

J. H. DOBBIN ELECTED WOOLGROWER CHIEF

Joseph Man Now President of State Association.

ANNUAL CONVENTION ENDS

Meeting at North Portland Stockyards Declared One of the Best Ever Held in Oregon.

Jay H. Dobbin of Joseph was elected president of the Oregon Woolgrowers' association at the closing session of the annual convention Friday at the Union stockyards exchange building. Charles C. Berkeley of Hay Creek was elected vice-president, and Max Hoke of Entropy secretary. W. B. Barrett of Heppner retired as president, and C. A. Minor of Heppner as vice-president.

The convention was declared by the sheepgrowers to have been the most successful held in many years, and reviewing the season just closed it was declared in resolutions adopted that the business of the organization had been conducted in the most like and economical manner. Thanks were conveyed to the secretary and to those who contributed to the success of the convention, among them G. A. Pearson, manager of the Portland Union stockyards, for the first time, on a par with western factories.

The woolgrowers see in the changes that have come in industrial conditions throughout the country hope for the creation of new woolen mill industries on the Pacific coast, through the operation of increased wage schedules that have placed the eastern manufacturers, for the first time, on a par with western factories.

The Pacific International livestock show has demonstrated its effectiveness in bringing together for exhibition purposes the best thoroughbred stock in the country. Support was pledged to the end that the raising of livestock in the northwest may be raised to its highest standard. In harmony with the purpose of improving livestock the annual ram sale at Salt Lake City was commended. The National Woolgrower was praised for its endorsement as the best publication of its kind in the United States.

ART CONTEST IS PLANNED

AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF ARCHITECTS TO GIVE PRIZE.

University of Oregon Latest Institution to Enter Association of Architecture Schools.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Nov. 22.—(Special.)—Ella F. Lawrence, dean of the school of architecture of the University of Oregon, has returned from a meeting in New York of the educational committee of the American Institute of Architects, of which she is a member. In connection with the association of American colleges, the institute, Dean Lawrence reports, has decided to make a contest in art. A medal, with a substantial cash prize, is to be offered to the essays who make the best presentation from the standpoint of aesthetics, of the appreciation of art as seen by the student. This essay is to be the preamble of a book to contain articles on various topics in art by specialists in the subjects. There is now, Dean Lawrence says, no adequate textbook of this kind. Details of the contest, which will be open to entries from all parts of the country, are yet to be announced.

INSURANCE PLAN CARRIES

LOYAL LEGION OF LOGGERS ADOPTS BENEFIT PROJECT.

Directors Adjourn Without Taking Action on Wage Scale Because of Lack of Time. Adoption of the insurance programme, which has been under study for several months by the board of directors of the Loyal Legion of Loggers and Lumbermen was the feature of yesterday's session which brought to a close one of the most important meetings of the directors ever held. During the session vigorous resolutions for Americanism were adopted and the I. W. W. were denounced and employers asked not to employ any members of the organization. The session closed at 12:30 o'clock yesterday, adjourning until the last Tuesday in January without taking up the wage scale problem through lack of time. The new insurance programme will provide sickness and accident insurance for men in such cases as are not covered under the state industrial accident laws. Payment of $2.50 per day will be made to men during such time as they are unable to work. It is hoped to keep the cost of the insurance to $1.50 per month per man, and the insurance will be made optional with all employees, being available, however, only to members of the legion. A committee to get the insurance project under way was appointed, consisting of the president, the secretary-manager, Dr. T. Tharaldsen, sanitation officer; E. D. Kingsley, representing the employers, and W. D. Smith, representing the employees.
