Linn County.

ALBANY, Or., Nov. 2 .- (Special)-The quietest campaign in Linn County in many, many years, perhaps in the country's history, is closing. War in-terest and the influenza scare had pre-voited any semblance of political ac-tivity, beyond the routine issuance of candidates' literature, until the Presi-dent's letter came out. This awoke the Republicans and they became active, with the result that the Democrats are also showing increased activity, trying to combat the effects of the letter. Politics took the stage so hate in the same, however, that the prophets ex-pect a light vote in this county. While the President's letter directed attention particularly to Congressional
