

FOUR NEW BUILDINGS AND MANY CHANGES ON CAMPUS AWAIT UNIVERSITY STUDENTS

Larger Quarters for Different Schools Are Being Arranged and New Departments Added—Faculty Vacancies Partially Filled—Graduate, Sociology and Law Schools Without Deans.

View of U. of O. Campus From Kincaid Field.

THE growth of the University of Oregon will be amply proved to returning students next fall when they note the changes that have taken place during the summer...

Dr. John F. Bovard, formerly head of the department of zoology and pre-medical work at Oregon, will be dean of the new school of physical education.

Incorporated within this new school will be the department of social hygiene, which was established following a recent appropriation of the United States Interdepartmental social hygiene board of $10,000 to aid in the work.

New Courses Arranged. In addition the school of physical education will offer courses in sanitary hygiene, personal hygiene for both men and women, group hygiene, principles of physical training, including gymnasium work, playground supervision, emergencies, bandaging, home nursing and related subjects.

Dr. Bovard, dean of the school, is now in the east attending an extensive conference and engaging in a course of special study for directors of this work, arranged by the social hygiene board.

The campus is humming with activity, caused by the rush to complete new buildings before the opening of school in the fall.

Women's Dormitory Started. Ground has already been broken for the new women's dormitory, which will be ready by January, in time for the influx of women for the second term.

On the spot where formerly stood the Y. M. C. A. but is to be erected the new home of the school of commerce. Ground will be broken for the new structure immediately and pressure will be exerted to have the building completed and ready for occupancy by the second term.

Dean of the board of regents Colin V. Dymont was appointed to succeed Dean John Straub as the dean of the college of literature, science and arts.

Professor Dymont has been professor of journalism at the University of Oregon, executive secretary of the extension division in Portland, former head of the department of journalism at the University of Washington, newspaperman and Red Cross worker.

Another appointment recently made in that of Earl Kilpatrick, director of the extension division of the university. Mr. Kilpatrick has been manager of the college of literature and the American Red Cross, including Alaska, Idaho, Oregon and Washington.

The positions of Dean E. W. Hope of the school of law, Dr. J. Franklin Thomas of the school of forestry and Dean F. G. Young of the Graduate school, whose resignations were accepted at the last meeting of the board of regents, are yet to be filled.

College Holds State Charter for Granting Academic Degrees. Mount Angel college, founded and conducted by the Benedictine Fathers, is known to be one of the most eminent institutions of its kind in the state insofar as studies pursued at the college are of the usual kind, but are taught by teachers thoroughly conversant with their subjects and masters of their special line of work.

Completion of the seventh grade is the minimum entrance requirement, while no students under 12 years of age are accepted. The fall term opens September 5.

Waiting List Established for Winter Season Work. More students than can be accommodated have applied for entrance to the evening and Saturday classes of the Portland Art school and the association is looking forward to an interesting year. There are already several persons who are desirous of joining the evening classes, have been placed on the waiting list.

E. F. Wentz, whose work as artist and teacher is attracting wide attention, will have charge of the advanced painting class. He will also act as critic in the design and handicraft work. Miss C. J. Stephens, whose "one-artist" exhibition last winter was received enthusiastically at the annual exhibitions at Seattle, San Francisco and the New York Academy show, will head the first-year drawing and painting and the children's work. The design and craft work as well as the elementary children's classes will be taught by Miss Meta Kennedy, a young teacher who graduated from the school and has succeeded in business at and commercial work. Miss Kennedy was successful, also, in teaching the same classes last semester. The art history classes are in charge of Miss Henrietta H. Felling, whose years of study in America and abroad especially fit her for the work.

Special work, involving the presence of a visiting instructor, will be offered during January and February. The details of this course will be announced at a later date.

LAW SCHOOL OPENS SEPT. 15. Classes Meet in County Courthouse on Week Nights.

The Northwestern College of Law will commence its fall term Wednesday, September 15, in the school rooms situated on the seventh floor of the Multnomah County courthouse.

