

DE VALERA IS TO BE HERE THIS WEEK

Irish Nationalist Leader Is Scheduled to Speak.

CAREER IS REVIEWED

Liam Mellows, Styled Commandant of Republican Army, Gives History of "President."

Preparations are practically completed for the reception of Eamon de Valera, Irish nationalist leader, who has become known as "president of the Irish republic."

A comprehensive history of De Valera's career is contained in a press matter prepared by Liam Mellows, styled a member of the Irish parliament and commander of the Irish republican army, close personal friend and comrade of De Valera.

"Eamon de Valera, president of the Irish republic," says Liam Mellows, "is the direct representative of the Irish nation as determined by the people."

"President De Valera has undertaken this journey in the name of his government. The selection of the chief representative of the nation for this mission is a matter of the highest importance in a conspicuous manner, the esteem in which the Irish people hold the people of America."

"When the Easter week insurrection took place in 1916 De Valera was engaged in research in the field of mathematics (a powerful space calculus, the invention of an Irishman, Sir William Rowan Hamilton, called quaternions) under the directorship of Dr. Conway N. U. L. at the National University."

"During the insurrection of Easter week, 1916, President De Valera was in command of the Rinders-Mount street area—Dublin, which he held with his battalion. Here, with little more than 100 men, he withstood the entire force of British divisions and the English army, which marched with artillery on the city of Dublin, from Kingstown to Hamlet's Cross, and still unshaken when he received the order of his commander-in-chief, Padraig Pearse."

"When he surrendered, De Valera was tried by court-martial and sentenced to be hanged. On the eve of the rising tide of public indignation against the execution the sentence was commuted to penal servitude for life."

"After a long fight for freedom, continues the chronicle by Mellows, the Irish leader Peadar Kirby, who had been chosen by unanimous vote to represent East Clare in the house of commons, was arrested and deported, being again arrested in Lincoln prison, later escaping, to seek hiding in Ireland, where he drew up an indictment against England, for presentation at the peace conference."

"President de Valera," concludes his biographer, "having taken his work in Ireland, decided, with the approval of his cabinet, to come to America to meet the cabinet of the United States before this great republic. He has unbounded confidence in the American people, and is confident that America will insist upon the realization of the aims for which she entered the war, particularly the right of nations to determine for themselves the form of government under which they shall live."

Dr. Andrew C. Smith has been chosen chairman for Oregon for the De Valera reception, accepting the post upon receipt of telegrams from Frank P. Walsh, who urged him to take charge of the welcome of the Irish leader in Portland.

Frank J. Lonergan has been named as general secretary of the reception committee. The following citizens from the state have agreed to work in Portland, were on Wednesday named as vice-presidents of the committee: Bernard Daly, Lakewood; J. H. Pierre, La Grande; A. A. D'Arcy, Salem; Mr. Dooley, Albany; Dr. Donnelly, Mount Angel; Frank McMenamin, Hesperia; T. W. Sullivan, Oregon City; Pat Gallagher, Ontario; Hugh O'Kane, Bend; Frank Davies, Salem; Thomas Brown, C. P. Lonergan, Pendleton; Sam Dolan, Corvallis; Henry Lyons, Albany; W. P. O'Brien, Astoria; Hugh McLain, Marshfield.

WOUNDED OREGONIAN OPERATES ON SELF

Captain Griffith of Dufur Rescued on Battlefield.

BRITISH CROSS GRANTED

Officer Unable to Bow Before King George Because of "Kink" in Back—Service Is Long.

TACOMA, Wash., Nov. 8.—(Special.)—To receive a wound and operate on it alone on the battlefield does not present half as much concern as does the ceremony of being vested with the British military cross by his Majesty King George V. Captain Griffith, who received his discharge at Camp Lewis this week to go to his home at Dufur, Ore. The captain, who saw 18 months' service on the active fronts in France and Belgium, was in service after his return from France and recently was surgeon of the officers' ward at the Camp Lewis base hospital.

Captain Griffith had "hobnobbed" with the prince of Wales in the active service in France. Clashed hands with King Albert of Belgium. He found General Mangin, the French defender, a staunch friend, but he spoke to King George, amid royal surroundings, although he had been coached to say those words.

Wound Prevents Bowing. He just talked to the king in the democratic American way and didn't even bow when the investiture was completed, but his neglect of this formality was the fault of the flesh, not the heart, for a piece of high explosive killed and dented the crown and bending low as a courtesy was one thing he could not do.

The university should lead the state in all fields of knowledge, but especially in research work, declared Dr. Warren D. Smith, professor of geology, who is on the committee with Dr. Conklin. It should not, in Dr. Smith's opinion, wait for instructions from the state. "People outside of Oregon," he said, "are not extraordinarily interested in college athletics, but their attention is attracted to university activities likely to affect their interests."

The university has been hampered by lack of equipment and time for research, financial aid has been sought from the national research council at Washington. Oregon is not up to standard in research, although much has been done in several departments in spite of handicaps, but it is hoped that the necessary funds may be obtained to carry on the work in a more thorough manner.

Research work is the foundation of invention and of successful, live teaching," concluded Dr. Smith. "Some of the time and some of the knowledge gained may not be used until years afterward. One way to increase the wealth of the state and, in time, support of the university, is to discover new resources or cheaper processes for utilizing what we have."

WALRUS SEASON ASKED

White Men in Power Boats Said to Be Taking Eskimo Food.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 8.—Closed season for walrus should be declared by the United States government in the Arctic, according to W. E. Van Vailin, who has returned to Seattle after spending nearly three years at Point Barrow, the "corner of the continent," searching for Eskimo relics and history for the University of Pennsylvania.

White men in power boats are killing a large number of walrus, making it impossible for the Eskimo to obtain enough for food, Mr. Van Vailin said.
