

UNIVERSITY TO OPEN SOCIAL WORK SCHOOL

New Portland Institution to Be Pioneer of West.

TERM TO BEGIN SEPT. 29

J. Franklin Thomas, Eminent Sociologist, to Head Training of Students for Welfare Work.

The Portland school of social work is the title of a new branch of the activity of the University of Oregon, to be opened with the beginning of the fall term, September 29. The new work will be headed by Professor J. Franklin Thomas, a sociologist and social worker of long training in the United States, who has just resigned a position in the faculty of the University of Washington to take charge of the school. Mr. Thomas has arrived from Seattle and is preparing to take up his new work next week.

The new school, so far as known here, is the first of its kind west of St. Louis. Only a few of the larger institutions of higher learning of the east conduct such a department, and the University of Oregon has been receiving congratulations from sociological experts all over the country for its enterprise in pioneering this new field in the west.

Co-operation Promised School.
Local, state and national welfare organizations have promised co-operation with the new school, the purpose of which is to turn out trained social workers. The school was established in Portland as the best place in the state to place the students in touch with social problems and the opportunity to do real social work, co-operating with various welfare organizations such as the Red Cross, the anti-tuberculosis association, the various charity organizations, hospitals and other institutions engaged in welfare work for which large cities offer the field.

"Society has reached a point," Mr. Thomas said yesterday, "where it is insisting on thorough training for its social workers as well as its lawyers, doctors and nurses."

Two Courses Planned.
Classes will be held in the Central Library, where registration for the courses will be conducted by the extension division of the university. Enrollment in the new school is open to any student who has had three years in a standard college or university. The work here is to lead to the master's degree in two years. Later an arrangement may be made under which it will be possible for students who have had only two years of standard college preparation to enter.

Two required courses are planned—one in general history and theory of social progress and social reform, and another in practical social work. Each of these will give three hours of college credit. Other courses on public institutions and field work in connection with the elective, and each student will have to choose one course from the others offered. Each student will be required to choose some one particular field, whether public health, nursing, child welfare or home service. Plans for the field work are now being made, and it is expected that opportunities for actual experience will be offered in home service and general work with families, child welfare, public health nursing, public charities and corrections, institutional visitation, and other types of social service.

Experts to Lecture.
It is the plan, as announced by Professor Thomas, to have the lecture work chiefly in the morning and the field work in the afternoon. It is hoped to have special lectures by expert authorities along the different lines of work offered.

Mr. Thomas, who will head the new school, is a native of Wisconsin, and a graduate of Beloit, class of 1904, majoring in economics and sociology. He was principal of the Milwaukee (Mont.) county high school 1907-10, after which he did graduate work in sociology at Columbia university in New York, for one year. He then worked for the New York State Charities Aid association, of which Joseph H. Choate was president, and Homer Foulkes is still secretary. He resigned the position of assistant secretary of that association in 1918 to go to the University of Washington at Seattle, as assistant professor of sociology.

GLASS TO DON RED FEZ
AL KADER TO HOLD INITIATION AT MARSHFIELD OCTOBER 4.

Shriners to Take Wives on Pilgrimage to Marshfield—Harvey Wells is in Charge.

Approximately 250 clam destroyers from Al Kader Temple of the Mystic Shrine will invade the chief oyster bed on Coos bay, Marshfield, on October 4 to inaugurate some new regulations governing the conduct of the good people down there, to impress a few fishermen with respect for the laws, to show some well-known lumbermen how to give spruce and otherwise to do things to a few dozen candidates for the honor of wearing the red fez of the Shriners.

The Portland special train will leave this city on October 3 and will make stops at Salem, Albany, Corvallis and Eugene, a parade and a few stunts being planned to enliven the proceedings in each of those cities.

On the Marshfield pilgrimage the Shriners will take their wives, and the indications are now that the train will have to be run in two sections.

"Everybody seems to have some business down Coos bay way that needs attention about October 4, and they all seem to want to go with the Al Kader special," said Harvey Wells, who is in charge of the proposed trip because he made such a success of the jaunt to La Grande a few days ago.

