TILLAMOOK MAN IS HALE AND HEARTY, THOUGH 97 YEARS OLD

Mr. Randall Born in 1823 Near Pittsburg and Has Lived Through 23 Full Four-Year Presidential Terms and Part of Two More.

Home of David George Randall, 3 Miles East of Tillamook.

WHERE you go over to Tillamook you might find the original of the picture published herewith sitting out in front of his residence, which is located three miles east of the Tillamook courthouse.

Mr. Randall is at present visiting in Portland, or rather he is here with his daughter, Mrs. Henry Olds, and her husband, who are temporarily living on the Lincoln road near the Standard Oil plant.

When I asked Mr. Randall how old he was when he left the Pittsburg neighborhood, he replied, "Big enough to fight with bear for a pig."

On reaching The Dalles in the fall of 1852 they crossed the north bank and came down as far as a point opposite the Sandy river, where they crossed to the south side and came down to the little hamlet of Portland.

He then undertook a new role and went to the Sutherland valley, on the Calapoos creek, and started a sawmill. In the spring of 1881 he went over to Tillamook, but returned to the valley near Lafayette, and farmed until 1888.
