

HEADQUARTERS OPEN IN LIBERTY TEMPLE

Returning Oregon Soldiers Will Be Taken Care Of.

FOOD AND BEDS SUPPLIED

Captain John Conville, Representing War Department, Will Be in Charge of Work.

Liberty Temple will be open night and day until the last Oregon soldier is home and satisfactorily placed in his trade or profession, according to Captain John Conville, representing the War Department, who is working with the United States employment bureau in Portland.

Seven states represented. Major Fabian represents the seven states of the Western division of the War Department in the work of helping discharged soldiers back to civil life. It is believed that in the Liberty Temple more complete care can be taken of the returned soldier.

Captain Conville will have the entire right hand side of the Liberty Temple. The civilian department of the Red Cross, the War Camp Community Service and Welcome Home Committees will also have offices in the temple to cooperate in greeting the returned soldier. Clerical aid and several examiners from the United States Employment Service will also retain their supervision over the soldier branch, will be furnished Captain Conville.

Many soldiers have been applying for work who have had no funds on which to live while the employment bureau was finding work for them. Such men as these will be entertained by the Welcome Home Committee which has equipped part of the Atkinson School building with cots and shower baths. Food may be obtained through the civilian department of the Red Cross which will be located in the Liberty Temple for the very purpose of co-operating better with the employment service in the care of the unemployed soldier. Often times it is necessary for the soldier to wait while Captain Conville is adjusting matters preparatory to placing him. In such cases representatives of the War Camp Community Service will direct the man to the Soldiers' and Sailors' Club, where he may wait in comfort.

Employers Asked to Co-operate. "We are going to be open day and night until the very last soldier wanting work is home and satisfied," said Captain Conville yesterday. "That will mean continued co-operation on the part of Portland employers for some time. It may be a year and it might be more before all the sailors and soldiers who have returned to civil life, but no matter how long it is, we are going to be ready for them."

A trunk telephone line from the Federal employment offices into Liberty Temple will place at our disposal all the positions opened. In addition, we will list all places which the employers desire to be filled by soldiers only.

"No soldier who comes to Portland will be allowed to hungry or be entirely without funds and without an opportunity to work, if he reports to Liberty Temple."

TWO BRING DIVORCE ACTION

Mrs. Dennis O'Connell Says Her Stayed Away Too Long.

Dennis O'Connell is accused of extreme cruelty in a suit for divorce filed yesterday by Clara O'Connell, who charges her husband with staying away from their home for weeks and months at a time. She says she cannot stand his neglect no longer. They were married in Portland in 1909. She demands $100 in monthly alimony and a half interest in property valued at $25,000.

Ide Stapleton charges cruelty in her complaint against H. L. Stapleton. They were married at Spokane in 1916.

O'Connor on Way to Recovery.

J. O'Connor, well-known Portland boy and a member of the Knights of Columbus of La Grande, Or., who has been seriously ill with Spanish influenza and pneumonia in Eastern Oregon, is on the way to recovery. His mother and sister, who were at his bedside for weeks, have returned home.

CHILD'S TONGUE BECOMES COATED IF CONSTIPATED

If Cross, Bilious, Sick, Feverish, or Full of Cold, Take No Chances.

"California Syrup of Figs" Can't Harm Tender Stomach, Liver, Bowels.

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely. A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is they become tightly clogged with waste. Liver gets sluggish, stomach aches, then your little one becomes cross, half sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach ache or diarrhoea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs" and a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system and you have a well, playful child again.

Lower, Left to Right—Corporal Mears, Sergeant Marcum, Corporal Soden, Corporal Jensen, Sergeant Potter, Sergeant Knox, Sergeant Kern, Corporal Parker, Sergeant Regan. Two interesting overseas photos have been received by J. A. Mears, of Portland from his son, Corporal J. R. Mears, of Company E, 162d Infantry, otherwise the "old Third Oregon." They show the "non-coms" of the company, as stationed at Winnall Down Camp, Winchester, England, in November, 1918. Company E saw service in France for a six months' period, then being assigned to service of supplies duty in England, where it has since remained, caring for the wants of the tide of American troops that poured down to the Channel ports.

Evidently there was to have been a letter with the photos, but the censor had done a thorough job, and not a vestige of writing remained within. A torn fragment of comic supplement, a cryptic message at best, was all that accompanied the pictures. County were broken last year, according to the records of the County Clerk's office. The total amount paid in bounties on these two predatory animals during the year was $2481. It represents the bounty paid on more than 750 coyotes and quite a number of wildcats. Last year's record was nearly double that of 1917, when the total amount paid as scalp bounties was $1284.

MAJ. STROHM WINS HONOR PROMOTION TO LIEUTENANT-COLONEL IS RECOMMENDED.

Work Done in Hospital Service During Battle in Argonne Forest Highly Commended.

Major John G. Strohm, Medical Corps, who formerly maintained offices in the Medical building in Portland, has been recommended for promotion to Lieutenant-Colonel, according to word received here by F. H. Fleming, 435 East Couch street.

Major Strohm, as a First Lieutenant in the Medical Reserve Corps since 1914, was called to active duty on April 18, 1917. He organized a Field Hospital unit in Portland and took it to Camp Lewis. He was promoted to Captain and became assistant to the Division Surgeon, September 18, 1917, and was made a Major December 20, 1917.

