

MEIER HEADS DRIVE FOR FUND $35,000

City Will Be Canvassed for Stock Show Subscriptions.

$65,000 NOW IS ON HAND

Committee of 9 to Stay With Job Until Finished—Plummer Tells of Interest in North.

Armed with a complete list of all subscriptions to date, the new committee of nine business men and bankers, formed Friday at a meeting called by Julius L. Meier, will start a personal canvass tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock to bring the sales campaign of the Pacific International Livestock association to a successful conclusion. A total of $100,000 worth of the stock must be sold to place the association on a firm foundation. The campaign thus far has netted about $65,000 in sales, leaving approximately $35,000 for the committee of nine to dispose of.

At a meeting of the committee held yesterday morning in the office of John L. Etheridge, Morris Bros., it was determined to begin a systematic campaign tomorrow morning. Complete lists of all stock subscribers to date were being prepared yesterday by the association force and by means of these lists the committee of nine intend to dispose of the remaining stock on an equitable basis, asking those who it is felt should subscribe, but thus far have not done so, to take stock in proportion to their financial ability, and asking those who it is believed have not subscribed as much as they should toward this community enterprise to take additional stock. In this way it is expected to conclude the campaign within a short time, and the committee of nine intend to stay with the job until it is finished. Mr. Meier is chairman and Mr. Etheridge secretary of this committee.

Kiepper Thanks Workers.
The closing luncheon of the campaign for handling the livestock drive for the last two weeks was held at the Portland hotel yesterday noon. Milton E. Kiepper, general manager of that feature of the campaign, thanked the workers on behalf of the association for their untiring efforts for the past two weeks and praised the work that had been done in canvassing the city and covering the ground thoroughly in regard to the smaller subscriptions. Approximately $35,000 was raised through the efforts of these campaigns.

Complete reports as to the standing of the five organizations backing this drive—the Chamber of Commerce, Ad club, Kiwanis club, Progressive Business Men's club and Portland Realty board, were not available yesterday, as a number of the team members were not ready to turn in their reports. Thus it could not be determined which one of the five organizations leads the race, and much interest was expressed in obtaining the final reports, which will probably be ready early this week.

While this feature of the campaign came to an official close last night, a number of the individual members of teams expect to continue work for a few days to clean up their prospects and submit their final reports. The activity of this body of men was brought to a close after just two weeks of effort, and the officials of the livestock association congratulated themselves as highly gratified with the results obtained. Praise was given the men for the time and energy which they lent to the campaign.

Spokane Shows Interest.
The more interest in the livestock developments throughout the northwest in the department of General Manager O. M. Plummer of the Pacific International Livestock association, who returned yesterday from Spokane, where many exhibitors and visitors to the show declared their intention of coming to Portland for the big livestock feature of the northwest, he stated.

Mr. Plummer expects to go to Victoria, B. C., on November 11 to speak before the members of the Western Canada Livestock association, who will be in Victoria at that time for their annual meeting. Canadian stockmen have already sent in a large number of entries to the show here November 17 to 22, and it is expected a considerable number of those in session at the Victoria convention will come to Portland immediately for the Pacific International livestock show.

250 Dairy Entries Expected.
At least 250 entries are expected in the dairy products division of the show. The entries for this division closed last night, but it was announced that all entries received by mail within the next day or two which were started on the way to Portland yesterday will be accepted. It was thus impossible to give out the total entries last night.

Plans for caring for the throng of visitors expected here during the week are being formulated by the Portland Chamber of Commerce committee, headed by Dudley Evans of the membership department. The old Rose Festival list will be used and brought up to date, so that rooms in private homes will be available after hotel facilities have been exhausted.

C. F. Hoyt, a nationally known milk judge and expert on city milk supply, arrived in Portland yesterday.

Mr. Hoyt has constructed four new score cards that will be used for the first time at the big show held in conjunction with the Pacific International Livestock exposition November 17 to 22.

Heretofore condensed and powdered dairy products have not been scored, but this year, through Mr. Hoyt's work, these products will receive equal recognition with other products.

