

OIL INDICATIONS AT RIVER'S MOUTH MANY

Lower Columbia District Has Great Latent Possibilities.

HIGH GRADE NEAR ILWACO

Ledge of Limestone on Farm in Pacific County, Washington, Saturated With Paraffin Petroleum.

ASTORIA, Or., May 31.—(Special).—The lower Columbia river district is noted far and wide for its many natural resources...

Most paying oil fields have been discovered by the finding of leaks, which in districts like California are surrounded by a residue of black asphalt...

The leak is a ledge of limestone that is fairly saturated with paraffin petroleum, the bulk of which is known to the world and worth in the open markets from four to five times as much per barrel as is the asphaltic petroleum of California...

The oil odor so noticeable at the Howkan farm is no more pronounced than that noticed by loggers and hunters in the forests both north and south of the river...

Only two real attempts have been made to tap the oil reservoirs of this district. Both met with disaster as the result of unforeseen obstacles...

During the past few years, six experts have made investigations into oil prospects here, and all but one of these reported the unquestionable presence of high grade petroleum...

THE PRESSURE

of the alimentary canal (which is twenty-five feet long from start to finish) is due entirely to constipation of the lower bowel and affects the different organs of the body, causing all kinds of "what is the matter with me?" symptoms, especially the prostate, which controls the genito-urinary tract. The cause removed without medicine. Full particulars sent sealed by Mark M. Kerr, P. O. Dept. 25, P. O. Box 535, Cincinnati, Ohio.
