WESTERN STATES PRODUCE FOURTH OF ENTIRE U. S. CROP.

Storage Facilities Crying Need to Prevent Waste, Say Experts of Government.

WASHINGTON. - Apple production WASHINGTON.—Apple production has increased enormously in the northwest since 1900. Last year Washington, Oregon and Idaho, with the help of Montana and Colorado, produced one-quarter of the total crop of the country. With new acreage coming into bearing, the department of agriculture says, it is likely that the northwest in a few years will be producing a much greater part of the country's total crop.

If big losses are to be avoided in the marketing of the apple crop of the northwest, government experts say, growers will be forced to give greater attention to equipping their properties with up-to-date storage bowers than they have heretofore. Deceased Connected With New last season, growers in the northwest were unable to move their apples to market and thousands of boxes of fruit were caught unprotected in the orchards by an early freeze, while other fruit remained on the trees and was frozen because there was no

A government specialist is now making his headquarters at Yakima, Wash., to personally assist growers who expect to build storage houses of storage houses tested during the last five years.
