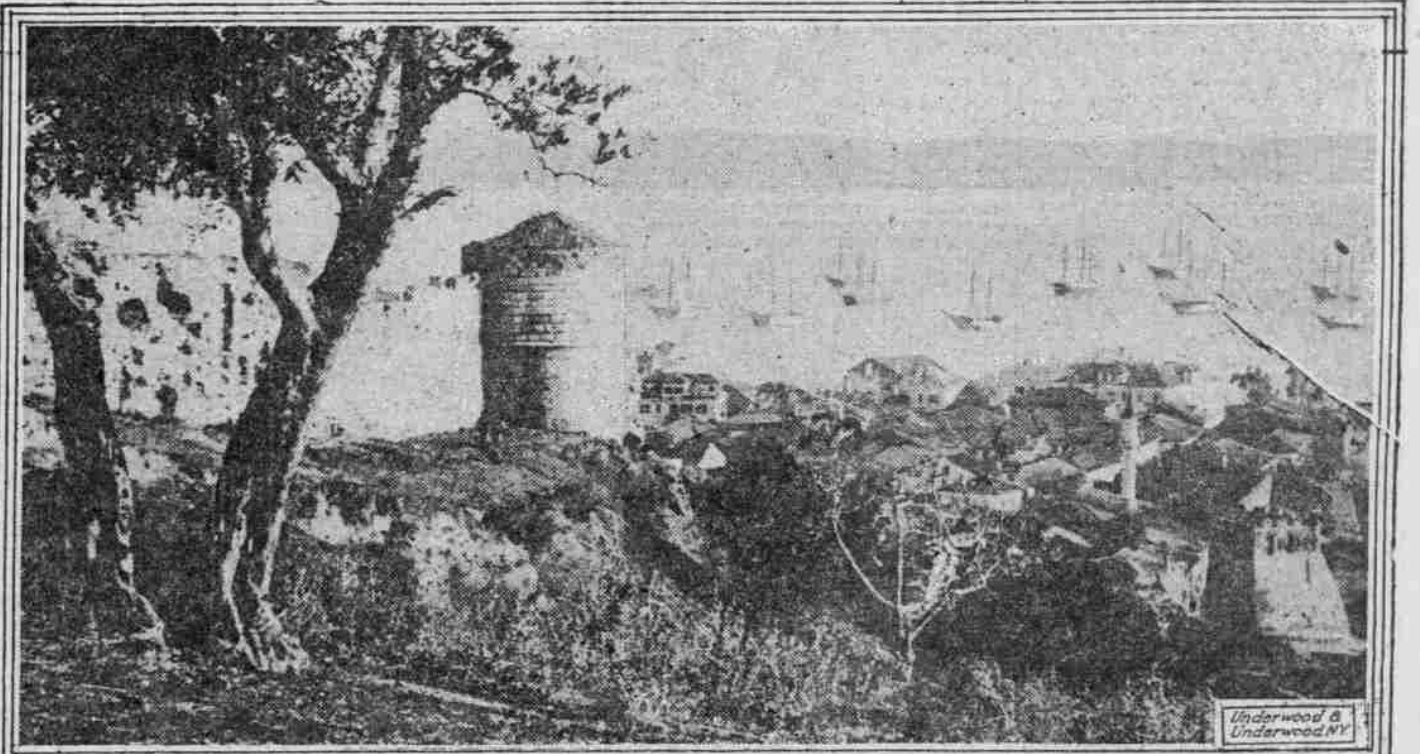

Huge British Bomber Towed Into Action By Tractor.

British Official Photo

Removing Wounded From Wreckage Of Gillespie Explosion.

Durazzo, Austrian Naval Base Destroyed By Allied Fleet.

Canadian Artillery Blasting Hun Through Arras.

Devastation In Wake Of retreating Huns From Albert.

British Official Photo