Prunarians, Amid Gala Decorations, March in Final Parade; Farmers' Exhibits Triumph.

VANCOUVER, Wash., Sept. 20.—(Special.)—When Vancouver's first royal prune harvest festival closed at midnight in a blaze of glory, it was an assured fact that this great celebration will become an annual event, being enlarged and improved from year to year. The Prunarians, responsible for the festival, have been widely congratulated. The festival was a success in every respect. Even the weather worked overtime in making the festival pleasant. The affair represented the work of 48 Prunarians. A few months ago J. W. Shaw, postmaster, Robert E. Dunbar and M. S. Cohen, merchants, casually met and talked about organizing a marching club to boost Vancouver. A meeting was called and the result was the Prunarians. The uniforms worn were woven in Clarke county from wool grown on sheep browsing on Clarke county grass. Mr. Shaw was elected president, Mr. Dunbar secretary, W. S. Short treasurer and Rufus Detrick vice-president.

Queen's Reign Ends. M. S. Cohen, a member, was appointed executive chairman of the committee to put on the Prune Harvest Festival, and he acted as lord chamberlain to Queen Fay, whose reign ended at midnight tonight. Clement Scott was an active worker. The coming of five torpedo-boat destroyers to stay until the festival added interest to the occasion and the "go" of board entered enthusiastically into the festivities. The Salvation Army, the Knights of Columbus and the War Camp Community Service joined to entertain the visiting sailors, providing free cats, drinks, smokes, music and dances. The Knights of Columbus was first on a trip over the Columbia highway. The automobiles were furnished by Vancouver citizens.

Officers Guests at Ball. The officers were entertained at a special ball last night in the War Camp Community Service clubrooms, and dances were held three nights at the Knights of Columbus hall in Vancouver Barracks. There was also a free dance on Fifth street each night.

The final parade was held tonight and the coming drive for $5000 for the Salvation Army was featured by the Prunarians, some of whom wore Salvation Army uniforms. The parade was the part of reformed drunkards, and other work done by the Salvation Army was represented. Clement Scott was chairman of the committee. The city was never before decorated so elaborately. Thousands of Japanese lanterns were hung in arches at each intersection on Main street from Fifth to Eleventh, and 500 fir trees, 10 feet tall were placed in rows on both sides of the line of march. Flags were placed on every telegraph pole and many merchants decorated their own buildings.

Farm Displays Attractive. In his speech to the citizens Mayor Percival said he would introduce an ordinance making it a misdemeanor for any person within the city limits to criticize with malicious intent the city of Vancouver. He was loudly applauded. The farmers and fruit growers of the county added greatly to the success of the festival. The store windows were very attractive. Most of the merchants took out all goods from their windows and put in grange, farm and orchard displays.

The children's parade Friday afternoon was a feature of the festival. Queen Fay I, following the award of the judges:
