

WILSON CRITICISED, DEMOCRATS DEFENDED

Eastern Press Deeply Stirred by Appeal to Voters.

G. O. P. SUPPORT RECALLED

"Partisanship Gone Mad," No Comment; "President Had No Choice but to Speak," Says Another.

The action of President Wilson in appealing to the American electorate to return a Democratic Congress in the November election is the subject of spirited comment in the Eastern press. Sharp criticism and vigorous defense of the President's action is voiced in editorial columns from which excerpts are given below:

Chicago Tribune—Some weeks ago the President announced that "politics is adjourned," yet now at the moment when it may be expected to have the maximum of partisan advantage, Mr. Wilson reconvenes politics and, stepping down from the international rostrum in which he has been praised and loyally supported by his political opponents, he appeals to the country against them. The appeal is one of the most deplorable events in the history of the American Presidency, setting an example, unless it is promptly repudiated, as demoralizing for the future of our politics as it is unjustified by the facts of the present time.

Chicago Evening Post—The appeal of the President for an all-Democratic Congress is a denial to the people of the right to vote on what kind of a peace they want. That is the cardinal sin. The Senate we elect November 5 will not be a "war Senate," as the President's procedure so unfairly assumes. It will be the Senate that passes on terms of peace. Do we want a "soft peace," with the United States sitting at the council board as Germany's adviser, or do we want a "conclusive peace," based on "unconditional surrender"? In electing the next Congress we have the only chance presented by our system of government to answer this mighty question, and the President seeks to deny us that chance by raising the false issue of a retraction of the Administration's conduct of the war.

Chicago Journal (Democratic)—President Wilson's appeal to the American people to elect a Democratic Congress is not an exhibition of partisanship, it is a belated refusal to reply to outrageous partisanship on the other side. It takes two to adjourn politics just as it takes two to keep the peace, and when the G. O. P. leaders refused to let politics be adjourned, the President had no choice but to speak out. He could not well have spoken in more temperate and dignified language.

Chicago Daily News—In appealing to the voters of the country to put none but Democrats on guard in Washington, President Wilson has placed partisanship above personal fitness and above loyalty as the test by which to judge a candidate for Congress. In this "most critical period our country has ever faced," faithful support of war measures is not to count on the side of any Republican candidate for Congress, if the President has his way with the voters; whereas lukewarmness, or worse, shown toward the war by Democratic candidates is not to count against him. This is partisanship gone mad.

Boston Herald—So far as the prosecution of the war is concerned, on which the President has placed emphasis, or the maintenance of American rights after its close, there is not one scintilla of reason for the election of a Democrat or for a Democratic House or Senate.

Baltimore Sun—Politics is adjourned, or thought to be, so far as petty squabbling over personal or trivial issues is concerned. There is no repudiation of that doctrine in the President's statement. He is asking for support, as he says, not for the sake of a party, but for the sake of the nation itself.

Omaha World-Herald—While the responsible governments are moving forward in harmony to win peace and victory, it is Colonel Roosevelt, a leader rejected by the American people, who sends the telegrams to the Republican leaders of the Senate urging them to use their power in the Senate to discredit and defeat the President's peace terms. Supported and applauded abroad, but opposed and embarrassed by powerful political enemies at home, there was left to Woodrow Wilson but one recourse, and he has boldly embraced it.

Indianapolis Star—Thorough Americans, Democrats, as well as Republicans, will read with sorrow the President's appeal to his "fellow countrymen" to vote for Democrats regardless of the service and merits of Republican candidates for places in Congress. It is more than a political incident when the President of the United States steps down from his high office in an attempt to use the war as a partisan asset. Patriotism is not a party affair.

New York Sun—There has been much in Mr. Wilson's deliveries requiring subsequent explanation. His amazing implications concerning the effect of a Republican success on an overthrown government seem to us to belong unmistakably to this class of expression. A Republican victory in Congress elections, a defeat of the Klithins and the Deas and the overthrow of the narrow-witted and malicious oligarchy which has dominated Democratic policy in Congress so long, will not be a repudiation of the President in the eyes of Europe. Only he could imagine it, if he indeed believes it.

