

WOMEN DELIBERATE IN FOUR LANGUAGES

International Conference Goes Unsteadily Forward.

EVEN MUSIC HANDICAPPED

Gathering Shows Tendency to Drift and Forget—French Delegates Are Most Conspicuous.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, Nov. 1.—After reviewing the reception to the king and queen of the Belgians during the week and following, the international conference of labor leaders around for several days, one naturally looks for relaxation, it is to be had at the auditorium of the national museum, where women labor delegates from more than 20 different countries are doing business in four languages.

The meeting, which is called an international conference of working women, convened yesterday, but there have been many delays in getting down to business. First, the women delegates never arrive on time. Next, Mrs. Raymond Robins, wealthy Chicago society woman, who is chairman of this working women's conference, has her good nature, sometimes forgets where the conference is. All of yesterday's session was taken up with debates on the eight-hour day, until suddenly Mrs. Gergette Bouillot, a French delegate, arose and reminded the chairman that there was a night-hour question before the conference, the resolutions committee not having brought in its report.

Mrs. Robins admitted that the French delegate was correct and the conference adjourned that the delegates might have tea at the Fine Arts club. The gathering was to meet again this afternoon at 2 o'clock, but the larger number of the delegates got to enjoying themselves in conversation in the outer museum and at 2:30 Mrs. Robins ordered the ushers to advise delegates outside that the meeting was being called to order.

Business moved slowly for many reasons. In the first place, every word uttered, starting with the chairman Robins said, had to be translated into three languages after having been first spoken in English. French, Polish and Czech-Slovak. Mrs. Robins would talk 15 minutes, all of the conversation being taken down by somebody. French translator, who would turn to the foreign section and read off the entire 15 minutes' speech of Mrs. Robins in exactly seven minutes, thus demonstrating the superior French speed in conversation.

There were many snags at the opening of today's proceedings. First, chairman Robins called on the meeting to sing "The Marseillaise." This was nuts for the French delegates who started off just like they had been raised on it. But they sang it in French and nobody else could follow. When finally some American delegates began to supply words from an old Protestant revival hymn, the music of which appears to have been played during the French national air, Mrs. Robins threw up her hands.

She then called for "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." Here, again, complications ensued because several, including a few foreign delegates got the thing confused with "John Brown's Body," and somebody else, probably a latent bull mooser, wanted to sing "Onward, Christian Soldiers."

And still more trouble. After the committee on resolutions had brought in its report, Mrs. Robins seriously enough, and apparently without thinking how much she was upsetting orderly parliamentary procedure, announced that all the resolutions submitted to the committee would be read to the conference, which meant that all of them had to be gone over in four languages.

This brought Mary McArthur, secretary of the British Trade Union's league, and former labor candidate for parliament, to her feet in protest. She said the thing would never be done that way in England. And she spoke with emphasis on every word.

MINING TOWNS OF PIERCE COUNTY QUIET

Strikers Gather Idly, but No Trouble Is Started.

WORKERS ADVANCE RENT

Men Admit Victory for All Demands Not Expected; Operators Say Conditions Destructive.

TACOMA, Wash., Nov. 1.—Peace enveloped the coal mining towns in Pierce county today, the first day of the nation-wide strike.

At Fairfax, Carbonado, Wilkeson, Burnett and Morristown the men quit work, but there was no trouble or suggestion of it.

Here and there striking miners gathered idly to watch incoming automobile stages or willingly volunteer general information to the visitor, but for the most part the streets were deserted.

Approximately 1000 men are affected in these towns, and at Carbonado, where the largest mine is operated, and the town owned by the mining company, it was stated that all employees had paid their rent for a month in advance and that all had their own coal supply to last for two months.

Admission from some of the strikers that they did not expect to get all they asked for, but thought they ought to have something, was balanced by declarations of operators that it would mean the end of the Washington coal industry to meet the conditions of the six-hour day "from bank to bank," five days a week and 60 per cent increase in wages.

CAMPAIGN GETS RESULTS

SMALL DONATIONS COMING IN TO ROOSEVELT FUND.

Rural Chairmen Are Yet to Report on Their Proceeds and Quota Will Be Subscribed.

Are We Soon to Become a Race of Baldheaded Men?

Prof. John H. Austin, Bacteriologist, Hair and Scalp Specialist of Chicago, Talks Most Interestingly About the Hair.

Seborrhea Is "Catching."

He says that baldness is increasing rapidly among men, and points out some of the reasons.

Professor Austin says dandruff causes 75 per cent of the cases of premature falling out of the hair.

Prior to investigations and discoveries of the past few years dandruff was considered simply a collection of scales of the outer cell tissues of the scalp combined with an oily matter.

By careful experiments seborrhea was found to be contagious. An ointment was made of vaseline and the scales from a man's head and then rubbed into the backs of guinea pigs.

The pigs contracted the disease and became bald. Likewise the disease has been contracted by man and wife, either wife or husband being free from it before marriage.

You should have the roots of your hair examined with a powerful microscope. Find out just what is the trouble with your hair. The cure is then a comparatively easy matter.

