

ALL-AMERICAN FIELD TRIALS FOR OREGON

Nation's Best Dogs Are Due to Arrive at Lebanon.

LARGE ENTRY LIST CERTAIN

Stellar Event of Sporting Canine History of Pacific Coast to Start September 15.

BY HARRY M. GRAYSON.

Elaborate plans are being formulated for the running of all-American field trials at Lebanon, Or., starting the week of September 15. The program will be under the auspices of the Oregon Field Trial club, of which Mike H. Butler is president. It will be the biggest event of its kind ever run on the Pacific coast and is attracting national attention among field trial men.

Montana Races Are First. Four stakes will be held at Glacier national park starting September 2. Quite a number of Pacific coast fanciers will go to Montana to attend the all-American trials and to escort the all-American party to Lebanon.

The purps of the all-American club, coupled with those from Oregon, Washington, California and British Columbia, will develop some keen competition.

Paul E. Whiteside, the Portland trainer, who has most of the Oregon dogs in his string, expects to make the trip to Montana. At present he is hard at work at his training camp near Harrisburg getting the dogs in shape. Among the best thoroughbreds in Whiteside's stable are several belonging to Aaron M. Frank and last year's winners of the Oregon trials, Troctor's Belle, owned by George W. Bates Jr.; Luckey Kid, owned by W. E. Bates Jr.; Carlon, and Lagley's Zed, owned by L. L. Langley.

Publicity Will Aid State.

Publicity gained in the columns of the American Field of Chicago and the coming of field trial enthusiasts from many different states will do much to advertise Oregon's natural resources and conditions. Included in the arrangements to entertain the visitors will be a trip up the Columbia river highway, with the possibility of some of the party continuing on to Mount Hood, and trips through the Willamette valley. At Lebanon they will hold moving pictures of various parts of Oregon. On the night of September 17 a sumptuous banquet will be given by the Oregon club and will show 13 a bench show will be held for dogs that took part in the field trial competition. The people of Lebanon are taking an active part and it is largely through the interest shown by them that it was possible to schedule an event of this kind in this small town. A large number of dogs competing. It will require land on both sides of a road over a course 25 miles in length. The international association of Field Trial clubs has mapped out a great campaign for the coming season. At the conclusion of the Oregon trials at Washington, D. C., will be put on its sketch at Mount Vernon, Wash., commencing September 22. The British Columbia Field Trial club will hold their annual classic, Ladner's Landing, B. C., commencing September 29, and the international championships are held for the first time immediately following. The windup of the season will occur at Yakima, Wash., with the Yakima Valley field trials on October 24. The all-American trials will most likely participate in all of these trials, giving everyone an all-American aspect.

CASTERS READY FOR FRAY

NORTHWEST EVENTS SET FOR AUGUST ROUSE INTEREST.

Multnomah Fly and Bait Experts Are Busy Preparing Against Foreign Invasion.

Fly and bait casters from all along the Pacific coast will gather in Portland to compete in the national and bait casting championships which will be held on August 9 and 10 at the Sellwood Park casting pool under the auspices of the Multnomah Anglers' club. Walter F. Backus, prominent Portland caster and secretary of the Multnomah Anglers' club, has been in Seattle the past week on business and is expected to return today or tomorrow. Although the trip was primarily for business, Backus, it is known, has been spending a good deal of his time looking over the casting situation in Seattle and Tacoma and getting a line on the men who will compete in the northwest championships from those cities. Backus will have a lot of interesting things to tell the local casters upon his return. Members of the Multnomah Anglers' club are practicing diligently during the remaining time left before the big event and Portland experts are expected to place high in this year's tournament. The winner of the all-round title will be sent east to participate in the national championships in Chicago this month.

A lot of the boys are wondering what Ray Winters has in mind for the money he wins at casting. Maybe Ray could answer that best personally.

The programme of the northwest championships follows: August 9—Half-ounce distance bait cast, half-ounce accuracy bait cast, half-ounce miss and out, dry fly accuracy and dry fly accuracy—unknown distance. August 10—Distance fly, 5% ounce and, quarter-ounce accuracy bait cast, fisherman's plug and distance bait cast, accuracy fly cast and fisherman's plug accuracy.

Brooklyn 3, St. Louis 2. ST. LOUIS, Aug. 2.—A wild throw by Clemens to catch Konechky, who had singled, stealing second in the seventh put the runner on third and Hornsby's fumble of Ward's grounder allowed Konechky to score the deciding run of Brooklyn's victory over St. Louis. INDIAN OUTFIELDER STILL HEADS NATIONALS.

