Mrs. Fred Green Hostess For Recent Social Event

ATTRACTIVE and lovely visitors from all parts of the United States have brightened the social calendar for the past week and their presence has provided a happy inspiration for delightful entertaining. Rarely is a city so honored as Portland has been by the maids and matrons who have graced the smart events of this mid-summer season.

One of the loveliest of these, Miss Tillman Moss, the guest of Dr. and Mrs. John Forest Dickson, has been entertained at ever so many festivities.

Another, Miss Mary Stewart, is the guest of Mrs. Fred E. Strong, and yet another, Miss Elsie Collingwood, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. W. W. Cotton, at Alexandria court. This interesting trio of girls inspired several social honors, one of recent date having been Mrs. Dickson's luncheon at the Waverley Country club with the table arranged for Miss Moss, Miss Stewart, Miss Collingwood, Mrs. Simpson Winch, Mrs. Norman Rupp, Miss Meta Rupp, Miss Sackett, Mrs. Henry Green Reed, Mrs. William H. Lines, Mrs. Alan Green, Mrs. George Wentworth, Mrs. James Wilson, Mrs. William H. Morton, Mrs. Oldenberg, Mrs. Reade M. Ireland, Miss Genevieve Thompson, Miss Isabella Gauld, Miss Catherine Russell, Mrs. Marion Dolph, Mrs. Eugene Rockey, Miss Marion Whiteside, Miss Virginia Mearns, Miss Christine Heckman, Miss Elizabeth Halley, Miss Helen Platt, Miss Margaret Mackenzie, Miss Charlotte Laidlaw, Miss Sally Sabin and Miss Polly Kerr.

Mrs. William H. Lines presided at a smart luncheon at the University club on Tuesday and had as her guests Miss Moss, Mrs. Edward Clark III (Hazel Dolph), Mrs. Reade Ireland, Mrs. Henry Green Reed, Mrs. Kenneth Beebe, Mrs. John Kollock, Mrs. Marion Dolph, Mrs. Donald Munro, Mrs. John Forest Dickson, Mrs. George K. Wentworth, Mrs. Carl Wernicke, Miss Isabella Gauld and a few others.

Miss Catherine Russell has been giving a series of attractive and clever afternoons lately, entertaining groups of girls at tea quite informally.

Miss Polly Kerr and Miss Elizabeth Halley entertained for the younger girls on Friday at a tea at the James B. Kerr residence and Miss Jane and Miss Anne O'Reilly entertained at a vaudeville set tea on Thursday at their home on Portland heights.

Mrs. Fletcher Linn has as her guest her sister, Mrs. R. B. von Klein Smid, who will remain here for the month. Dr. von Klein Smid, who is president of the University, is a very clever and sociably as well as a socially delightful man, as is verified for a few days and on Tuesday the Fletcher Linn gave a reception for Dr. and Mrs. von Klein Smid.

Mrs. Charles E. Wolverton and Mrs. J. P. Bradley presided at the table on this occasion and Miss Jean Muir, Miss Isabel Kerr and Miss Jeanne Gay assisted about the rooms. Bright yellow and rich golden tones were noted in the color scheme of decoration which introduced artistic baskets of nasturtiums and Shasta daisies.

Last Friday Dr. and Mrs. Howard Leonard Bowman were honored at a dinner given by the Fletcher Linn and the other guests included Judge and Mrs. Wolverton, Judge and Mrs. Wallace McCann, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Pattullo, R. M. Crozier, Estee Snodgrass and Thera Youum.

Several teas have been given this past week for Mrs. von Klein Smid. One of the smartest of all the week's gaieties was the tea at which Mrs. S. R. Johnston presided with Mrs. Lillian Moss, Miss Elsie Collingwood and other interesting visitors as guests.

The tea given by the Misses O'Reilly Thursday was in honor of Miss Isabelle Nicol of Denver, Miss Henrietta Cudlipp of New Orleans, Miss Barbara Lull, who is home from New York, and Miss Elizabeth Goddard, who is going to Mills college.