He says the use of dandruff cure, mange cure, vaseline and hair tonic is like taking medicine without knowing what you are trying to cure.

Private office, balcony, The Owl, Broadway and Washington st. Hours, 10 to 12 A. M. and 2 to 4 P. M. Women need not take down their hair.—Adv.

OREGON TO BACK WALKER

LINEUP AT AMERICAN LEGION CONFERENCE ASSURED.

Other Delegations Also Will Work for Candidate for Chairman of National Body.

OREGON'S delegates to the national convention of the American Legion to be held in Minneapolis November 10 to 12 will support Dewey V. Walker in the ring as candidate for chairman of the national organization, according to the announcement of Barge E. Leonard on the eve of his departure for the convention city last night.

With other western delegations pledged to support Oregon's candidate, a strong line-up behind Walker is expected when the convention opens. Walker is one of the best-known veterans in the state, due to his popularity before the war, his clean, creditable record, and his activity in the organization of the American Legion in this state. He was the first state secretary for Oregon, taking the work when the organization was in its infancy and seeing it through to the state convention held in September.

Leonard and Merle Campbell of Portland, two of Oregon's delegates, left for Minneapolis last night. William B. Follett, state chairman, and Edward J. Elvers, state secretary, will leave tomorrow.

Other delegates are: Walker, who is already in the east; James R. Bain and Arthur A. Murphy, Portland; George A. Coddling, Medford; Jesse B. Shuman, Astoria; Walter L. Toole, Dallas; Fred E. Kiddle, La Grande; V. H. Abraham, Hood River, and W. E. Wilkins, Clifton. Non-voting delegates are: Arthur M. Geary, Cassius; R. Peck, Walter B. Gleason and William Kavanagh, Portland; Harry L. Kuck, Albany; George A. Gore, St. Helens; Ben S. Fisher, Marshfield; S. C. Smith, Salem; Fred Westfield, Clifton Falls, and O. B. Hardy of Redmond.

Walker, Oregon's candidate for the head of the legion in the United States, served in Europe as a captain of contributions which continues to flow to the county treasurers, and has been reassuring the committee states. A meeting will be held tomorrow at the call of Dr. Coe to formulate plans for the closing effort of the campaign.

"The small contributions continue to come in," said Dr. Coe yesterday. "The total sum of Oregon's quota was apportioned out to the different counties of the state and among captains in Multnomah."

In answer to the many inquiries that reach headquarters as to the time limit of the campaign, the committee wishes to state that there is no time limit and the association is open to membership and contributions until such time as we have reached our quota. We are now waiting to hear final reports from the various chairmen.

Roosevelt Fund Oversubscribed.

DALLAS, Or., Nov. 1.—(Special.)—County Clerk Floyd D. Moore, chairman of the Dallas committee to raise funds for the establishment of a Roosevelt Memorial in honor of the late president, reports that Dallas went over the top in its subscriptions to the fund. The amount allotted Polk county to raise was $275 and of this amount Dallas subscribed $125.50, Independence $50, Monmouth $30, McCoy $12.50.

Those Who Intend Buying French Ivory Toilet Articles

for Christmas Gifts should DO IT NOW! Owl Drug Store stocks are now complete, but this condition cannot be assured for very long. It's a question of sub-normal supply and above-normal demand.

- Hand Mirrors $1.50 to $9.00.
- Hair Brushes $1.50 to $7.00.
- Military Brushes $5.50 to $10 pr.
- Infants' Hair Brushes 50c to $1.25.
- Combs 15c to $1.75.
- Clothes Brushes $3.00 to $5.00.
- Whisk Brooms $1.00 to $2.00.
- Hat Brushes $1.25 to $3.75.
- Handkerchief Boxes $3.50-$7.50.
- Glove Boxes $3.50 and $10.00.
- Cream or Salve Boxes 50c to $1.
- Soap Boxes 40c to 80c.
- Jewel Boxes $1.00 to $5.00.
- Pin or Trinket Boxes $1.50 to $3.
- Talcum Boxes $2.25.
- Talcum Can Holders 60c.
- Hat Pin Holders 75c to $1.25.
- Dresser Trays 35c to $5.00.
- Puff Boxes 75c to $3.50.
- Hair Receivers 85c to $3.25.
- Make-up Boxes $2.75.
- Tooth Powder Boxes 85c to $1.25.
- Tooth Brush Holders 50c to $1.
- Perfume Bottles 50c to $3.50.
- Nail Files 25c and 40c.
- Nail Buffers 65c to $1.75.
- Nail Scissors $1.25.
- Cuticle Scissors $1.25.
- Corn Knives 35c and 50c.
- Cuticle Knives 35c and 50c.
- Button Hooks 25c and 40c.
- Shoe Horns 75c.
- Picture Frames 65c to $7.50.

The Owl Drug Co.
RE-MILKER BROS. REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.
BROADWAY AND WASHINGTON
E. Strupler, Manager
Mail Orders Given Prompt Attention

STREET CAR DRAGS AUTOS

Car Strikes Tow-Line Between Machines and Speeds On.

In a peculiar accident early yesterday morning at Broadway and Oak street two automobiles were dragged 150 feet by a street car, one at each end of a tow line. The machines were only slightly damaged following the unusual experience.

