ALTHOUGH the annual meeting of the Oregon Federation of Women's clubs is a long way off, interest is beginning to be shown in plans for the big gathering of clubwomen to be held this October in Corvallis. In addition to the many reports, activities and addresses that will make the program attractive, there will be the always-important feature—election of officers. Mrs. Charles H. Castner will retire as president and her successor must be chosen with great care. Although no formal announcement has been made it is rumored that the Corvallis women and those of several other towns are planning to induct Mrs. Ida Callahan and ask her to be their candidate. Mrs. Callahan is widely known and is popular and efficient. Her distinguished college, club and Red Cross work stands out and is recognized throughout the state and northwest. Miss Mattie Beatty of Salem, now the state vice president, is another who will be asked to be a candidate. She knows federation work thoroughly and has a wide friendship. Whether or not these women will accept a candidacy is not known.

For other offices there are several federation women who are being considered. When September comes and the clubs meet again there will be subjects of weight to be considered. Mrs. Castner has done good work and her term of office has been a busy one. She has many additional honors and filled them all and yet was able to say she never neglected her home. Patriotic service was the principal work of the federation this term. Reconstruction or readjustment will be a feature of the next year.

On January 1 there were seven Y. W. C. A. hostess houses in France. Now there are 15 such houses and the one critic of the work, according to Margaret Cook of Troy, N. Y., director of this branch of the Y. W. C. A. overseas, is the inadequate of the houses to care for all American women with the American expeditionary forces.

The most pretentious in the hostess houses is at Chateau in the chateau which was formerly General Pershing's headquarters. The chateau was taken over by the Y. W. C. A. as the only suitable place available for a hostess house.

Forty women of the women's society of the White Temple were delightfully entertained at the home of Mrs. Frank Hilton Wednesday. Picnic luncheon was served on the lawn. The missionary society gave an interesting programme. Echoes from the Northern Baptist convention at Denver were given by Mrs. W. B. Hinson, Mrs. O. P. M. Jamison and Mrs. James Failing.

The address given by Dr. Aurelia H. Reinhardt of Mills college before the Credit Men's association on Wednesday night was an eloquent plea that business men co-operate with educators in working for the higher credits of life—honor, purity, generosity and humane co-operation for universal good, "a value far greater than the possession of mere material riches." Dr. Reinhardt spoke a dissertation at the army base luncheon for her home in California. Many friends, newly made by the force and grace of her personality, are regretting her departure.

A tough dance hall is the scene of many thrilling fights and excitement in high action of the well-rounded. Many of the scenes in "The Devil's Trail" were filmed in the very section of the Canadian northwest country where the scene of this picture is laid. This is the thrill of the love interest holds to the end. Besides Betty Compson and George Larkin, a number of other well known players are seen in important roles in the cast.

A professional shopper, Mrs. Mabel Terwilliger, takes a lot of summer dresses, hot weather hats and blouses to the cafeteria for a noon-hour sale once a week. Business girls of the Wall-street district can eat a lunch and buy a gown all in the same building and in the same noon hour.

For a long time the business women who work downtown there have been complaining about their shopping troubles. Their noon hour is too short to allow them to get up town to the stores. And their closing time in the afternoon is also the closing time of the shops. Saturday afternoon, which they have free, most of the uptown shopkeepers use as a holiday, too.

Mrs. Terwilliger began a shopping bureau at the cafeteria a few days ago. She or her assistant, Mrs. Bernice Schwelger, are at a desk on the fifth floor of the cafeteria every noon hour. They match silks, buy gowns and hats and select the things that are out of the difficult things like orchid silk and party hats. If their purchases are not satisfactory they take them back and return them to the store. The shopping service is free. It was through this personal shopping service that Mrs. Terwilliger got the idea of a big sale with costumes for street, office, vacation and evening wear.

"Women are spending more money and buying better clothes now than they ever did," Mrs. Terwilliger said. "Of course, I realize prices have gone up and they have to pay more. But they are dressing better. Some of my business women customers who never would pay more than $25 to $35 for a suit now find nothing of spending from $85 to $75 on them."

