CHECKS SUGGESTED ON ACCIDENT FUND Committee Advises Governor Some Improvement Needed. CHARGES NOT UPHELD Recent Reforms in Procedure Are Approved, but Further Checks on Delinquents Proposed.

SALEM, Or., Jan. 10.—(Special.)—Further improvement in the system employed by the state industrial accident commission in keeping check on all accounts with firms who are paying into the accident fund under the workmen's compensation act in order that financial losses from this source may be reduced to the minimum, and the recommendation that the governor appoint a committee of three members, one to represent the employers, one the employees and one the public, to meet semi-annually to review the administration of the law by the commission, investigate complaints and to make such recommendations as may be deemed advisable, were the high lights in the report filed here today by the committee of the governor appointed last July to investigate the affairs of the accident commission.

System Now Improved. It was found, according to the report, that until recent months the accident commission kept no accurate check on its approximately 11,000 accounts with firms who were paying into the fund, and that because of this system the commission had no knowledge of whether any firm was delinquent in its payments. It was also found by the commission that the period between the time the workmen were injured and the time of receiving compensation was too great, that improvement was suggested.

national service, so that the workman or employer may understand how to use the law, and which might be made compulsory. It is also of vital interest to the workman that he know where the concern which employs him is in default, since under such circumstances he has the right of suit. The situation of delinquent accounts would have an undoubted salutary effect, and such elimination can be accomplished if delinquency is given publicity.

Wherefore, in order that the employees of any concern that is under the compensation act may know whether their employer is in good standing or delinquent in the premium due from him, we recommend that the commission in either event shall supply the employer with a certificate or other evidence of his standing, which shall be sent to such employer each and every month, and that he place it in a conspicuous place in his plant for the information of his employees.