With a 20-foot cable utilized as a tow line an automobile belonging to C. Keegan, 46 North Twentieth street, was towing a machine owned by D. E. Tessen, of the Exchange building. After crossing the car tracks at Broadway and Oak street the engine of the leading machine stalled, leaving one on each side of the track.

Not noticing the cable a street car driven by R. R. Buser, motorist, struck the line and carried the automobile nearly a block before the motorist became aware of what had happened and slackened speed.

FOUR DIVORCE SUITS FILED

Divorce suits filed in the circuit court yesterday were: Leafie Schwartz against Adam S. Schwartz Jr., A. Lambert against W. T. Lambert, Ada Bristol against S. Bristol, and William Schwartz against Anna Schwartz.

Button holes for shirts and underwear, 30c and 50c a doz.; for coats 10c ea. Booth's, 823 Morgan bldg.

Western Newspaper Association Moves to U. S. National Bank Building

The Western Newspaper Association, located at 213-220 Oregon Building, Portland, on November 1st moved to their new quarters at 419-420 U. S. National Bank Building, corner of Sixth and Stark streets.

FOOD TALKS ARE GIVEN

O. A. C. Demonstrator Lectures to Housewives at Armory.

Pointers in fighting the cost of living were given yesterday to Portland housewives by Miss Lassic Lane, home demonstrator from Oregon Agricultural college, who is making daily talks at the food show in the armory. Miss Lane produced charts to prove her points and to point out the proper amount to invest in foods.

Genuinely artistic—

Spontaneous, natural, genuinely artistic is music produced on the Steger Player-Piano, because it enables you to reproduce the playing of the artist, or to play any music as you feel it should be played.

It has the simplest of expression devices. And its constructive excellence is Steger-guaranteed.

Let us demonstrate its superior features.

Convenient terms

Factory Distributors SCHWAN PIANO CO. 111 Fourth St. at Washington

APPRECIATION OF QUALITY

is the best evidence of the developed individual. Merely "Good enough" is no longer good enough for men or women. The watchword is getting ahead is to do some things better than they were ever done before." It has been done in the

REGINA

VACUUM CLEANER

in workmanship, efficiency, economy, convenience and last but not least, in health; by using a Regina you protect your home against germ-laden rugs, mattresses, portieres, etc. This invaluable cleaner can be used for every purpose in the household.

Special attachments can be furnished to fit every requirement.

Price $47.50 or $5.00 Down and $5.00 Per Month

BEAVER ELECTRIC CO.

East 361. Call for demonstration in your home.

THE WAY OF ESCAPE

May Judgment be Averted?

By Dr. JAMES E. TALMAGE

Of the Council of the Twelve, Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, Salt Lake City, Utah.

Note: For free copies of other articles of this series, send request to the author.

The Divine decree against the wickedness of mankind has gone forth, and who shall escape? Judgment has been pronounced against men and nations who refuse to heed the warning call to repentance. Angels bearing the golden vials, filled with the wrath of God, are abroad in the earth (see Rev. 15 and 16); for these days are the days of wickedness and vengeance, which the prophets have foretold. (Psalm 73:17.) "For I am the Lord, I change not." (Mal. 3:6.) "God is not a man, that he should lie; neither doth he repent: hath he said, and shall he not do? or hath he spoken, and shall he not make it good?" Num. 23:19. "His ways are straight, and his course is one eternal round." (Book of Mormon, Alma 27:12).

And in accordance with His immutability of purpose, His unchangeable justice, His ever-present mercy, God pronouncement, whether of proffered salvation or threatened condemnation, is conditioned upon the state of righteousness or transgression.

He decreed the destruction of Nineveh, whose abominations were not longer to be tolerated. A prophet was sent, who cried aloud through the streets of the great and wicked city: "Yet forty days, and Nineveh shall be overthrown." The people heard and were awakened from their evil ways. They fasted and prayed, and withal reformed. Jonah, having delivered his message, posted himself in a position from which he expected to witness the destruction of the city. But no catastrophe befell. He was angry, for seemingly his word had failed. Then the Lord reasoned with him, not without rebuke, and showed that the city, once condemned, was spared because of the repentance and reformation of her people. Such is the Lord's unchangeableness; for he is a God of justice and requires repentance with mercy.

Amidst the awe-inspiring glories of Sinai, Jehovah decreed that the sins of the fathers should be visited upon the children (Exo. 20:5). Heredity demonstrates to this day the actuality of the condition specified. But Israel ignorantly misinterpreted and willfully misapplied that word of the Lord. They gave to it a meaning wholly foreign to the Divine intent, and assumed to find therein excuse, not justification, for their sins. Indeed, they halted it as a very comfortable doctrine; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father, so also the soul of the son is mine; and the soul that sineth, it shall die." And further: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the fathers; for in their evil eyes it appeared to explain away their own defects as inherited weaknesses, for which they were not answerable and from which they could not escape. They crystallized it into a proverb thus: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." But they were sternly rebuked: "As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Israel. Behold, all souls are mine; as the soul of the father,