New York Times—The President's appeal is unusual. It has its obvious risks. To say that the election of a Democratic Congress would be a vote of confidence in the Administration connects the opposition theory that by electing a majority of Republican Senators and Representatives the country would vote want of confidence. The President's action is bold, for the event is uncertain. But his boldness is the measure of the importance he attaches to securing in the next Congress a majority control in sympathy with his policies and purposes. Should the House and Senate pass into Republican

PARTISAN CLASHES CONTINUE

Wilson's Appeal Basis for Discussion in House.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Issuing of pre-election statements was continued today by Democratic and Republican leaders and campaign committees. Representative Ferris, of Oklahoma, chairman of the Democratic National Congressional campaign committee, in a statement tonight, charged that Republican leaders, in answering the appeal of President Wilson to his fellow countrymen, resorted to "generalities, speaking of percentages, but carefully refraining from mentioning the actual votes on the great war bills."

During today's session of the House, Republican Minority Leader Gillett called attention to what he termed a violation of House rules by Representative Heflin, of Alabama, in securing the insertion of the President's appeal in the Congressional Record under the rule permitting him to extend his remarks.

The incident was pointed to in a statement tonight by Representative Ferris, of Ohio, chairman of the National Congressional campaign committee, as illustrating "the obstructive methods in legislation employed by certain elements from the South."

Representative Ferris declared that twice as many Republicans as Democrats in the House voted against the resolution declaring war on Germany, while three Republicans and three Democrats opposed it in the Senate. He said 160 Republicans and one Democrat in the House and 21 Republicans and no Democrats in the Senate opposed the shipping bill.

Addresses were made by Colonel Roosevelt and Senator Lodge during the Congressional campaign of 1898. Representative Ferris said, urging the country to support McKinley during the Spanish-American War.

John B. Easter, of local exemption board No. 10, of the St. Johns district, yesterday issued an appeal for school teachers to give a part of their time during the enforced influenza quarantine in assisting the board in heavy office work now before it. The teachers, he says, can be doing a patriotic service in this respect while they are waiting for the opening of the public schools of the city.

All teachers and others who wish to volunteer for this work are asked to communicate with the board at its headquarters in the old city hall building, St. Johns.

DAYLIGHT SAVING SUCCESS

FIRST PERIOD OF MEASURE ENDED 2 A. M. TODAY.

Only Noticeable Result Will Be Necessity of Turning Back All Timepieces.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—The American public tonight completed its first period of "daylight saving" satisfied with its results.

Although officially clocks were not to be turned back an hour until 2 o'clock tomorrow morning, for the average citizen the change of time was made tonight either by turning back the hands of time pieces or stopping them before going to bed.

At the Naval observatory all preparations had been made tonight for the change in time. The clocks at the observatory, by which the Nation measures time, were not to be turned back. Tomorrow at noon the observatory will merely send out 75th instead of 60th meridian time.

By order of Director-General McAdoo all trains en route at 2 o'clock tomorrow will proceed to the nearest station for a wait of one hour and then resume their schedule.

Beyond the physical turning back of clocks and watches the change scarcely will be noticed by the average American.

INDUSTRY FIGHTS FOR LIFE

Senator McNary Makes Extended Argument on Loganberry Tax.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, Oct. 26.—Senator McNary today made an extended argument before the Senate finance committee in support of the petition for Oregon loganberry growers for a reduction in the proposed internal revenue tax on loganberry juice.

The bill as passed by the House provides a tax of 20 per cent of the value, which, it is asserted and is agreed by the Food Administration, would ruin the industry.

The loganberry industry asks that the tax be placed at 3 cents per gallon, or double the present tax. At the hearing today Senator McNary was accompanied by H. S. Gile, of Salem.