"It's all right with me," added Mr. Wells, "only the fellows who want lower berths must get in their applications right away. They will be assigned according to the time we receive the application for space, and no favorites played."

ALL-STARS TO BE IN SHOW
Press Club to Stage Midnight Vaudeville at Hellig October 14.

Active management of the Midnight Frolic, the all-star vaudeville to be staged at the Hellig theater on October 14 by the Portland Press club, has been delegated by the standing entertainment committee to a subcommittee consisting of O. C. Leiter, Fred J. Brady and Tom W. Gerber. Frank Coffinberry, for years with the Sullivan & Considine circuit, has been engaged to direct the program.

"This show of the Press club is going to be a humdinger, we'll promise you that," said Mr. Brady, speaking for the committee. "It will begin at 11:30 P. M., following the regular Orpheum performance, in order that we may have the headline acts from all the local vaudeville theaters on hand. Added to that will be special sketches by the two stock companies and the musical comedy people, and a big-time eastern act which Coffinberry is now dickering.

"In short, we intend to turn out the whole town to one of the regular old-time Press club shindigs, with a load of fun from the first curtain until the lights go out."

POTENTATE TO COME HERE
AL KADER INVITES TWO TEMPLES TO JOIN IN RECEPTION.

Bands and Marching Patrols Are Expected to Be Here to Greet W. Freeland Kendrick.

At least two temples of the Mystic Shrine will send their bands and marching patrols to Portland, November 29, to act as escorts for Imperial Potentate W. Freeland Kendrick and his party during the official visit that Mr. Kendrick will make to Al Kader temple. The visiting organizations will be from Tacoma and Spokane.

Al Kader temple of Tacoma has been invited to furnish an escort of marching men to accompany the imperial potentate on his circle of the northwest. They will meet him at Butte, thereafter visits will be made to Spokane, Seattle, Tacoma and Portland. Officers of Al Kader temple yesterday were advised of the distinguished visitors to their host, invitations were forwarded last night. They were sent with the idea of impressing Tacoma and Spokane with the desire of the distinguished visitors to their hosts.

Imperial Potentate Kendrick is expected to reach the Union station at 7:30 the morning of November 29. He will find the Al Kader patrol and band waiting for him.

As soon as all the members of the three patrols and the three bands can be formed in line a parade will escort the distinguished visitors to the Multnomah hotel. In the afternoon the line will be formed again, with numerous additions to the character of which the local committee refuses to divulge and the imperial party will be conducted to the armory where the preliminaries will be held. The armory show is to be a regular two-ringed circus with nobles of Al Kader prodding the animals, selling peanuts and mixing the red lemonade.

It is expected that at least 4000 shriners will participate in the events of November 29.

Reports from nobles of Al Kader temple, who are now in the east and from others who have recently returned indicate that Portland will have to prepare to entertain nearer 100,000 than 75,000 Shriners when the call to prayers shall be heralded from the mosques next June. Among those who have just come back is William Goldman, the insurance man. He met Imperial Potentate Kendrick at Montpelier, Vt., and was impressed by the enthusiasm that is being displayed by Shriners everywhere.

Backing up the enthusiasm of Mr. Goldman, the records of the general committee in the Gasco building show that 27 temples have already put in requests for hotel accommodations, each of them planning to bring a band and a patrol of gaily uniformed marchers.

The Closet Seat Should Be Renewed

To maintain the appearance of your water closet and to keep it entirely sanitary, the seat, being the only part of the closet made of wood, should be renewed every year or two.

You can do this yourself without calling a plumber however, will be glad to you one of the famous "Don't Worry" seats, ready to inst.

The "Don't Worry" seat the best seat made. Note handsome appearance of finished seat in the upper illustration—the manner of joining in the lower one.

The picture tells the story. Being made of two pieces of wood bored each way from the center, the dowels are forced into position (as shown) by hydraulic pressure to glue joints. Hence, the dowels (catching all short grains of wood) placed in position in this manner make the STRONGEST SEAT ON THE MARKET WITHOUT MARRING ITS APPEARANCE.
