of the party's affairs and that some consideration must be given to the chieftains from the provinces.

The statement by George Beckman of Rhode Island that he was not sure whether he was going to "a republican convention or a senatorial caucus" has been construed as a notice from the governors and state leaders that they will demand to be heard.

Judging by their degree of pre-convention activity, Wood, Lowden and Johnson might properly be designated the "big three." On one proposition their managers are fully agreed. They all claim victory. They differ on how it is to be achieved, or on what ballot it is to be, but they assure all inquirers there is no doubt about it.

All Managers Satisfied.
Seventy-two hours before Senator Lodge's gavel drops in the big coliseum, a composite talking machine record of the expressions of the managers would say: "We are perfectly satisfied with the situation. The strength of our candidate is steadily increasing."

The sentiment expressed on the street, presumably reflecting the views of the man up the tree, are as many and as varied as the number of candidates. One hears with the greatest degree of finality, "Lowden or a dark horse" and "Johnson after the third ballot" or "Wood after all the others have been eliminated."

Convention time brings to Chicago a small army of political writers who feel that by analyzing the cross currents in the muddy and turbulent stream which swirls about the hotel lobbies and in and out of the inner eaves of the campaign managers' offices, they can discern the course of the tide and predict with certainty to the folks back home what is going to happen.

Predictions Only Opinions.
Any predictions at this time are the results of analysis, deduction and opinion rather than information. If there is a single man in Chicago who knows what the republican national convention is going to do, he hasn't appeared with any proof of his knowledge.

One straw which would show the way the wind blows would be a caucus of unattached delegates. About the only place in Chicago large enough in which to hold it is the Coliseum itself, and the indications are that the first caucus of unattached ones will be held there some day next week when preliminary business having been disposed of, the clerk begins to call the roll.

Under-Surface Activity Noted.
A seaker after information made it a point today to ask each of the personal managers what the week of preliminary and brought forth. They all gave the same answer. It was: "There are some things going on under the surface, but they haven't been disclosed yet."

And, according to the best indications, what has been going on has been an attempt to get all the delegates on a harmonious platform and at the same time estimate the real strength and staying qualities of the various forces so that plans might be made accordingly.
Monday and Tuesday and probably Wednesday will be exhibition days at convention hall. Organizations will have to be perfect and while the delegates are being entertained by the big brass band up in the balcony and by keynote speeches and their orators and entertainers the party has, the resolutions committee, working night and day at one of the hotels, will be striving to bring out the best of an acceptable agreement and the various whips will have their scouts out reading up on the unattached delegates.

Delegation Claims Conflict.
They will also be keeping a close eye on the instructed delegations to make sure they do not break away. In some cases ready-made platforms, Wood and Lowden forces among themselves are claiming the same delegation.

The adjournment that follows the second or third ballot probably will find the convention ready to go over the top and the next day will be the zero hour. That will be the time to be prepared for surprises. By then it is expected the large delegations from the most populous states will have assessed the strength of the candidates, the sticking quality of their delegations, and be ready to come in with an agreement among themselves on the basis of the candidates or possibly a dark horse, who can be put over.

Swirl Gathers Momentum.
Tonight while the boards of strategy are poring over their plans and the fighting forces are undergoing a last minute inspection, the convention swirl around the hotels and on the streets is gathering momentum. The delegates and visitors are pouring in on every train. Equipped with the cheer leaders, song leaders and almost every other contrivance, human and otherwise, that is likely to appeal to the emotions of 10,000 people, they hope at the psychological moment they will be the center of a winning wave.

Old-time convention habits are their heads at the modern ideas that go nowadays with boosting a presidential boom. There used to be spellbinders, flag wavers and torchlight parades. Now there are brigades of ballad singers, piano players, rhymer, glad-handers, social service workers and any number of persons who might be found desirable under Webster's definition of factotum extraordinary.

Service Stations Offered.
A presidential candidate at this convention comes equipped with a service station. If Mr. Delegate can't make a good job out of his butterfly boat, a pretty lady will deftly help him out and probably vamp him a bit in the operation, finishing up by putting a "somebody for president" button on his coat lapel. The service department will help Mrs. Delegate find a good room or pick out a new hat—it will do anything but give the real "down" on who is going to be nominated.

In these days when everybody has something to say about the big one of living an observer at a convention is constrained to ruminate on the

Another Week of Price Reductions on Chesterfield Suits and Overcoats

It was imperative that we advance the prices over last week's low price level. Still the reductions for the coming week afford the Clothes Buying Public an opportunity to buy good clothes mighty cheap, in view of the fact that we must pay 25 per cent more for clothing of equal value to replace stock sold. Through buying at these prices now you will be able to save a lot of money on the clothing you'll need now or for fall. We urge you for your welfare, buy now, you will thank us later.

high cost of being pleasant to delegates. There are free automobiles for everybody, free information, free helps, there would probably be free drinks if congress had intervened and the candor and honesty which should characterize the efforts of a reporter forbid that this dispatch should give an impression that there are not some of these. About once an hour a shower of canned interviews and statements comes out of the headquarters of every candidate and if there is a paper shortage it doesn't exist in the convention arena.

