

CARDINAL WILL SEE LAND OF RED MEN

Stories Told by Missionary
Fire Belgian Primate.

PORTLAND ON ITINERARY

Archbishop Christie Tells of Work of Prelate's Uncle Who Was Well-Known by Early Settlers.

As a child in Belgium, the boy who later became Cardinal Mercier, archbishop of Malines, primate of Belgium, and "one of the greatest heroes of the war," delighted in tales of life among the Indians of the great northwest country in America, told by his uncle, Monsigneur Croquet, one of the earliest Oregon missionaries.

When the charred logs in the fireplace gave forth their last feeble spark the youngster would be seen with eyes still large with wonder, listening to the soft voice of his uncle. When summoned to bed he often promised himself that when he was older he would visit the land of his dreams.

Oregon Is Land of Dreams.
The lifelong curiosity of Cardinal Mercier concerning the Oregon country, setting for the Indian stories of his uncle, is soon to be satisfied. The cardinal, whose heroism in risking his life and liberty while a prisoner of the Germans in Belgium by lifting his voice against the oppression of his flock has won the plaudits of the world, is coming to America. He should arrive in New York between September 15 and 20, according to the Rev. Peter Joseph Strickland, the cardinal's secretary, who has just reached this country and is making arrangements for the visit of the Belgian prelate.

"If it is physically possible for him to do so," the cardinal will go to Portland, Or., and other points in the northwest while in this country," said Dr. Strickland, who is vice-rector of the American college, University of Louvain, upon reaching New York. "His great interest in the northwest is the result of the Indian stories told him by his uncle Monsigneur Croquet, when the cardinal was a boy."

Uncle Once Indian Missionary.
The Monsigneur was a missionary in the northwest when that country was real wild and when the principal inhabitants were Indians. He had some thrilling experiences during the years he preached to the Indians and more than once he looked death in the face. When he became old the Monsigneur gave up active missionary work and returned to Belgium. He made his home with Cardinal Mercier's sisters until he died.

"It was his delight to tell stories of his exploits among the Indians and it was an equal delight to the youth who afterward became a historic figure in the world war to sit beside the old man and listen to him draw from his stock of experience stories that had many a thrill. The only thing that would arouse the old missionary to anger was to have some friend remark that the Indians in his district must have been wild and terrible. This he always held was untrue. His former charges, he was wont to say, were kindly people who lived a simple life."

Archbishop Testifies to Good Work.
Archbishop Alexander Christie said last night that Monsigneur Croquet was one of the best known and loved of the early Oregon missionaries. He labored among the Indians in this state for more than 20 years, coming here about 1860 and leaving about 1890 for his old home in Belgium. Many of the early settlers remembered the kindly old man whose life was almost entirely among the red men.

In coming to America at this time Cardinal Mercier has more of a motive than the satisfaction of a lifelong curiosity. He is coming to thank the American people for the part they took in the war, acting as a representative of the people of Belgium. He will visit New York, Washington, D. C., Philadelphia, Chicago and Baltimore. As many other cities as will be possible for him to visit will be arranged in his itinerary, but one which he surely will not miss, if it lies within the realm of possibility for him to see, is Portland, as the center of the country of which he heard so much when a boy.

BIG TIMBER DEAL CLOSED

365 MILLION FEET OF FIR SOLD
BY GOVERNMENT.

Oregon Lumber Company Will Develop Property and Roads Will Be Richly Endowed.

HOOD RIVER, Or., Aug. 9.—(Special.)
T. H. Sherrard, supervisor of national forests, was here yesterday en route to Portland from the upper west fork of Hood River, where he had been engaged in details of sale of 365,000,000 feet of timber in the national forest to the Oregon Lumber company.

The tract, the largest body of Douglas fir ever sold by the government, was awarded to John W. Palmer, who several years ago retired to a west side orchard here from the presidency of the Westport Lumber company, operating a mill on the lower Columbia. Mr. Palmer, now a resident of Portland, soon after the big deal, suffered poor health and has assigned his interest to the Oregon Lumber company, which intends to log the big tract and haul the timber to its Dees plant for cutting. The timber involved in the sale covers an area of 7349 acres.

The total sale price of the big tract of fir will reach more than $250,000. It will take about 20 years to cut the area. The sale of the timber has done more than anything else to stimulate construction of a highway connecting county roads with Lost Lake. Ten per cent of the funds from sale of the timber will go to the state for construction of roads or trails in the national forest in any part of the state. Twenty-five per cent will be apportioned between Wasco, Hood River and Clatsop counties within the borders of which the national forest containing the stumpage is located. The sale has made available funds for the construction of the Lost Lake road.

Wallace Employs Public Nurse.

The salary of the county nurse will be paid by the Red Cross chapter, while all of her transportation throughout the county and her expenses will be paid by the county commissioners. Miss Wray will receive a salary of $150 a month.

PIONEER, WHO LIVED 69 YEARS IN YONCALLA, IS DEAD.

