

NAVAL PROGRAMME PUT UP TO SENATE

Building Plans Hang on Action on Treaty.

DANIELS PRESENTS VIEWS

Satisfaction With Moderate Expenditure, or Rejection With an Enormous One, Alternatives.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 6.—Three provisional naval building programmes, dependent on senate action on the peace treaty, were laid before the house naval committee today by Secretary Daniels.

The United States ratified the treaty and became a member of the league of nations, Mr. Daniels said, he would recommend new construction only to "round out" the fleet now built or building, if the senate ratified the treaty and the United States definitely decided not to join the league of nations, he said he would urge duplication of the three-year programme of 1916, with some modification, with a view to making the fleet "incomparably" the greatest in the world.

In case the senate took no final action on the treaty the secretary said he would present a 49-ship programme for construction as rapidly as possible, in order that the United States might not lose ground in competitive naval building.

Last Course Costly One.
Secretary Daniels told the committee it must choose between the three proposals. The 49-ship programme, he said, would cost about $195,000,000. Declaring that aircraft would never be obsolete, the secretary added that aviation was "essentially an integral part of the fleet." Civil aviation should be entirely divorced from the military and naval branches, he said.

Included in the tentative three-year programme were 10 dreadnaughts and six battle cruisers, but Mr. Daniels added that he would ask appropriations for the first year for only two battleships and one battle cruiser. In addition the programme would include for the three years 20 light cruisers and a large number of smaller vessels. The 49-ship programme included two dreadnaughts and one battle cruiser or prompt construction with a large programme of cruisers and auxiliaries, while his recommendations would be to build one battle cruiser, one auxiliary and one auxiliary.

Plan Made for League.
Chairman Butler said later Sir Auckland Geddes, new British ambassador to the United States, had been quoted as saying that the British navy would not be larger than that of the United States, but Mr. Daniels said Great Britain was "encouraging its colonies to build naval vessels."

Mr. Daniels insisted that he would urge construction of a much larger fleet, so long as the status quo remained.

Replying to suggestions of Chairman Butler that the United States should not join the league of nations on the sea so long "as an agreement with Great Britain continued," the naval secretary said he believed only a league of nations could give the force strong enough to enforce its edicts could insure safety for the United States.

TRAFFIC MEN RETURNING

Agents of Various Lines Opening Offices in Portland.

W. C. McBride, for many years prior to federal control of the railroads general agent of the Denver & Rio Grande at Portland, has been reappointed to the post after quitting railroad work, when the lines were taken over in preference to leaving Portland, he engaged in the automobile business.

E. B. Duffy, reappointed commercial freight agent, having remained with the company in the purchasing department, has opened offices at 415 Falling building. A chief clerk will be appointed to complete the staff of the office. The Western Pacific is also represented in this field by the same agency.

R. W. Foster, general agent of the Burlington, has opened an office for that company in the Yeon building and will soon have his official staff organized.

Jack McLaughlin, general agent for the Illinois Central, is expected to arrive today. His office probably will be in the Spalding building.

ALIBI OF TWINS FAILS

and by federal agents several weeks ago. He ordered L. A. Dusterhoff, but procured his release by throwing the blame on the shoulders of his brother, L. A. Dusterhoff. And now L. A. is in the toils and swears that it is Ed whom the federal operatives are seeking.

But Commissioner Drake announced he would take no chances with the twins. He ordered L. A. Dusterhoff held to the grand jury as a moonshiner under $1000 bail, and it will be up to L. A. to prove either it was Ed who operated the still, or, perhaps, in the last extremity, swear that he is Ed and that L. A. is the missing twin.

Assistant United States Attorney Fiegel, who has handled the series of investigations against the twins, said every effort would be made to locate Ed before L. A.'s trial is ready. So far as is known both brothers have never appeared in the courtroom at the same time, although both have been under arrest, frequently as alleged moonshiners.

Twin Brother L. A. Dusterhoff was released from custody under $1000 bail pending another investigation of his alleged distillery operations by the next federal grand jury.

The brothers have also been arrested several times in Seattle, and officials in the sound metropolis report the same inability to fasten any offense against either because of the same conditions which exist in Portland. As is the case here, one twin invariably blames the offense upon the other, while the twin who is branded as the guilty one by the other twin always manages to be conveniently missing.

ATTORNEY IS DISBARRED

THOMAS T. KERL ADMITS BEING PINED FOR SEDITION.

Court Declines to Entertain Plea That No Moral Turpitude Involved in Crime.

