Second Game Staged. After the Beaver prexy, the pair of managers and the umpires wrangled for 15 minutes, the tossers were trotted out for the second matinee. Herr's club was handicapped by the absence of Shortstop Ernie Johnson from the game with an injured ankle. Wally Smith played third base, with Eddie Mulligan being shifted to shortstop. a The fans gave Bill Speas a rousing welcome when he first came to bat. He made two hits out of five times up in the first game, and one out of three in the second. As Don Rader's injured eight times up, and his one-handed spear of Krug's liner in the second game was a distinctive feature. Cap-tain Paddy had to jump high in the air to grab the pellet.

Another double-header is billed for today, commencing at 1:30 P. M. Carroll Jones and Kenneth Penner are to oppose Gene Dale and Lefty Leverenz.

There was leads of excitement at the Vaughn street grounds, and the 1957 paid admissions made the most of it. Umpire Bill Guthrie came in for a lot of unfair criticism as a re-sult of an agreement betwirt Managers suit of an agreement betwixt Managers Walter McCredie and Herr to play but one game after the start of the first had been heid up 38 minutes because of rain. Just as Umpire Guthrie announced that there would be but one contest, old Sol blazed forth in full glory and Judge William W. McCredie. president of the Portland Baseball company, wrote a note to the official advising him to have the two engagements put on, as billed.

The umpire was powerless, for the two managers had agreed on but one game and Manager Herr would not consent to go through with the second. At the conclusion of the first slaughter Judge McCredie spoke to the crowd from the home plate, saying that it was the fault of Umpire Guthrie if no second battle was put on, and advising the crowd that unless Salt Lake played Portland would claim the second victory by default.