This school, which is a continuation of the Portland Law department of the University of Oregon, offers courses in law to classes meeting on week nights from 7 to 9 P. M. for a three-year period, leading to the degree of bachelor of laws.

The school, with its predecessors, has been in operation since 1884, and from 1902 to 1919 was operated under the direction of the late Judge Gantenbein. The present dean is J. Hunt Hendrickson of the Oregon bar and a Harvard graduate who has had 10 years' experience in active practice and in legal instruction at the law school and at Reed college.

The faculty is comprised of leading members from the Oregon bench and bar and an effort is made to afford specialized instruction within the three-year period.

The graduates of this school hold positions of influence in Portland among the legal and judicial fraternities.

PORTLAND SCHOOL IS LEADER. Behnke-Walker Business College Attains Envious Position.

In the Behnke-Walker business college, Portland, can claim the largest commercial school in the northwest and the one whose students have won more gold medals in typewriter contests than any other college in America.

The institution is housed in its own building at the corner of Fourth and Yamhill streets and occupies the entire three floors of the structure. Under the direction of L. M. Walker, who started his career as a president of the school when it had only half a dozen students, the business college has been brought to an enviable position. Today the college has more students than any other similar institution on the Pacific coast and it is one of the few accredited by the National Association of Commercial Schools of America.

The classrooms of the school are fitted to meet the requirements of such an institution and are large, well ventilated and light, while each department is thoroughly equipped with the latest time and labor-saving devices used in modern business.

ALBANY COLLEGE OPTIMISTIC. Freshman Class Expected to Be Largest in History.

A large percentage of last year's students at Albany college will return to the school this year, it is announced. It is said that the next year's freshman class will be the largest which has ever attended and arrangements are being made for a constructive year's program.

Organization of a school of commerce has been brought to a point near completion and the courses of accountancy and business administration which were given last year will be continued next semester.

McMINNVILLE COLLEGE GROWS. Baptist Institution Only One of Its Kind in Northwest.

McMinnville college is the only Baptist institution of the northwest. The last ten years of the school have been attended by the greatest success and many students have signified their desire to enter the college by coming semester. Located in the heart of the Willamette valley, the school is within distance of students from every part of Oregon.

The course of instruction available is varied and possesses several unique advantages. The courses of the college are based upon Christian principles.

MISS CATLIN'S SCHOOL IS IDEAL. Educational Center for Young Girls Has Excellent Environment.

People who are desirous of placing their children in a school where the standards and methods of the leading schools of the east are in operation will find in the school that is being done by Miss Catlin's school an educational need of the Pacific northwest and has been developed by a large staff of experienced and successful eastern teachers who have come west to be associated with it.

The purpose of the school is to provide an educational center for girls franging in age from 6 to 12 years, through which they may be brought into interesting contact with the knowledge and thought of the world and, through realizing its relation to them, be taught to think for themselves. Each child is considered as an individual and the effort is to educate her according to her particular needs.

All grades from the primary to college are provided and work in French, art, music, dramatics and physical training in addition is offered. In the high school department special provision is made for college preparatory work and the students are prepared for the leading eastern as well as the western colleges.

The number of students in each class is limited in order that there may be close personal supervision of each pupil and her work.

The boarding department is a feature of the school and provides a happy, simple and wholesome home life for its young people. The ideal location of the new building with its surroundings of space and the beauties of nature makes a most healthful physical environment.

CHIROPRACTIC NEEDS MET. Pacific College of Portland Is Graduating Physicians.

It has been stated that more than 100,000 chiropractic physicians are needed in the United States by millions of patients who have turned to this method of treatment and the Pacific Chiropractic college of Portland is helping to fill this need.

The college at Park and Yamhill streets is now entering upon its 11th year. Its new four-story structure has 22,500 square feet of floor space which is used exclusively in the study and practice of chiropractic.

The hospital occupies part of this space for students are taught from a practical basis the care of the sick.

Heading the college is Dr. Oscar W. Elliott, assisted by a faculty of six instructors from 25 to 50 lectures are given each year by specialists from the outside in the different subjects and a solid education. Courses of instruction embrace all the modern languages and the Technical College English education. The school is located at East Fifty-fourth street and Alameda avenue, and is under the patronage of his grace the archbishop of Oregon.