Miss Irene Applegate was born in Cole county, Missouri, March 20, 1839. She crossed the plains with her parents, the late Charles and Malinda Applegate, in 1842. They resided in Polk county, Oregon, until the fall of 1850, when they moved to Yoncalla, where she had lived continuously for 69 years, never being more than ten miles away from the home place during that time.

Her death occurred Friday evening, July 26, aged 80 years. She is survived by two brothers, Thomas and George Applegate of Yoncalla, and Mrs. Fannie Johnson of Wallawa, Or.

Saint "Rene" as she was affectionately known, is the last but one of the Applegates who crossed the plains in 1842, the surviving member of the party being Lucien Applegate of Klamath Falls. Or. Funeral services were held Sunday at the old home, attending were John Letson of Scotts valley, a pioneer of 1852, 91 years of age, and three nieces, Mrs. Beatrice Crouch, Miss Emma Applegate and Mrs. Harriett Beckley, all of Portland.

PAVING EXTENSION ASKED

Dallas Wants City and State Road
Surface to Connect.

DALLAS, Or., Aug. 8.—(Special.)—The Dallas commercial club and the Dallas city council are working together in an effort to have the state highway commission extend the hard-surfaced roadway from Salem to connect with the pavement within the city limits.

The contract called for paving only to the city limits of Dallas and after a communication with the state highway commission the city council members are of the opinion that unless the commercial club, the county court and the council can induce the state commission to finish the stretch of roadway from the Brown place, east of Dallas, a small strip of roadway will remain unpaved for years.

The county has not done any work on the Dallas-Salem road except to keep it in condition for travel this winter and should the commission decide not to hard-surface it, many thousands of dollars may be needed to place the road in passable condition before next spring.

WAR ON PROFITEERS IS STARTING GENTLY

Two Men Report Neighbor Has
Sack of Potatoes in Cellar.

INFORMATION IS INVITED

Dealers Suspected of Being Worst
Food Hoarders—Extensive Ex-posure in Oregon Unlikely.

Following the announcement of United States Attorney Haney that the co-operation of the public is desired in ferreting out the profiteers in foodstuffs, two men appeared at the federal building yesterday to make complaint. They brought the information that a neighbor had a sack of potatoes in his cellar.

While the department of justice and its operatives are ready to probe into the high cost of living, extensive exposures are not expected in Oregon. Thus far no information of a serious character has been submitted to Mr. Haney, who said he expected no developments for some time. Mr. Haney assures a thorough investigation of every complaint.

Holding of Foods Violation.
It is presumed that the department of justice at Washington, D. C., will direct that the agents in this state follow eastern "leads," which are believed to have an Oregon end. The suggestions are more likely to come from Washington than to have their inception among the residents of this state, as the concern suspected of being the worst offenders are located in the middle west. Those subject to prosecution are not only individuals or manufacturers, but they embrace wholesale houses and retailers as well. Dealers who have accumulated large stocks of necessities with the intention of holding the goods in reserve in anticipation of higher prices are among the offenders sought by the agents of the department of justice. Dealers are not permitted to hold stocks of foodstuffs beyond a reasonable time. What constitutes a "reasonable time" will be determined by a jury in the federal court, if prosecutions are attempted.

Whether stocks in cold storage will be dealt with by the government in its fight to reduce the high cost of living is not known. It is supposed that a survey of the food and cold storage plants will be made and a determination reached as to whether these stocks are in excess of what they should be and whether they are being held for higher prices.

Prosecutor Invites Information.
During the war period food was hoarded by individuals, and prosecutions were conducted. The food administration had charge of the dealers to see that there was no hoarding, but there was much difficulty in preventing individuals from going from door to door and accumulating unwarranted quantities of supplies. The private food hoarder practically became extinct with the termination of the war, and supervision of the dealers and their supplies ended with the dissolution of the food administration. In the expression that comparatively little food is being hoarded by individuals.

What will develop in Oregon Mr. Haney decided to forecast or disprove. He reiterated that the department of justice is ready to consider any information received and that information is invited from any and all persons. The United Meat company entered a plea of guilty to violating the food and drug act in the federal court yesterday and was fined $100. The company was charged with shipping to Alaska adulterated and misbranded evaporated milk.

WATER TOBOGGANS HERE

COLUMBIA BEACH HAS EQUIP-MENT FOR NEW SPORT.

Airplaning Also Grows in Popularity at Resort North of City,
Where Sands Lure.

Water tobogganing is the new thriller at Columbia Beach, this aquatic modification of the winter sport having been inaugurated this last week. Probably no other feature at the beach has been so long talked about and promised, but the late war seems to have "raised Ned" with the supplies of snow toboggans or the manufacturers hardly expected any demand for sleds at this time of the year. Anyway, they have them now, and there will be tobogganing on the watery way every day.

Instead of the snow courses there is a greased runway down which the sled, with one or more, gathers speed. At the bottom is the "upshoot" that sends the sled shooting over the surface of the water, usually in a series of jumps. Airplaning is becoming increasingly popular at the beach, and each day the passenger list grows. Even those who first came to "gawk" and spring the old "whereas" about "terra firma being good enough for them" are capitulating every day.
