

COXSURE BANNERS UNFURLED AT DAYTON

Ohio Governor Accepts Democratic Nomination.

20,000 MARCH IN PARADE

League of Nations Made Paramount Issue—Tribute to President Is Wildly Cheered.

(Continued From First Page.) Inalienable right of every American citizen to get drunk, and in the right of the village undertaker and the keeper of the dog cure sanitarium to collect revenue from the liquor business.

Enforcement Is Scoffed At. In just eight words, the democratic nominee disposed of the 18th amendment and the Volstead prohibition enforcement act. That Senator Harding should have promised law enforcement scooped at as "unnecessary" by Mr. Cox, who used the eight words, however, to say that the prohibition amendment and the Volstead act were useless because "moralists cannot easily be produced by statute."

The Cox speech further indicated, as heretofore pointed out, the need of a democratic getting further on the issue. For example, when it was announced in New York three days ago that Harding, if elected, would immediately convene congress and recommend among other things the repeal of the excess profits tax, numerous democratic newspapers denounced such a proposition as a "bid to Wall street."

Mr. Cox said: "I believe that a better form of taxation than the so-called excess profits tax may be found" and asserted that favored a wider distribution of this burden. Republican leaders said that Mr. Cox' speech showed a lack of knowledge of all that had been going on in Washington during the last year or two of the Wilson administration, whose sins he cheerfully saddled upon himself for better or worse.

Congress Condemned for Tax. For instance, he condemned the republican congress for failure to reduce the tax burdens, obviously overlooking, he said, the fact that both Secretary of the Treasury, Charles D. Igo and his successor, David F. Houston, appeared before the last session of congress and declared any thought of revision or reduction of taxes for another year and possibly for two years.

Relative to his declaration for a budget system, which is but an elaboration of the democratic platform plank on the same subject, the candidate is to be reminded that a republican congress passed a budget bill in the last session which was vetoed by the democratic president because of some trifling encroachment on autocratic executive powers. The Cox charges, made many times before and repeated in this speech, that large sums have been collected by the republicans for failure to reduce the tax burdens, obviously overlooking, he said, the fact that both Secretary of the Treasury, Charles D. Igo and his successor, David F. Houston, appeared before the last session of congress and declared any thought of revision or reduction of taxes for another year and possibly for two years.

Big Issue Hidden in Eight Words. During his recent visit to the city Mr. Cox' new chairman, George White, said he would not agree to any such a limit of campaign contributions. But, he said he would, after all, the issues featured by Mr. Cox are not half so important as the one which he attempted to conceal in eight words, submerged in a paragraph of which it is no coherent part. It is not difficult to observe here in the end, the hope that was taken possession of the "wets" since the nomination of Governor Cox, and their efforts both to help Cox and to restore liquors of high alcoholic content.

The most candid of the lot, however, is J. R. Buckley, an official of the New Jersey liquor interests, who announced during the week that the friends of wine and beer would be urged to support Cox. The slogan which he announced was "Wets and wets only" meaning that only known friends of liquor were to have the support of the "wets."

Wets' Boldness Revealed. The boldness with which the wets supporting Cox have set about to repeal prohibition has been revealed in several spots during the last week. One example was the Tammany platform adopted by a New York democratic convention, declaring for modifying the Volstead act to permit another evidence by the democratic attorney-general of Maryland, an ardent Cox supporter, that the prohibition laws were under no obligations to assist the federal government in enforcing the Volstead act.

In the Virginia primaries, the "wets" fought in the open and boast now that they are the victors of their own kind for seats in congress, defeating as many "dries" at the same time.

At the same time, the society columns tell of Postmaster-General Burleson being down the river as the house guest for the week of Robert Crain, who is asking the supreme court to grant a rehearing on the Volstead act. Immediately on reading the Cox speech, republicans announced their readiness to accept the issue of the Wilson league of nations, but back of all these statements was the apparent consciousness that an issue can not be made in this way.

JAPANESE BOUGHT LAND

Farm Reported to Have Been Put in Daughter's Name.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 7.—(Special.)—Investigating a fire on the farm of G. Watori on Burns road Friday afternoon, Battalion Chief Henry J. Hale of the fire department discovered what he believes to be a Japanese evasion of statutes, prohibiting them from owning land in this state. Watori, who bought the farm in the name of his eldest daughter, who was born here, chief Hale says.

Disgruntled after being discharged by the Japanese proprietor, a white farm hand is accused of setting the fire. Watori's barn and shack, where he lived with his wife and three children, were destroyed. Interrogation by Chief Hale developed that Watori purchased the place for $1000 from the former white owner. Knowing that he could not own land, Watori said that he bought it in the name of his 2-year-old daughter.

GARBAGE LAW IS PLANNED

QUESTION PROBABLY WILL BE SUBMITTED TO PUBLIC.

Commissioner May Inspect Plants on Pacific Coast Before Final Decision.

An ordinance calling for bids for garbage disposal in Portland will probably be passed by the city council next Wednesday. The plan was discussed at an informal meeting of the council yesterday, and Commissioner Bielewicz instructed to place the ordinance on the regular weekly calendar.

The city council is not disposed to purchase a plant, but instead desires to follow the plan now in vogue at other cities, where a private company pays the city 50 cents or more a ton for all garbage delivered. This sum of money is said to enable cities to maintain a free garbage collection system.

SALEM, Or., Aug. 7.—(Special.)—Sam A. Kozar, secretary of state, is stringing in his administration of the laws, but here is an appeal from a girl who objects to the legal bar against youngsters under 16 operating automobiles which Mr. Kozar says almost induces him to waive the statute.

Dear Sir: I am a girl of 14 who lives on Ford. I don't make any money or anything like that but I don't know what I would do unless I had one to tinker with. I can do anything when it comes to repairing one as long as it is sent to my little sister's house. I have a hold of my overalls and went to get my little sister's car. It was a 1916 and weighed 110 and had good speed. Don't you think there is some way for me to get some kind of license. I sure can brag on myself.