Mrs. Drake C. O'Reilly poured and Mrs. H. B. Van Dusen cut the loaves. Those assisting were the Misses Polly and Betty Kerr, Elizabeth Halley, Frances Matthews and Jeanne Gay. About 100 guests attended. The attractive rooms were artistically decorated in pastel flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Norton have as guests Mrs. F. M. Rivett and Miss Phyllis Rivett of Boston. Tuesday Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Beebe entertained with a picnic supper out the Columbia river highway, honoring the visitors.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy T. Bishop and their children motored to Hood River for the week end and are guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Roberts.

Judge and Mrs. C. H. Marsh of Pendleton visited in Portland this past week as a part of a tour of the northwest. Miss Alberta Cavender of this city motored to Pendleton to be their guest for a short time the latter part of the week.

Mrs. M. Donald Spencer gave a luncheon Wednesday for Mrs. Downing of Berkeley, who was here as the guest of her sister, Mrs. Otto Wedemeyer.

As a herald of some social events of interest for next month comes the announcement that the wedding of Miss Marjorie Campbell and Wilson B. Coffey will be solemnized September 15. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Campbell and is a graduate of St. Helen's hall. Mr. Coffey is the son of Dr. and Mrs. R. C. Coffey. He is a graduate of Stanford and a Sigma Nu fraternity man.

Miss Fay Nichols presided at a tea Thursday for 20 of the younger society maids. Miss Vida Nichols, cousin of the hostess, poured tea. The affair was informal.

Dr. and Mrs. J. Gordon Wilson of Chicago, distinguished visitors of the week, were honored by Dr. and Mrs. J. F. Dickson at a dinner at the Waverley Country club. Dr. and Mrs. Richard Nunn, recently back from Europe, shared the honors. Covers were placed for Dr. and Mrs. Wilson, Dr. and Mrs. Nunn, Dr. and Mrs. William Johnston, Dr. Frederick Kiehle, Miss Lillian Moss, Miss Isabella Gauld and Dr. J. N. Cochran.

Dr. Wilson, after the visit here, went to Hood River and then for a fishing trip on the MacKenzie river.

Mr. and Mrs. Drake C. O'Reilly have arrived from the east after a honeymoon spent in traveling to the interesting places of scenic beauty and to the smart summer resorts, where they were extensively entertained.

Miss Rhoda Rumelin was hostess early in the week at a luncheon at Waverley Country club, honoring Miss Farenia Peters of Seattle, guest of Mrs. Cameron Squires.

Mrs. Warren E. Thomas was honored Tuesday at a delightful picnic supper at Wahkeena falls. The affair was in compliment to Mrs. Thomas' birthday. FURS AND MYSTERY

By W. M. Ungar

The Stone Marten substitutes are opossum and raccoon. Unfortunately, indeed, the purchaser who pays the price of stone marten and is given a substitute, for genuine stone marten is one of the costliest and most durable of furs.

The skins must all be imported, either from Europe, Asia or India. Those coming from Turkey, Russia, Hungary and Greece being the most beautiful, while in Russia, Germany, Greece, Turkey and Asia Minor they are caught in greatest numbers.

Though resembling the common weasel in contour and action, they are brown in color and are sometimes called the white-throated marten because of the marking on that portion of the animal.

Another species of this little carnivorous animal is the pine marten, a native of that part of North America wherein the pine trees grow over large areas, as it is in those trees that it obtains its chief source of food of birds, birds' eggs and squirrels.

The color of the American marten is also of a deep brown shade, almost black in some cases, though some specimens are quite light with yellowish, tinted throat and breast.

While ordinarily somewhat higher prices are paid for the darker shades, yet many people prefer the fur of the lighter hue; and it is but a matter of choice.

The handsome color and density of fur of the marten caught in the regions of the Hudson's Bay so closely resembles sable that it is often sold as Hudson Bay Sable, but you will find that the reliable furrier will apprise you of this fact when you are shopping for fur apparel.
