CRACK HORSES COMING

Six Daily Cards Announced for Shrine Week to Be Held on Multnomah Field.

For the first time in the northwest... Wednesday afternoon next will have the pleasure of seeing the Grafton long jump, originated by R. Worcester Smith, master of bounds of the Grafton Country club.

Friday night's show will have many spectacular and sporty events, paramount among which will be the Corinthian, where the riders will follow a course and go through a series of jumps laid out by the manager, the exact nature of the stunts the riders will be called upon to perform not being announced until the start of the game.

Saturday night will also be interesting. The winners of the classes shown during the earlier part of the week will be judged and championship prizes awarded. The show will open on Monday evening at Multnomah field, and a programme will be staged each evening of the week except Wednesday, when there will be no show on account of the Shrine parade that evening.

or in any way distracting his attention from the minutiae of his duties as helmsman. "There could be nothing more out of place on a racing yacht than an excitable, unstrung woman. I am always perfectly calm and confident and enjoy thoroughly. "During my first experience in yacht sailing I used to get a bit perturbed and wrought up and I suppose there will never again be anything so thrilling as the first one of all, when we were racing against seven-ton affair—but that was long ago. Mrs. Burton has full confidence in the speed of the latest Shamrock, which is unlike any yacht that has ever sailed for the America's trophy. "It is not in the least like any other yacht that was ever made," she admitted, "but my husband and I believe it invincible any one counting on winning that coveted mug this time."

RUTH DRAWS HUGE CROWDS
Polo Ground Records When Long Hits Are Made.

"Biggest" crowds and longest hits by Babe Ruth are becoming common at the Polo Grounds. The attendance at the Polo Grounds, May 31, was 35,688, which is 88 more than the turnstiles rang up two weeks ago when the Cleveland Indians were the attraction in a Sunday game. The Washington club was paid for nearly 50,000 persons on the same day, the morning attendance being 10,445. This is a record for any one day at the Polo Grounds. Boston still holds the record for a single game, with 75,000 persons in morning and afternoon games. Exciting parks against the Braves on Labor Day, 1914.

U. S. TENNIS RATES HIGH
JOHNSTON CROWNED GREAT-EST PLAYER IN WORLD.

British Ratings Award America Four Places Among First Few Living Experts.

NEW YORK, June 19.—William M. Johnston, the national lawn tennis champion, is now crowned as the greatest player in the world.

For the first time since the beginning of the war a world ranking of players has been set on foot, with Johnston at the tip top. William T. Tilden 2d is No. 2; Norris Williams No. 3, and Willis E. Davis No. 4. The fact that the team of American players in quest of the Davis cup, neither is Marty McGuigan going to the selections made by the international committee of this country.

As the list stands it is as follows: No. 1—William M. Johnston, United States. No. 2—Gerald L. Patterson, Australia. No. 3—Andre H. Gobert, France. No. 4—Willis E. Davis, United States. No. 5—Norman E. Brooks, Australia. No. 6—Alicorn R. F. Kingscott, Great Britain. No. 7—R. Norris Williams 2d, United States. No. 8—P. M. Dawson, Great Britain. No. 9—Willis E. Davis, United States. The honors accorded the United States and especially its significance, from an international point of view, is appreciated by the officers of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, who have been very busy in addressing to the Right Hon. Lord Desborough of Taplow, president of the International Lawn Tennis Federation, the keen satisfaction of the lawn tennis lovers of this country in sending to the championships a group of players to the championships at Wimbledon and the international contests for the cup.

After the matter to Lord Desborough it is made plain that the decision to send its team abroad was based upon the amount of money that Johnston would have requested preliminary ties to be played here. Mr. Myrick then writes: "For far greater significance in the discussion of the Davis cup, it is our belief both in the important influence of international tennis upon the United States and the fact that the players of the United States might be able to render the game at present by doing everything within their power to stimulate international competition."

NOTED MERMAID IS HERE
MRS. RUTH STACKER TO MAKE PORTLAND HER HOME.

Special Aquatic Stories Will Be Written for The Oregonian by ex-Honolulu Maid.

Portland's colony of world-famous swimmers and divers was reinforced this week by the arrival of Mrs. Ruth Stacker, Honolulu, who will make Portland her home and swim for the Multnomah Amateur Athletic club.

The Oregonian is pleased to announce the addition of this youthful water nymph to its staff of writers. Mrs. Stacker is a champion swimmer and aquatic topics for The Oregonian during the coming summer.

In 1912, as a mere child, Mrs. Stacker set a new world's mark in the 30-yard dash, 17-1/2 seconds, in a match race with Terie Desch, then holder of the American record, and Mrs. Stacker's world's record still stands despite the efforts that have been made at various times by Miss Frances Cowells, Dorothy Burras and others to shatter it.

Mrs. Stacker also established a world's record of 31 seconds for the 50-yard dash in 1913, but this record since has been broken by Fannie Middleton and Bill Stumpf, who not only have broken the record, but also made Mrs. Stacker's record a mere thing of the past.

Soon after the war broke out Mrs. Stacker entered the service of the United States navy and is credited with having been the first woman athletic director in the navy. She was stationed at the Mare Island navy yard, where she was in charge of the athletics for the yeomanettes.

English Grant Tennis Danger. English opinion of the chances of American tennis players who will compete in the championship at Wimbledon in July is more favorable to their success in the latter than in the former event. Regarding the results of the American invasion as they may affect Gerald Patterson's hold upon the singles championship, a consensus of the views of London tennis critics is as follows: "American invaders, not even McLaughlin, have never given quite of their best at Wimbledon. One is not at all disposed to predict an American-Australian challenge round about in England. The Davis cup is far more likely to go to Amer-

RODGERS RETAINS HELM
LEWIS MOREING SETS AT REST ALL SENATOR RUMORS.

