The work of the term covers the eight consecutive Wednesday evenings from January 21 to March 10. Each session will be divided into three periods. A strict time schedule will be followed. During the first period, from 7:30 to 8:20, five classes are to be in session: The teaching val-ues of the Old Testament, the New Testament church in its relation to modern life, graded missionary education in the church school, the princi-ples of teaching, the unfolding life. The second period is to be a 20-minute assembly for the entire school. Following the dean's "five minutes," the various classes in turn will give 15-minute demonstrations of their work. For example, the class in Old Testament may present a lesson in Biblical geography; the class in missionary education, a dramatization; the class in boyhood, a demonstration of an organized young people's department in session; the class in music leadership, a demonstration of song direction.

The third period, from 8:40 to 9:30, is to have five courses: Missionary education of little children, the teaching of juniors, the four-fold develop nt of young manhood, the adult ision organized for service, music
