

ELKS' CONVENTION TO ATTRACT BIG CROWD

All Oregon Lodges Turn Eyes Toward Klamath.

THREE DAYS' FUN PLANNED

Exalted Ruler of Portland Branch Names Committee to Arrange All Details.

Reports from virtually every Elks' lodge in Oregon received during the past week by Dr. William S. Kennedy, president of the Oregon State Elks association, indicate an unusually large attendance at the state Elks' convention, August 14, 15 and 16, at Klamath Falls.

Not alone will delegates from every lodge in the state be in attendance but several thousand Elks and their families are planning on making the trip to the convention city in the southern part of the state as their yearly vacation hunt.

From Bend, Or., "the baby lodge of the state"—instituted only two weeks ago—has come word that an effort will be made to send the largest attendance recorded to the convention from Bend, and if possible outfit every other lodge in Oregon outside of Portland.

Special Committee Named.

Exalted Ruler Julius J. Berg of Portland lodge has already appointed a special committee to handle the details in connection with sending a large contingent of Portland lodges to Klamath Falls next month. Although many of the Portland Elks are planning to make the journey in automobile, a special train has been chartered for the accommodation of those who desire to go by rail.

Captain William McGinn is chairman of the transportation committee and has announced that special rates under the certificate plan will be obtained, and that in addition to this, those going by train will be privileged to use the train as a hotel during the three days of the convention at Klamath Falls.

Entertainment Plans Making.

E. H. Hall, chairman of the Klamath Falls convention committee, has sent word to Dr. Kennedy that a huge park in Klamath Falls will be fitted up with tents for the accommodation of more than a thousand of the visitors. These tents will be served with hot and cold water and virtually every convenience of a large hotel. The White Pelican hotel is the main headquarters and all accommodations in this and the Hall hotel have been reserved.

The citizens of Klamath Falls, in an earnest endeavor to co-operate with the convention committee, have listed the rooms for the benefit of the visitors and, although Klamath Falls expects to be the host to a great number of people ever within its gates, all will be furnished with accommodations.

Side Trips Promised.

Side trips into the scenic wonder spots of the Klamath country, and a barbecue on the upper Klamath lake, at which time a vaudeville show staged by the lodges of Oregon will be a feature, are planned as features for the visitors. In Klamath Falls each night a carnival spirit will prevail with street dancing and the old-time street fun prevalent at all times.

The convention promises to be an interesting one, with well-known speakers from Oregon and Washington on the programme. The convention follows by one month the grand lodge convention in Atlantic City, and inasmuch as the state associations are sanctioned by the grand lodge, it is probable that the Oregon Elks association will have considerable work to decide upon in following recommendations expected to be made at the national convention.

The Klamath Falls convention marks the second annual meeting of the association, and President Kennedy, as well as other officials of the association, looks forward to three days of pleasure, personified and in addition an important session of interest to every man who wears the antlers in the state of Oregon.

CAPTAIN CLARK IS HOME

Son of Portland Couple Passes Several Months Overseas.

Captain W. D. Clarke, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Clarke, 532 East Eighteenth street north, has returned from France and is now visiting in Portland. He enlisted from Salem in the summer of 1917 and later spent two months at Vancouver training camp. He was assigned to the 32d regiment, United States engineers (highway), and was detailed for recruiting service at Seattle. In July, 1918, he joined his regiment at Camp Meade and soon sailed for France, whence he returned, reaching Boston, June 16.

His services in France, that of highway construction and repair, kept him near the front, but not under fire except upon a few occasions for short periods.

Prior to his enlistment Captain Clarke was for nearly two years engaged in the Oregon state highway service, and later served as a member of the engineering staff of the state public service commission. He will return to Salem in a few days and engage in the practice of his profession of civil engineering.

LABOR BUREAU TO REOPEN

EMPLOYERS TO MEET WORKERS AT U. S. OFFICE.

Action Pressed at Washington to Obtain Larger Allotment of Funds for Portland Service.

The United States employment service will reopen tomorrow following a three days' vacation, and will operate at the fullest efficiency possible under its present crippled condition.

Wilfred Smith, federal director for Oregon, announced yesterday that owing to the depleted office force employers of large labor forces will be allowed to station representatives in the employment service office at Third and Oak streets, and directly receive men for their companies. Large floor space is available. Mr. Smith said he believed that the service will be able to accommodate all who wish to take advantage of the offer. Several employers have already put in application for space.

Telegrams have been sent to the headquarters in Washington explaining Portland conditions and requesting a larger allotment of funds. New advice from Washington are expected some time Monday. The Oregon Chamber of Commerce, realizing the acute situation brought about here by the great reduction in funds, has telegraphed to the state representatives in congress, urging them to use all their influence toward securing a larger allotment for Oregon.

It has been decided to continue the women's division at the present offices in the Lewis building, Fourth and Oak streets. It is probable that the force will be reduced to two persons, Mrs. Scott, the department head, and an examiner. The men's division already has been reduced to a force of eight men, including the various department heads and the federal director.

CREW OF TUG ON STRIKE

WALLULA ONLY CRAFT AFFECTED BY MOONEY WALKOUT.

Longshoremen, Coal Handlers and Building Trades Workers Quit Work at Astoria.

ASTORIA, Or., July 5.—(Special.)—The Mooney protest strike, which started here on Thursday night, when the deckhands and firemen on the tug Wallula refused duty, spread today, although the members of several unions have refused to participate. All the longshoremen, coal handlers and men connected with the building trades, including carpenters, brick masons, painters, plasterers, plumbers and electrical workers are out.