Candidates Meet Reporters.
But the candidates themselves relieve the press agents by meeting the assembled newspaper correspondents twice a day, answering questions, and making statements first hand.
With the arrival tomorrow of Senator Borah plans for the Johnson rally on Monday night are completed. An overflow meeting, probably will be held in the street, as there are more requests for tickets than there are seats in the theater.
A petition from Sanfield MacDonald, a Johnson leader in Oregon, asking the national committee to unseat Wallace McCamant, one of Oregon's delegates, was received and filed without action. No credentials for a substitute delegate accompanied the petition, which declares that McCamant "obtained his election by fraud" and "refused to obey the mandate of the republican party, whose servant he is under the law."
McCamant following his election as delegate, announced that he would not vote for Senator Johnson, although in his campaign he carried the Oregon preferential primary.
McCamant is quoted.
MacDonald's petition quotes from a pre-election statement in which McCamant is alleged to have declared he would abide by the result of the primary.
Governor Lowden has recovered from the illness which confined him to his rooms. Today he advised his campaign managers he would remain in Chicago so long as his presence was needed. It is probable that he will not return to Springfield until the middle of the week or later.
With the arrival of the Massachusetts delegation tomorrow, headquarters for Governor Coolidge will be opened by James B. Reynolds, ex-secretary of the republican national committee.
"Governor Coolidge is not seeking the presidency," said Mr. Reynolds. "He has said that he is not a candidate but his friends and admirers everywhere have insisted upon working in his behalf."
Governor Coolidge is neither a dark horse candidate nor a compromise candidate.
Edward Randolph Wood of Philadelphia, who polled 250,000 votes in the Pennsylvania primary, in which he was the only candidate whose name appeared upon the republican ballot, announced today that Judge Albert Sames of Douglas, Ark., would place him in nomination and that a delegate from Texas would second it.
Although Mr. Wood carried the Pennsylvania primary, the delegation from the state declined to nominate him, and decided to cast its vote for Governor Sprague, who was not a contender in the primary.
Johnson Not to Leave.
Senator Johnson announced that he had no intention of leaving Chicago during the convention. "I will be on hand every minute of the time and I hope to make my best record," said the senator. "I am growing happier and more hopeful with the passing of the hours."
When asked concerning his idea of the length of convention, Senator Johnson said he saw no obstacle that would prevent the finish by Saturday night. The only thing that he anticipates in the platform and the only plank in the platform that there probably will be a fight on is that concerning the attitude of the convention, on the league of nations. I do not anticipate that that will last long."

League Question Dodged.
When asked if he would accept the nomination with a platform endorsing the league of nations covenant with reservations, Senator Johnson said: "I will cross that bridge when I come to it."
It was explained to the senator that during his morning conference he was understood to have said that he would accept the nomination on a platform containing the endorsement of the league of nations covenant, but with the lodge reservations attached. His answer was: "I will cross that bridge when I come to it."

A platform plank pledging the party to a constitutional amendment limiting the president to one term of four or six years will be offered to the resolutions committee by Governor Lowden. The plank prepared by the governor also proposes that cabinet officers who seek the presidency must first resign from the cabinet.
A president, the governor said today, could accomplish more good in one four-year term, if he were not considering political expediency and desiring to win re-election, than in eight years under the present system. There would be no objection, he added, to an ex-president seeking a second term after being out of office a term or longer, as there could be no suspicion that a political machine will have to do things being used to perpetuate his administration.

Single Term Held Desirable.
A single term for the president was particularly desirable at this time, the governor said, for the reason that "the man elected this year, if he does his duty, will have to do things unpopular with the people in politics and others."
Governor Lowden made no comment on Senator G. H. Moses' charges that the republican national committee was using a "steam roller" in its behalf.
General Wood expressed himself as being thoroughly satisfied with the situation of the week or later.
"We have a hard working, harmonious staff and reports are good," he said. "I will stay here until Monday night and then retire to a near but invisible spot."

reorganization of the republican party in the "solid south."
Despite the arguments of the negro contestants, the committee seated all the so-called regular or organization delegates from both Texas and Virginia.
The Wood forces won two more votes when the committee seated Roscoe Pickett and W. Y. Gilliam from the ninth Georgia district and rejected the contest of those endorsed by Henry Lincoln Johnson. The committee's action left the Georgia delegation with four delegates favoring Wood and 12 unpledged but regarded as supporters of Lowden.
Women Defy Smoke Clouds.
Women sat in the deliberations of the republican national committee today, taking part for the first time in making convention decisions. They sat holding proxies of the national committeeman from their home states, Kansas, Missouri and Tennessee.
Apparently taking a hearty interest in their new-found privilege, the women sat placidly in the clouds of tobacco smoke, closely following the arguments and voting in the decisions.
The probability that Wood leaders will carry several delegate contests to the credentials committee was announced by Major-General Leonard Wood today.
"I do not know what contests will be appealed to the credentials committee," said General Wood. "But there probably will be a number of them."

General Wood said that there was no talk among the Wood forces of any coalition with the Johnson campaign in any way.
Asked whether he considered his statement last night as a repudiation of the statement of Senator Moses, General Wood said:

"I am not repudiating anything. Senator Moses issued his statement and I issued mine. They stand as separate statements. Senator Moses issued his statement for himself and I issued mine for myself, but I have not repudiated in connection with either statement."

TIED LOOKING WOMEN
Some women always wear a worn, tired look. It is the outward sign of nervousness, neurasthenia, or perhaps with its characteristic symptoms of worry, headache and sleeplessness.
Overwork, grief, undue excitement, the late hours and nervous strain of strenuous social season, lack of outdoor exercise, any or all of these may be responsible for the trouble, but the most common cause at this season of the year is the grip.
Whatever the cause, if you feel the need of more strength try the great non-alcoholic tonic, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. As the nerves get their nourishment from the blood the treatment must be directed towards the diet and proper regulation of the diet have proven to be the greatest benefit in many cases of neurasthenia. A tendency to anemia, or bloodlessness, shown by most neurasthenic patients, is also corrected by these tonic pills. Your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills or they will be sent by mail on receipt of price, 60 cents per box by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. Write for the free booklet, "Diseases of the Nervous System," with a special chapter on neurasthenia.—Adv.