BOISE, Idaho, March 6.—(Special.)—Thomas T. Kerl, a wealthy attorney of Coeur d'Alene, at one time a candidate for congressman from this state, was today disbarred from practicing law in the state of Idaho, by order of the state supreme court.

Kerl was made a defendant some time ago in a sensational divorce trial at Coeur d'Alene, December 12, 1918, he was convicted in the federal district court at Omaha on the charge of sedition and was fined $2000.

The proceedings in Idaho against him were instituted by O. O. Haga of Boise, chairman of the grievance committee of the Idaho Bar association. The point made in the complaint was that Kerl had been convicted of a crime involving moral turpitude. Kerl denied the moral turpitude but admitted his conviction.

The supreme court was unanimous in its decision. Chief Justice Morgan wrote the opinion. He held the purpose of disbarment is not to punish the attorney, but to protect the public. He said Kerl had been convicted of a crime involving moral turpitude and the question the court had to decide was whether he was convicted of a crime involving moral turpitude.

HUMAN FRAGMENTS FOUND BY CHILDREN

Right Arm and Thigh Picked Up in Rose City Park.

PIECES WELL PRESERVED

Administrator of Descamps Estate Almost Certain Beaver-ton Rancher Murdered.

A human right arm and thigh, belonging undoubtedly to the same body, which have been picked up in Sullivan's gulch and in Kenton, were found yesterday afternoon on East Eighth street between Failing and Belmont streets in Rose City park.

The arm was declared by Hector Moulal, administrator of the estate of Ernest Descamps, missing Beaver-ton rancher and former proprietor of a North End establishment, to be very like the arm of Descamps. Mr. Moulal said that after seeing the arm there was no doubt in his mind that Descamps was the man who had apparently been the victim of a brutal murder.

There were no marks on it which could be used for identification. Mr. Moulal, however, said that the hair, as well as the shape and size were similar to that of Descamps.

The portions of the human body were found lying in a clump of bushes by Virginia and Beatrice Winchell, young daughters of George C. Winchell, 829 Eightieth street, about 3:30 yesterday afternoon. Mr. Winchell immediately notifying the police station and Inspector Schulpus was dispatched to the scene. Deputy Coroner Leo Goetsch also went out and took charge of the remains.

Pieces Wrapped in the Oregonian.
The pieces had been wrapped in copies of The Oregonian of February 2, being the same date as papers used in wrapping other pieces found. Dogs or other animals, however, had apparently been at the bundles and had torn most of the paper away.

The pieces bore evidence of having been hacked or cut apart with some dull instrument. An unsuccessful effort had apparently been made to cut the arm at the elbow, but it still hung together by the ligaments. The arm and thigh were still well preserved. They were taken to the coroner's office.

It was on Saturday, February 7, that the first remains of the body were found in Sullivan's gulch. Several days later other portions of the body were discovered in Kenton, concealed in some bushes.

Efforts of inspectors and police to unravel the mystery have so far been without result.

The left arm of Descamps had a large tattoo on the upper arm, according to Mr. Moulal. Consequently if that member could be found the question of whether the murdered man was Descamps could be determined beyond question. The discovery of the hands also would possibly lead to an identification. Mr. Moulal said yesterday, as Descamps' hands were particularly heavy and strong.

Another Discovery Reported.
The discovery of a human hand and foot along the south side of Oaks park was reported to the police yesterday by Edgar Capell, 523 Malden avenue, who was playing with some other boys in that vicinity. The boy said, however, that a companion kicked the remains into a hole full of water.

Deputy Coroner Goetsch and Inspector Schulpus went out to the place but were unable to recover the remains.

The boys reported that the remains were in a bad state of decay and the authorities are of the opinion that they belonged to another body, the head of which was found in the vicinity a month ago. This man had apparently been a victim of drowning, but the head was in such a bad state of decay that no identification was ever made.

STABLE PRICES WANTED
Housing Problem in Chicago Is Thought Solved.

CHICAGO, March 6.—A campaign was begun today among building material men to stabilize prices on all materials used in home building for at least six months. A plea was made also for stabilization of wages. Only by such means could the housing problem be solved, said Edward Hines, head of a lumber company.

"I am sending out circulars to all my trades," Mr. Hines said, "moving them that the price of lumber will go no higher for six months, possibly a year. All lumber will be sold from now on at the present price level."

"I do not mean that it will not be sold lower, for it is possible we intend to reduce lists."

Thief Gets 30 Days.
Joe Moody got 30 days in jail on a charge of larceny yesterday when he appeared in municipal court. Moody was charged with the theft of three lamps belonging to Paul Vevitch and valued in the aggregate at $5. At the time of his arrest he also had a sack full of tools for the possession of which he could give no good account.