The mills are running as usual. One peculiar thing is that while the local longshoremen have struck, those in the St. Helens and Portland districts are said to be working, and so far as known the tug Wallula is the only craft on the coast that is laid up on account of the Mooney strike.

No new developments have arisen in connection with the local strike of the cooks and waiters and with the labor troubles at the telephone office.

WALTER GLEASON RETURNS

Portland Attorney, War Service Completed, to Resume Practice.

Walter B. Gleason has received his discharge from the army and has returned home to Portland to resume his law practice. Mr. Gleason attended the first training camp at the Presidio and went overseas in January, 1918, as a casual officer, being attached on his arrival to the 6th French army and later with the 14th field artillery of the first American army.

He was commissioned as captain while in France and owing to injuries sustained by mustard gas, was ordered to the United States for six weeks. Mr. Gleason was about to return to France when the armistice was signed. Since then he has been assigned to camps in this country and recently was discharged at Louisville, Ky.

MILLMEN CONCERNED OVER TRAFFIC EAST

Transit Shipments of Lumber Cause Dissatisfaction.

CANADA FACTOR IN TRADE

Fear Felt That Consignments for Diversion May Result in Unsettling of Wage Scales.

Transit shipments of lumber, sent to diversion points in the east without a purchaser, are causing concern to mill men and shippers of the northwest and may react to bring a decline in the market and consequent unsettling of wage scales, according to officers of the West Coast Lumbermen's association. Much of the lumber going forward without definite consignee is coming from Canada, where the nine-hour day and a lower wage scale prevail, it is said.

The west coast association's eastern reinvestment service advises that transit shipments are causing trouble and dissatisfaction with coast products. In markets newly acquired by coast manufacturers. This is due to the fact that such shipments frequently contain lumber unsuitable for the purchasers' purposes, both as to the mixture of contents, and as to the quality and grade. In view of the continued policy of selecting orders, rather than the taking on of all business offered.

At present there are possibly not more than 1200 cars of lumber in transit unsold. However, the percentage of these cars arriving at diverting points without sale, and going to demurrage, is increasing.

Order Selection Continues.

The weekly trade barometer of the West Coast Lumbermen's association shows the relationship of orders to production and shipments still satisfactory. In view of the continued policy of selecting orders, rather than the taking on of all business offered.

The production for the week at 121 sawmills amounted to 76,815,321 feet. The new business amounted to 70,023,137 feet, and the total of all shipments for the week 78,444,434 feet.

Transcontinental rail shipments continued heavy and were approximately 38 per cent in excess of orders accepted from eastern territory.

The week witnessed the booking of a considerable volume of coastwise domestic cargo business, and it was also one of the heaviest weeks in recent months with regard to the acceptance of export orders.

Unshipped Balance Reported.

The unshipped balance of coastwise business as reflected in the barometer is now 30,214,479 feet, and the unshipped balance, export, is 46,593,300 feet.

The total of all unshipped business, with the exception of local sales, is very close to a half-billion feet. A feature of the week's trade conditions was the assurance given the United States railroad administration that every effort would be made to avoid a car shortage in the Oregon, Idaho and inland empire territory.

Mills and logging camps generally closed during the Fourth of July week end, and a large number of plants will remain closed or in only partial operation during July and August, in order that needed repairs may be made.

Doctor Says Heat and Glare of Sun Weaken and Injure the Eyes

Tells How to Strengthen the Eyes and Protect Them

Dr. Smith, a well known eye specialist, says that exposure to heat and glare of the sun often weakens the eyes and causes eyestrain and wrinkles due to squinting. He tells how to avoid this and strengthen the eyes. Many whose eyes were failing gratefully say that they have had their eyes restored by the simple process he advises. One man says: "I was almost blind; could not see without my glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night I would strain my eyes; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used to say: "The atmosphere seemed lazy with my eyes without glasses," but after fifteen days' use of Bon-Opto, she says: "My eyes are wonderfully benefited and get better and better." THREE HELPED IN PORTLAND FAMILY

Mrs. E. A. Henderson Says Her Husband, Daughter and Herself Are All Believers in Tanlac, Now.

"When I tell you that three of us up at our house have been helped by Tanlac, you will readily understand why we think so much of it," said Mrs. Edith A. Henderson of 1794 Minnesota avenue, Portland, Or., to a Tanlac representative recently.

"I had an attack of acute indigestion three years ago," continued Mrs. Henderson, "and after that it just looked like my stomach got in such bad condition that I had to be very careful what I would eat, because at times, no matter what I would eat, it would sour in my stomach, form gas and bloat me up and I would be in misery. Sometimes this gas would press so hard around my heart that it would palpitate and it would seem like I could hardly breathe. I felt that I couldn't stand a bit of noise. I was very restless at night, too, and suffered a lot with dizzy spells and headaches, and for years I had been troubled with a dull pain in my right side that would last for a week or ten days at a time."

"I had taken so much medicine of different kinds without getting any relief that I had about decided there wasn't anything that would help me, but when I read about people right here in Portland being helped by Tanlac, I decided to try it. Well, it did me so much good that my husband and 11-year-old daughter, who had suffered with stomach trouble for years, started taking it, too, and it certainly helped us all. The little girl is eating better and looking better now than she ever did in her life, and no matter what I eat now, I am never troubled with sour stomach or gas and that pain in my side doesn't bother me any more. I just seem to have gotten rid of all my troubles and have gained so in strength that I can do all my housework with ease; in fact, I am feeling better every day than I have in the past five years. We are all great believers in Tanlac now and wouldn't be without it in the house. I never lose a chance to say a good word for Tanlac."