Horse Show Boxes Sold.
More than 20 of the 50 night horse show boxes have been sold in advance. In addition to those already published, those taking boxes are: Frank Robertson, J. C. Ainsworth, Fred Martin, Claude Starr, Northwestern National bank, Starrett Packing company, Willard Commission company, and Farm-Trio (Oregon Farmer, Washington Farmer and Idaho Farmer), reserved by W. H. Cowles, of the Spokesman-Review.

The buildings of the association are now completed except for the installation of some of the interior furniture. Everything will be in readiness for the opening of the show on November 17, it is stated. Today has been designated as visiting day at the building and the officials of the association have issued a general invitation to Portlanders to come out and inspect the buildings. The new structures to house the greatest livestock show on the Pacific slope are located just west of the western approach to the Interstate bridge and are accessible either by automobile over a hard-surfaced road or via the Kenton street cars. The hard-surfaced road on the grounds turns off the paved road to Vancouver and drivers need not fear getting stuck in mud. A good hard-surfaced road is now available, officials of the association say.

SMITH CAREER THRILLING SOLDIER WHO WENT THROUGH WAR KILLED IN CRASH.

Member of Canadian Outfit Badly Wounded in France and Also Suffers From Gas.

L. G. Smith, known to his friends as Sergeant Jimmy Smith, who was killed when the auto truck in which he was riding was struck by an Oregon City car at Glen Echo station Monday, had experienced a thrilling career as a member of a Canadian outfit in the recent war and during an offensive in France was severely wounded and gassed.

After having been turned out of a military hospital he came to Portland and it was here that he rapidly regained his former strength. It was in one of his first engagements that he was gassed, shot through the abdomen and otherwise wounded. After spending three years in a hospital he was sent home, supposedly to die.

When he first came to Portland he was given work in the Standard shipyard. Later he held several positions, finally becoming traveling salesman for the Simmons Glove company.

It was only a few weeks ago that he was riding with a party of four men in an auto near Eugene when the machine was struck by a train and one of the four men killed. His old wound was opened as a result of that experience and Mr. Smith spent some time in St. Vincent's hospital. He had been out of the hospital but a short time previous to the accident Monday.

He had been a wanderer most of his life and had visited Alaska, the Orient, Australia, Central and South America and Europe.

Morris Fox, who was in the automobile with Smith at the time of the accident, is said to have a chance to recover, although his injuries were serious. He is in a hospital at Oregon City.

Mr. Smith was married in Portland six months ago.

CHILDREN'S BOOK WEEK

"More Books in the Home"

CHILDREN'S BOOK WEEK is not just a date on the calendar. It is a great national campaign to arouse new interest in juvenile reading. Behind it are all the great organizations which seek the welfare of the boy and girl—the Boy Scouts of America, the Girl Scouts, the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A. and every library and school in the country.

—So, beginning Monday, opening day of Children's Book Week, and continuing until Saturday, the MEIER & FRANK Book Shop will be especially devoted to children and children's books.

Miss Millard, Children's Supervisor of the Public Library, will be here all Monday and Thursday afternoons. She will be glad to consult with puzzled parents, aunts, uncles, cousins, as to what books Jimmy and Ethel want and should read.

Miss Millard also will give informal talks about the different types of books for the child's library and will illustrate by books both in inexpensive and fine editions taken from the shelves of the Book Shop.

It is a wonderful opportunity for the Christmas shopper to make a great success of her or his book gifts for children, because Miss Millard knows what children of all ages most appreciate.

LIST I: Children's New Books and New Editions of Old Favorites

Miss Millard's Message
From the Children's Room in the Portland Library
Written Especially for This Announcement:
At this time of the year plans for the children's Christmas are forming and there are few presents which are of more lasting value to a boy or girl than a good book.

The building up of the home library is an essential aid in the development of literary taste and only books worth reading twice should be bought for it. Books which children own are read and re-read many times and are always a treasured possession.

If you want your child to become a book lover give him books to love—while your child is young there should be a golden staircase started up which he may climb, joining each year delightful groups of life-long friends.

The lists which will appear on this page during the week will serve as guides for those not familiar with literature for children.