Harker School Makes Good. Miss Catherine Harker's school for girls at Palo Alto, Cal., is one of the largest on the Pacific coast and is counted one of the best known. It is a resident and day school and is surrounded by large grounds. The climate is favorable to outdoor recreation and the aim of the school is to give musical and dramatic art students of the northwest the opportunity of a systematic course of instruction near their homes under capable and efficient teachers.

Good Telegraphers Needed. The demand in America for expert telegraph operators led to the establishment of the Railway Telegraph Institute in Portland. F. L. Dille, present manager, has been with the school for the past two years and prior to that time had many years' experience in practical telegraphy.

Women as well as men are admitted as students and statistics prove that the former serve as capably as the latter in the telegraph field. Classrooms of the institute are in the Railway Exchange building.

Boys Made Into Real Men. From the viewpoint of the parents of a young boy no better place than the Palo Alto military academy could be selected for his education. The academy has as its chief aim "the making of real men from small boys" and in this respect is unique among Pacific coast schools. The boys who attend the academy are especially instructed so that they may assume a commanding position in life. There is a wholesome camaraderie vibrant in the atmosphere of Palo Alto with which the boy soon becomes delighted. Colonel Kupper, superintendent, has received training in the largest military schools of the east and is well fitted for his position.

Normal Supplies Teachers. Oregon, as well as other states, is in great need of competent teachers, and schools in the northwest of the Oregon Normal school are aiding to supply the demand for trained and efficient educators.

The boarding department is a feature of the school and provides a happy, simple and wholesome home life for its young people. The ideal location of the new building with its surroundings of space and the beauties of nature makes a most healthful physical environment.

School of Music Prospers. A school which has enjoyed rapid growth and decided success is the Oregon Conservatory of Music, founded by Mrs. L. H. Huriburt-Edwards in 1886. Thousands of finished musicians have been sent out by this institution, which has the reputation of teaching practically every branch of music thoroughly.

Schools Use Honor System. A 15-acre campus and an eight-acre wooded park surround the Seale Military Academy of Palo Alto, Cal. Both grammar and high school studies are embraced in the curriculum and the school is organized on the honor system, for one of its cardinal principles is: "Not to learn one's lessons is a breach of trust."

The fall term opens September 14, while the summer semester is already in progress having begun June 21. Grenville C. Emery is head master.

Commercial School Has Birthday. Miss Regina Buckel's east side commercial school is now celebrating its fourth anniversary. All instruction is individual and the day school is exclusively for young women. Short-hand, typing and Max Harker are taught. Located at the corner of Grand avenue and East Alder street, the school is in a particularly desirable position. Evening classes at which both men and women attend are held.

Religious Training Is Aim. The aim of the Academy of the Holy Child Jesus is to give to its pupils a solid education, as well as a solid education. Courses of instruction embrace all the modern languages and the Technical College English education. The school is located at East Fifty-fourth street and Alameda avenue, and is under the patronage of his grace the archbishop of Oregon.

Liberal Education

The University includes the College of Literature, Science and the Arts; the Graduate School; the School of Physical Education; the professional Schools of Law, Medicine (at Portland), Education, Architecture, Commerce, Journalism and Music; and the Extension Department and School of Correspondence.

In the College of Literature, Science and the Arts are offered courses in literature, ancient and modern languages, economics and sociology, the physical sciences, household arts, psychology, philosophy and so on.

High standards of scholarship are made possible by a capable faculty, modern equipment in the way of laboratories and museums, and a splendid library of nearly 100,000 volumes.

Intercollegiate athletics are encouraged, but under careful restraint. "Athletics for everybody" is the ideal toward which the University is working. The health of all students is given expert attention, and an infirmary is open to all.

The life of the students at "Oregon" is wholesome and studious, and the cost of living is very low. A wide variety of student activities gives ample opportunity for the expression of individuality.

With a confidence born of the expression of public support given by the people of the state at the election in May, the University is now entering upon a new era of development and usefulness.
