

HIGH RATING SOUGHT BY MILK PRODUCERS

Competition Keen, According to Health Officials.

DAIRY EFFICIENCY SOUGHT

Consumers Urged to Consult Ratings Published and Make Sure of Getting Quality Product.

Ratings of milk delivered for use in charge of the milk bureau, indicate keen competition among milk producers and distributors for high ratings.

Portland's method of milk inspection is to collect samples regularly from each distributor and rate each firm on the basis of these samples.

"If the public will withhold its patronage from inefficient dairymen and dealers and give it to the better body, it is a sure and inexpensive way to eliminate the poorest quality of milk from our market."

Keen Competition Shown. "Every consumer should look over the list of ratings and be sure that he is receiving milk from a good dairymen."

It costs more to produce pure milk than just ordinary milk, and it is worth more. No food can be purchased for the price of a quart of milk that will furnish anything like the amount of real nourishment for the human body.

Most Portland consumers could double their milk supply without increasing the total cost of their food and a healthier community would result.

The complete ratings shown in the local milk contest, August 1, are as follows:

Table with columns for 'Raw Milk Delivered by Producers' and 'Pasteurized Milk'. Lists various dairymen and their respective milk ratings.

AUG. 12 MEDIATION DATE

CHICAGO PACKERS TO MEET STRIKING EMPLOYEES.

Last of State Troops Withdrawn. Plans Are Still Guarded by Police.

DENVER, Aug. 9.—A hearing of the district judge in the packers and their employees will be held in the office of Judge Samuel Alschuler of Chicago, federal mediator, Tuesday, August 12.

The information was given out by A. C. Leisenring, business agent of the International Association of Machinists Local No. 47, who announced that he would submit an invitation to attend this meeting to the local striking stockyard employees late today.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—Fifty hundred policemen, 250 deputy sheriffs and the rest of the state troops assigned to race riot duty were withdrawn from the stockyards today in the hope that the packing industry and the packers might be induced to return to work.

President Martin Murphy of the stockyards labor council said the men would not return to work until every guard had been withdrawn and no danger of further race riots has passed.

JOSEPH SMITH "The Mormon Prophet"

By DR. JAMES E. TALMAGE

Of the Council of the Twelve, Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints Salt Lake City, Utah.

Note: For free copies of other articles of this series, send request to the author.

The names that live, as titles of distinction in the memory of the race, are of men whose message to the world is in a manner new, whose mission is specific and distinctive.

The man of whom we speak, Joseph Smith, is one whom men can neither forget nor ignore, try as they may.

His place in history is secure; whether he be known for good or for evil his work is recognized as that of a mission peculiarly his own.

The message he bore, the labor he performed among his fellow men, the claims he made as to authority and appointment, have been questioned and analyzed with keenest care and in most exacting detail, at the hands of both friends and opponents.

Few indeed are the historic incidents in the life of man which have had so important a bearing upon the destiny of a nation as the life and labors of the man, Joseph Smith.

While yet a lad he appeared on the stage of human notice, declaring, in gentle tone and simple words, that he had been personally visited and instructed by the Eternal Father and by Jesus Christ.

If the basis of this solemn declaration be delusion or illusion, if Joseph Smith intentionally or involuntarily assumed the bold claims as the repository of the Holy Priesthood in proof, its authority is vindicated and its sanctity confirmed.

On the other hand, if the testimony of the boy, if the life-work of the man, with its tragic close in the cruel scenes of martyrdom, if these be genuine and true, then the perpetuity of the Church is assured, its bold claims as the repository of the Holy Priesthood in proof, its authority is vindicated and its sanctity confirmed.

The evidence of Divine authority in the work established by Joseph Smith, and of the justification of the claims made by and for the man, may be summarized as follows:

1. Ancient prophecy has been fulfilled in the restoration of the Gospel and the reestablishment of the Church of Jesus Christ upon the earth, through his instrumentality.

2. He received by direct ordination and appointment, at the hands of those who were empowered in former dispensations, the authority to minister in the various ordinances of the Gospel.

3. His possession of the power of true prophecy and of other spiritual gifts is abundantly shown by the results of his ministry.

4. The doctrines he taught are both true and scriptural.

5. While few people outside the Church have had much to say in commendation of this modern prophet, it is interesting to note that there are some honorable exceptions. Joseph Quincy, a prominent American, made the acquaintance of Joseph Smith a short time before the latter's martyrdom; and after the tragic event he wrote as follows:

"It is by no means improbable that some future text-book, for the use of generations yet unborn, will contain a question something like this: What historical American of the nineteenth century has exerted the most powerful influence upon the destinies of his country? And it is by no means impossible that the answer to that interrogatory may be thus written: Joseph Smith the Mormon Prophet. And the reply, absurd as it doubtless seems to those men of the present, may be an obvious commonplace to their descendants. History deals in surprises and paradoxes quite as startling as this.

"The man who established a religion in this age of free debate, who was and is to-day accepted by hundreds of thousands as a direct emissary from the Most High—such a rare human being is not to be disposed of by being dismissed with unsavory epigrams.

"The most vital questions Americans are asking each other to-day have to do with this man and what he has left us." Burning questions that are left, in the history of the country to that sturdy self-assertor whom I visited at Nauvoo.

Joseph Smith, claiming to be an inspired teacher, faced adversity such as few men have ever called to meet, enjoyed a brief season of prosperity such as few men have ever attained, and finally, forty-three days after I saw him, went cheerfully to a martyr's death. When he surrendered his person to Governor Ford, in order to prevent the shedding of blood, the Prophet had a presentiment of what was before him. "I am going like a lamb to the slaughter," he is reported to have said, "but I am calm as a summer's morning."
