

CHAMBERLAIN'S FEES ARE MUCH PUT OUT

President's Support of Sweek Pains Many Democrats.

BREACH SEEMS CLOSING

Opposition to Selection and Attack Before Secretary Lane Fall to Stop Nomination.

An attempt by the anti-Chamberlain forces to prevent the nomination of Judge Alexander Sweek as register of the land office at Portland met with no encouragement from President Wilson, nor from Secretary of the Interior Lane. The attitude of the president is presaged by Senator Chamberlain's friends as indicative that the breach between the two is being bridged.

Thus far Judge Sweek's progress has been made over the strenuous opposition of H. G. Starkweather, state chairman of the democratic committee, and Newton McCoy, who contends that he is the democratic national committee man for Oregon. It is expected that confirmation of Judge Sweek's appointment will be made in congress tomorrow.

Chamberlain's Fees Busy. When the vacancy in the Portland land office was created by death of the incumbent, Judge Sweek's name was proposed for the position. As Judge Sweek was not friendly to the democrats who look after Chamberlain's welfare, the anti-Chamberlain democrats lost to have him named by plans to prevent the judge from being selected.

In political circles the gossip has it that Colonel Robert A. Miller, for years president of the Jackson club, and a member of the executive committee of the state committee, was selected by Chamberlain's opponents as the man for register. Subsequently it developed that there was opposition to the colonel, and the anti-Chamberlain service in the interest of the party. The next development was that the postmaster at Milwaukie was picked on as a compromise in lieu of Sweek or Miller.

Lane Called on to Help. Furthermore, says gossip, the anti-Chamberlain people undertook to do business direct with the secretary of the interior department. In addition to having a candidate for the position, the opposition filed charges against Judge Sweek calculated to discredit him and prevent his nomination. These charges are said to have been sent by Mr. Starkweather and Mr. McCoy. Information regarding the protests were received in Portland and Judge Sweek had no difficulty in securing an endorsement from the circuit and supreme judges of Oregon as to his standing in the community.

President Puts One Over. For months the anti-Chamberlain democrats have taken the stand that they are the real democrats of the state, the administration's best bet, and that anyone who associated with friends of Chamberlain was by that fact, an enemy of the president, himself, nominee for appointment the choice of Chamberlain was a surprise and a painful shock.

ELKS START TRIPS TODAY

AUTOISTS TO BE FORERUNNER OF KLAMATH FALLS ARRIVALS.

Homes of City Are Thrown Open to Visitors During State Convention Opening Thursday.

It's all aboard for Klamath Falls. There the Elks of the state will make merry at the second annual convention of the state association here next Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Many automobile parties start toward the metropolis of southeastern Oregon today via Crater lake and central Oregon, some left yesterday and more are going tomorrow and Tuesday.

The special train bearing the Portland, Astoria, Oregon business, Salem, Eugene, Roseburg, Marshfield and Medford delegations leaves Portland early Wednesday and it will gather in the delegations as it passes through the valley cities.

When hotel reservations ran out in Klamath Falls weeks ago, the people displayed their reputed hospitality by throwing open the doors of their homes and making all welcome.

E. B. Hall, chairman of the committee in charge, has notified the lodges of the state that Klamath Falls is ready for the great gathering and more than 5000 Elks from every corner of the state are expected to be on hand.

Among the pleasure trips promised are those to Crater lake, the Klamath lava beds, the hot springs, the upper Klamath lake, Hartman lodge and barbecue on the upper Klamath lake will be the first event of the sort ever staged in Oregon, a chef from Salinas, Cal., coming all the way to prepare the elk, which have been provided through the courtesy of State Game Warden Carl D. Shoemaker.

The industrial features of Klamath Falls will be exploited for the benefit of the visitors in addition to the royal welcome.

BUILDING BOOMS KLAMATH

Business Houses and Paving Keep City on High Gear.

KLAMATH FALLS, Or., Aug. 9.—(Special).—A new two-story brick building at the corner of Fifth and Main, one of the business centers, by the firm of Collins & Still, is the latest business building announced, of the many that have been started here this season. C. Blannin has just started work on a new two-story brick on his business property on Main street, between Tenth and Eleventh streets. There are now seven substantial business buildings in process of construction in the business center of the city and contractors are working frantically to complete 25 or more residences to provide accommodations for the many new arrivals that are constantly coming to the city.

This activity, coupled with the paving of several miles of city streets and the busy preparations for the Elks' state convention to be staged during the mid part of the month, presents a spectacle not produced heretofore, even in the good old boom days of 1910-11-12.

