

REVISION BEING MADE

Portland Housing Association Completes Report.

EVILS ARE POINTED OUT

Provided Lots, Tenements and Improper Use of Buildings Are Also Criticized.

"Years of unregulated building have produced lot overcrowding, tenements with dark rooms, insufficient plumbing, fireproof construction, combination tables and tenements, batteries and tenements, cellar and basement tenements. All the housing evils are in the making here. Some are aggravated, others are being remedied, but the nuclei for greater evils, the breeding spots for a slum population with all it means in human wastage and danger to established institutions, both civic and national."

TWO RANGES CHANGE HANDS

Important Realty Deals Near Centralia Reported.

CENTRALIA, Wash., Nov. 16.—(Special)—The sale of John Arverson's 55-acre dairy ranch at the city limits of Centralia to Joseph Kuffer has been announced by a local realty firm. The ranch, located on the transfer of the farm, was valued at $100,000.

Lots Are Overcrowded.

Among other factors contributing to the situation now confronting the city are mentioned in the following: "In sections of South Portland acute overcrowding is the result of general house-moving several years ago. Disregarded houses were placed on lots reduced in size and air—sometimes only one or two feet wide."
