OUR TROUBLES AND THE WAY OUT Every American should have been able to hear and take to himself the speech made by Frank A. Vanderlip at the Portland Chamber of Comless degree than the rest of the He showed the causes of these evils to be departures from basic principles of economic truth by governments, business men, been wrought up to a supreme nervof the coldest, straightest thinking that man ever did and to apply themselves intensely to those ordinary occupations which seem to be dreary drudgery after the excitement of

Mr. Vanderlip showed that we in and that, if we have sinned less, it was because the temptation was not so overpowering. We have multiplied several times the volume of currency, which is the representative of things produced, while since 1914 we have increased production only six per cent. To meet the financial exigencies caused by war, that the government might borrow cheaply. the secretary of the treasury induced the federal reserve board to fix a low discount rate, which stimulated issue of more currency when there was no increase of production on which to base it. The result is inflation, which has given us a 40-cent dollar, and he warns us that we may have the preference.

This poem was written in strict con-formity to the account of the incident as I had it from respeciable and trustworthy sources. It has since been the subject of a good deal of conflicting testinger, and a good deal of conflicting testingly, and the story was probably incorrect in some of its details. It is admitted by all that Barbara Freitchie was no inyth, but a worthy and highly esteemed gentlewoman, intensely loyal and a lister of the slavery rebellion, heiding her union fing macred and keeping it with her Bible: that when the Confederates helted before her home in their faces, and drove them out; and when General Burbaide's troops followed close upon Jackson's, she waved her flag and cheered them. It is stated that May Quantrell, a brave and loyal lady in another part of the city, did wave her flag in signt of the Confederates. It is possible to say, but it is a fact that impossible to say, but it is a fact that a week later Mr. Chase sent a letter to the director of the mint at Phila-delphia, in which he said: "No nation can be strong except in the strength of God, or safe except in his defense. read."-Harper's Magazine. While the 18th amendment was being ratified, state by state, no one, next to the brewers, showed such signs of panic as hotelkeepers, remarks the New York Post. One would have thought that their main business was serving drinks and that providing meals and beds was merely incidental or only a means of stimulating thirst, One pictured the hotelkeepers calculating the weeks between them and bankruptcy. If one were of a philosophical turn, there was a chance to meditate upon the vagaries of fate, which took an arrow aimed at the saloon and diverted it against the time-honored institution of the inn. Suddenly we hear from the hotelkeeper. But he is moaning no longer.