Club Owner Lets Critics Know He Means to Run His Gang to Suit Himself Alone.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., June 19.—"Raw Meat" Bill Rodgers is to remain skipper of the Senators. Lewis Moreing has spoken his mind and the Senators will sell out.

That's the sum and substance of the deft fling in the face of criticism directed against the Senators and everyone connected with the club. Moreing isn't going to be told how to run his ball club. He has made that plain. If Sacramento baseball fans believed that Rodgers erred, Moreing is going to stand behind him, and if the chatter gets any hotter, will quit the game and sell to interests more agreeable to the tastes of the cash customers.

Them's harsh sentiments, Gertie, but Lewis Moreing is not to be swayed. And while Moreing is on the subject of Rodgers and his pilot's system of running the club, several other rumors are set to rest.

Bill Rodgers is going to be the manager of the club, not nothing in the past has shaken his standing in the mind of Moreing. Walter Mallis is not going to be traded for a Seattle bat boy, neither is Marty McGuigan going to the Swishes in exchange for Bill Kenworthy, nor is Pete Compton to be traded to the Seals for Joe Connolly and Stump. All these rumors scattered to the four winds among fandom during the past two weeks are wrong.

Secondly, the Senators are progressing very well in the eyes of Moreing. He says there are only a few games between the cellar club and the first place team in the league, and the fans and press have very little to do when they comment on what has happened both on the field and in the transactions put through by the "board of strategy" of the club. Moreing says he does not wish to be told anything at all about his team, and when the people show they do not wish to support the club then he will sell it to some other city that does.

The deal in which Moreing Kopp became the property of Sacramento in exchange to the Seattle club for Roxy Middleton and Bill Stumpf is upheld by Moreing in the following statement: "We traded the two players for Kopp and the people have no reason to complain. It is our business what we do, and we don't have to have the public pass on deals which we are traded. Middleton would not have been a part of the deal simply because we were anticipating his release within a short time before he was traded. Middleton would not make our team or any team of the league the man Kopp would, and without Stumpf we could not have completed a trade."

First: In water, not above the shoulders, take a deep breath through the nose. Duck the head and shoulders under water and exhale through the mouth. Do this until it becomes easy and natural.

Second: Do as above, but open the eyes and look at the fingers, or at the Tacoma city club are expected to furnish the best exhibition of ball here this season tomorrow. The Aberdeen Round, Johnson, Gibeck, Carey and Foster.

When sufficient confidence has been gained, take hold of the edge of the tank or a raft or board of some sort, resting lightly with both hands, arms outstretched. Relax perfectly and let the feet come to the surface. The head rules the position in the water. By throwing the head slightly forward the feet will rise to the surface, and by throwing it back, they will again sink. Do not bend the knees.

Slowly start kicking the feet up and down, alternating. This movement is from the hips, not from the knees and up and down. Be sure that every muscle is relaxed and let the ankle have full play. The arm stroke is a simple one and may be practiced on land before trying in the water.

Bend from the waist, to give the body a horizontal position. Striking from the chest, reach forward (fingers closed, palms down) and down towards the knee, drawing the arm back to first position. Make this a circular movement and not one of angles. Alternate with both arms. Do this with both arms until the movement becomes natural before entering the water.

To put the strokes together, stand several feet from some stationary object to which you intend to swim. Reach out, starting the arm stroke. The feet will naturally rise, and kick just as you did in practice.

The main thing is to keep your head. Take a slow, easy stroke and pull hard. Keep the arms under the water. The next lesson will be to develop this stroke into the crawl stroke.

FEAR MUST BE MASTERED TO LEARN HOW TO SWIM

Ruth Stacker Explains How to Go About Learning Strokes After Confidence in Water Has Been Gained.

DOWN in the Hawaiian islands everyone swims with ease and grace of movement. Little black-skinned tad are taught to swim almost as soon as they learn to walk.

Else such world-champs as Kahana-moku, Kruger, Lane and Sunha would never have been developed. And swimming is no longer considered an art. Like walking, it is a natural activity, and one which should be mastered.

Portland affords everyone an opportunity to learn to swim, with natatoriums, public school tanks, clubs and the river. It is the little shaver in trunks that will take part in the Olympic games four years hence, and his stroke should be watched and developed now.

Fear is the biggest obstacle in the way of a beginner, so in this, the first of a series of six lessons on swimming, let us learn to master fear and gain that confidence necessary even before the first strokes are taken.

First: In water, not above the shoulders, take a deep breath through the nose. Duck the head and shoulders under water and exhale through the mouth. Do this until it becomes easy and natural.

The main thing is to keep your head. Take a slow, easy stroke and pull hard. Keep the arms under the water. The next lesson will be to develop this stroke into the crawl stroke.

Belgian Olympic Rowing Events May Be Seen From Trains.

ANTWERP, June 19.—The Belgian Olympic games committee is endeavoring to arrange for special trains for spectators to steam along the banks of the Brussels maritime canal during the progress of the rowing events of the seventh Olympiad.

While the contour of the lands about Antwerp is a most picturesque one, the starting point, and at Marley, the finish, provides something of a natural amphitheater for the spectators, the committee would like to utilize railway tracks for observation trains similar to those run at the regatta in America.

The rowing events, of 1000-meter races, are to be held August 27 to August 29 and will include single sculls, double sculls, boats without coxswain, pair-oared boats with coxswain, four-oared boats and eight-oared boats with coxswain. All the boats are to have outriggers.

That part of the canal selected for the race is about eight kilometers from Antwerp and there is very little current.