Along with the shopping convenience there is a manicurist at the cafeteria every noon hour. The manicurist after 5 o'clock for any who desire. And there are shampoo parlors planned for the near future. There are restrooms and dressing-rooms for girls who wish to stop in and rest between work and dinner or to change their clothes before going to a party at night.

Professors to be on hand within a few days. She will have her needle and thread ready to sew up any sudden rip or tear. And she will be waiting riding home at a specified price per hour.

The Ann-Fulton is much more than a cafeteria. It has a top floor devoted to talent and entertainment.

Peter A. Porter circle, Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, will give a "500" party Wednesday afternoon at Baker's Hotel, Kingsway and Albina avenue. The public is invited.

"Mothers and Daughters" dinner will be given tomorrow evening at the Soldiers and Sailors club by Portian and business girls under the auspices of the War Camp Community Service. Mrs. Norman Christie, girls' worker of the Community Service, is in charge of the dinner. She will be assisted by Mrs.

PRESIDENT OF IRISH REPUBLIC A MAN OF MANY ADVENTURES

Eamon de Valera, Human Hunter o' the Whip, Plays Hide and Seek With Shrewdest Man-Willers of British Secret Service.

MANY really big men and some little ones who would like to be thought big have in the past few months appeared in the rapidly changing phantasmagoria of important world events, but to none of them has there been attached so much mystery and to few so much interest as to a gentleman with the picturesque Spanish name of Eamon de Valera.

It is there ever was a human will-o'-the-wisp it is this self-named De Valera. Time and again he has been reported, one day in Switzerland, the next in Dublin and the third in New York. He seems to travel on the wings of the morning. For weeks he played hide and seek with the British secret service and in the end had decidedly the best of them.

So many fantastic stories have been told of his mysterious disappearances and appearances that there were some people in this country who had begun to wonder if it was after all a real life man. This was just before he made his magic entry into the United States recently and appeared in public one fine day in New York city.

Dublin De Valera is known as the "president of the Irish republic" and according to his announcement the principal object of his visit to this country is to induce the United States government, "through the force of public opinion," to officially recognize his "republic" as such.

Quite apart from the fact that he has undoubtedly thousands of friends and sympathizers in this country, a particular interest in the United States is attached to De Valera's romantic career from the fact that he is an American, having been born in New York city 37 years ago.

His father was a Spanish-American and his mother before her marriage was a native of the United States and soon great admiration for his cleverness.

When he was queried about a tale as to his escape to America to the effect that he had been captured by British officers and stepped into a soapline, taken a short hop out to a waiting yacht, crossed the ocean and hopped into America on another soapline that was waiting around for the "presidential yacht," De Valera only laughed.

He was equally noncommittal when he was asked if it was true that he had worked his way to this country on a returning transport disguised as a stoker.

Change Is Great.

One thing is certain. As he stood in one of the suites of the famous Waldorf-Astoria hotel, New York, a suite in point of luxury and comfort and "presidential" apartments by many counts of gift, a heap more fancy cloaks, no end of French vases and the like quarters, De Valera was taking his fair share of the Irish republican's life. He declared that Ireland desired the closest possible commercial and political ties with the United States and that he came here to establish them and then to return to Ireland and take the lead in the American fight for independence.

Toppish to Wash. July 12.—(Special.)—At a cost of $30,000 the Methodists of Toppish are planning to build a new church, for which about $10,000 will be furnished from the Toppish fund. The building as planned will have a gymnasium, reading room, kitchen, dining room, facilities, committee room, ladies' rest room and a main auditorium, which will seat about 1000 persons, construction of which will begin shortly.

Key to Gate Obtained.

Later the gardener warbled a ballad in which he asked De Valera to obtain an impression of the key to the gate. This was done by the prisoner, the mould being composed of bread and water paste. But a hitch arose because the guards were all vigilant. Then, to divert the sentries at the rear of the pile, two handsome young women from Dublin, university graduates, arrayed themselves as shop girls and crossed the sea. The girls located in Lincolnshire near the prison and deliberately flirted with the soldiers until they had become well acquainted with them. On the night of February 3, De Valera, having been notified by a code letter that the moment had come, the girls enticed the guards from the rear of the prison, while others opened the gate with the false key. De Valera, emerging, rushed off to London in an automobile, while the police chased three other motor cars that were rambling around as decoys.