He became attached to the 51st Division and since October 29, 1918, has acted as division surgeon with that unit. During the participation of the 91st in the Argonne offensive, Major Strohm was in command of the field hospitals of the entire division, caring for more than 2000 wounded men. It is the excellent manner in which he did his work during this drive that caused the recommendation for further promotion.

During the advance from the Lys River to the Scheidt, Major Strohm personally supervised evacuation of sick and wounded not only of the 91st Division, but also of French units attached thereto and some British soldiers and Belgian civilians. Ambulances were sent forward even to Aldenarde, on the Scheidt River, while that place was under heavy shell and machine gun fire. During these services Major Strohm was frequently exposed to fire of the enemy and the medical officers under him rendered valuable services by their personal exposure while caring for sick and wounded.

HOW TO FIGHT SPANISH INFLUENZA

Avoid crowds, coughs and cowers, but fear neither germs nor Germans! Keep the system in good order, take plenty of exercise in the fresh air and practise cleanliness. Remember a clean mouth, a clean skin, and clean bowels are a protecting armor against disease. To keep the liver and bowels regular and to carry away the poisons within, it is best to take a vegetable pill every other day, made up of May-apple, aloes, jalap, and sugar-coated, to be had at most drug stores, known as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. If there is a sudden onset of what appears like a hard cold, one should go to bed, wrap warm, take a hot mustard foot-bath and drink copiously of hot lemonade. If pain develops in head or back, ask the druggist for Anuric (anti-uric) tablets. These will flush the bladder and kidneys and carry off poisonous matter. To control the pains and aches take one Anuric tablet every two hours, with frequent drinks of lemonade. The pneumonia appears in a most treacherous way, when the influenza victim is apparently recovering and anxious to leave his bed. In recovering from a bad attack of influenza or pneumonia the system should be built up with a herbal tonic, such as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, made without alcohol from the roots and barks of American forest trees, or his "Ironic" (iron tonic) tablets, which can be obtained at most drug stores, or send 10c. to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., for trial package. "Ironic" is just as good as Dr. Pierce's other medicines.

THEY NEITHER MARRY Nor Give in Marriage

Certain Sadducees once came to Christ with a question concerning marital relations following the resurrection. The real point of their inquiry was in part hidden, or, in current vernacular, camouflaged. Their chief purpose was that of disputing the doctrine of the resurrection itself, the actuality of which the Sadducees as a sect strenuously denied.

They cited a case, presumably hypothetical, of a woman who had been married, and then six times remarried under the levirate law, and seven times widowed, and who eventually had died, childless. The question as submitted was: "Therefore in the resurrection whose wife shall be of the seven?"

Three of the evangelists make record of the incident; and the most extended version of our Lord's reply is given by Luke (20:34-38). From this we gather that while marriage and giving in marriage—that is to say the association of eligible parties in wedlock, and the authoritative solemnization of the union by a duly qualified official—are necessary and honorable undertakings among mortals, they to whom the Savior referred shall neither marry nor be given in marriage in the resurrection, but at best shall be made equal to the angels.

The inquisitorial Sadducees must have felt the force of the Master's rebuke in being told that they were in error "not knowing the scriptures nor the power of God," for they prided themselves on their learning and superior qualities of understanding. Nevertheless, the reproof was merited, for had they opened their hearts to the spirit of Scripture, had they considered with honest desire to comprehend the words of the Lord who spoke to them, whose utterances were and are Scripture of the highest and most sacred order, they would have been able to distinguish between ceremonies performed for time only under the regulations of human law, and ordinances administered by the authority of God for both time and eternity.

THEY NEITHER MARRY Nor Give in Marriage

True, as we have heretofore seen, the merciful economy of God makes possible the vicarious administration of baptism for the disembodied, that is for the dead prior to their resurrection; but the actual baptism is to be solemnized by and upon mortal beings, who, having been already baptized for themselves, may officiate for their dead kindred by complying with the revealed laws and regulations. So also the marital union of the worthy dead, who have lived in lawful and honorable wedlock as regulated by secular law, may be confirmed and superseded by the ordinance of Celestial Marriage, wherein the family relationship is perpetuated by sealing under the authority of the Holy Priesthood, to be of force and effect in and after the resurrection from the dead.

The family relationship was primarily designed to be perpetual; and only as mankind have forfeited or rejected the ministrations of the Holy Priesthood has mere temporal union become a necessary yet but partial substitute for the eternal order of marriage. Paul's comprehensive precept "Neither is the man without the woman, neither the woman without the man, in the Lord" (I Cor. 11:11) has an application beyond the marital state in mortality.

The full measure of progression in eternity is unattainable without the perpetuity of the family organization; and the family unit must be established on earth through the order of Celestial Marriage, which comprises marriage for time as well as for eternity, or, in the case of the dead by the confirmation and extension of earthly wedlock through the vicarious sealing of the parties in Celestial Marriage. Otherwise, that is if the marriage of any couple shall have been by secular authority only, without the authority of the Holy Priesthood, the parties shall find in the resurrection that neither are they married nor can they then be given in marriage.

Following the visitation of the Risen Christ to the Nephites on the Western Continent we read of the marriage institution associated with specific blessings, indicating the authorized administration of the higher and eternal order of matrimony: "And they were married, and given in marriage, and were blessed according to the multitude of the promises which the Lord had made unto them." (Book of Mormon, 4 Nephi 11).