George Sisler Boosts Average 10 Points in American League. Ty Cobb Close Second.

GIRL SWIMMERS HAVE FUTURE

Helen Martin, Pupil of Miss Grace Kadderly, Attracts Attention.

Miss Helen Martin, 16 years old, of Honolulu, in a recent swimming meet, lost only by a few inches in the 50-yard breast stroke event to Mrs. Terie Desch. Miss Martin's performance is the more remarkable by reason of the fact that in this race Mrs. Desch created a new Pacific coast record of 1 minute, 39.3-5 seconds for the distance. Ruth Crane is the 17-year-old mermaid. In the same meet she won both the 50 and 100-yard sprint events. She is an Alameda girl and her friends are predicting a brilliant future for her in swimming competition. Lillian Snowgrass, who a year ago was unable to swim a stroke, placed second in the diving events to Miss Gladys Boehmer, the Pacific association champion. She has competed only a few times. Under the circumstances her ability is considered quite remarkable. Local swimmers are interested in the performance of Miss Helen Martin, as she was a pupil of Miss Grace Kadderly, swimming instructor in the Portland city parks two years ago. While here she lived in the Peninsula district and swam in the Peninsula park tank.

SEAVEY AND TROEH GO TO BIG SHOOT

Northwesterners to Compete in Great American Handicap.

CHAMPIONS ARE ELIGIBLE 1919 High Guns of Oregon and Washington to Represent Their Respective States.

James W. Seavey, 1919 trapshooting champion of Oregon and Frank M. Troeh, Washington state titleholder, will leave for Chicago this week, where they will compete in the twentieth annual grand American handicap trapshooting championships, the scatter gun classic of the year in the United States. Champions of each state are eligible to compete for the championship at clay targets of the Seavey trophies with the best trapshooters in the country while Troeh holds more titles with a shotgun than any other trapshooter. Troeh won the world's double title at last year's grand American handicap but was edged out for the singles crown by W. H. Hester of Guthrie, Okla. Frank Troeh went east in 1916 and won the title by breaking 99 targets out of 100. He has been shooting in excellent form this year and besides repeating winning the championship of Washington at the tournament in Yakima recently has captured nearly every big event that he has entered up to date this season and has proved himself the most consistent high gun in the game. August 11-15 Are Dates. The year's grand American handicap which will again be staged by the South Shore Country club of Chicago, will extend from August 11 to 15 and embraces the most elaborate programme yet attempted. The national junior championship for youngsters will be one of the features of this year's shoot besides a number of other championship events such as the professional, doubles, army and women's, and others. Another event which is coming in for a good deal of attention is the East versus West team match. The western team will likely be captained by Frank Troeh. Nothing outside of a regular 50-target practice shoot is scheduled for the Portland Gun club this afternoon. Many of the members are out of the city and therefore nothing in the line of special shoots was billed for today. The referee's decision will be final at the grand American handicap tournament. This is in accordance with Rule 2, Section 3, in the revised trapshooting rules of the American Trapshooting association. The South Shore Country club has engaged trained referees for the shoot all of whom know the rules and are competent to interpret them correctly. The competition for final ownership of the Hercules All-round championship trophies, both of which are now held by Frank Troeh, will be held Saturday afternoon, August 9, on the grounds of the South Shore Country club, Chicago. The date, August 9, is the Saturday before the start of the grand American handicap. These trophies were first placed in competition at St. Louis on August 19, 1916. They were subject to challenge and were to run three years. The second open competition was held on the grounds of the South Shore Country club in Chicago, August 13, 1917, while the third and last open competition was held at the same place on August 3, of last year. Only previous winners of the trophy are eligible to compete for final ownership on August 9 next. Frank Troeh defended both trophies successfully at the Portland Gun club the past year. The South Shore Country club of Chicago over whose traps the grand American handicap will be shot, will hold a registered trapshooting tournament on Sunday, August 10, over the same traps that will be used in the grand American handicap. Commodore A. P. Bennett of the New York Athletic club is credited with the honor of being the first man to send in his entry blank to the grand American handicap. H. H. Hilton, in his new runabout, accompanied by his family and by Ray Neuberger, made a cruise to Ilwaco. The run was made in about 12 hours.