LAD, MINUS LEG AND ARM, OVERCOMES ALL OBSTACLES

Martin De Vries Accomplishes Horsemanship, Hunting, Mountain Climbing and Stenography, Although Incumbered From Early Youth.

Martin De Vries.

His right arm and his right leg were gone, but he dreamed of being a cowboy. The summer of the Cascades loomed up, all powdered like a cavalier's wig, and he longed to be a mountain climber. Ducks darted across the lakes—grouse rose with a whirr—and a hunter's desire filled him. He heard the stimulating click—he saw neat sentences speed back from under the ribbon carrier like tea from under a train in which one rode, and he wanted to operate a typewriter. He had only his left arm and his left leg, but because he was determined to take from this sinister members their feebleness, he became a cowboy, a mountain climber, a hunter and a typist.

As a little boy, Martin De Vries lost his right arm above the elbow and his right leg below the knee in a railroad accident. With these handicaps he has had to battle his way through life. Eight months after the amputation of his limbs, he was given a trial in the use of his first artificial leg. It was very awkward and hard to accustom himself to the new artificial, he says. But he learned to use it quickly as is indicated by the following incident, as told by a neighbor of the family at that time. "A herd of cattle approached the bridgehead where Martin was playing. That led surely upon the brake pedal with a heavy tread. He had learned to drive a car.

In his senior year at high school he learned to operate a typewriter. He pecked away at the machine in the dark getting the touch system. He now finds it easy to write 50 words a minute and is able to take shorthand. Through this accomplishment he was able to work his way through the Montana state college. To his parents, who offered to finance his education, he said, "If at the age of 21 a young man must look to his parents for assistance, financial or otherwise, or if he cannot blaze his own way through life or through college, that man is a failure. He is a failure because he is not a man." Martin De Vries, this boy with one arm and one leg gone, during the war was assistant field director at Vancouver barracks and Camp Lewis, and the American Red Cross. On July 15 he resigned to take a special course in Stanford university.

Hood River Has Controversy Over Beauty of Waters.

Vacationists Find Lost and Badger Lakes Alluring Spots.

HOOD RIVER, Or., Aug. 9.—(Special).—The Hood River valley is in a fair way to duplicate in less sanguinary fashion the "War of the Roses." Here, however, the bloodless feud will be known as "The War of the Lakes."

Disputes are already in progress over the features of beauty of Lost lake, situated on the west base of Mount Hood, and Badger lake, lying in a remote and inaccessible fold of the national forest on the east side of the snow peak. Which has the best fishing pools, which is the clearest, which affords the most appealing view of Mount Hood? All of these points are being threshed over by vacationists.

Lost lake is fast being made accessible by the construction of a highway from county roads through the national forest in the southwestern part of the county. Badger lake is destined probably to remain more inaccessible to Hood River people, although it will be brought into more prominence when the loop highway is built around the east base of Mount Hood.

The latest boosters for Badger lake scenery and for the eagerness of its trout to take the fly have just returned from a vacation spent on its shores. The men were Sheriff Thomas F. Johnson, County Assessor Jasper Wickham, Deputy Assessor William Edick and W. B. North. The men declared Lookout mountain a wonderful place for scenic outlook. From its elevation, where a ranger's observation house has been erected, they were able to see the green and golden fields of Wasco county. The ranger's trail up to the lookout house winds its way up the peak by innumerable zig-zags cut in the precipitous sides.

Kidney Remedy for 40 Years A Pronounced Success

When kidney diseases have been successfully treated for a period of more than forty years, it is reasonable to assume that the remedy therefore must possess unusual merit. Such is the remarkable record of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Remedy. Without its ability to give relief and benefit its users so that they would continue its use it could not have existed 40 months, much less 40 years of its enviable record. Many letters have come to us to report that they were cured of kidney ailments for years and years. Here is what one grateful woman has recently written: "I wish to say that your remedies have been used in our family for fifteen years. We are never without a bottle of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Remedy in our home, and it has saved

The Sensible Way of Doing Things

By DR. PARKER Founder and Executive Head of the E. R. Parker System

A MAN goes into a clothing store, looks around, examines goods, asks prices, and buys or not, just as he pleases. A woman does the same thing in a department store. This is the only way to know what you can get for your money. Why not apply the same sensible method to dentistry? Why not visit the Registered Dentists using the E. R. Parker System and see what kind of an institution they conduct, what kind of dental work they do, what kind of people they are, and what prices they ask? Your teeth are surely as important to you as your clothes, and your teeth are wearing out every day as surely as your clothes are wearing out. Why not make this visit today, and while there have your teeth thoroughly examined? No charge is made for either examinations or advice, and you are told in plain dollars and cents in advance how little the price will be to have such work done as your teeth need.
