

DR. ROBBINS IS NEW DEAN OF UNIVERSITY

D. W. Morton Succeeded in School of Commerce.

CHANGES ARE PLANNED

Faculty to Be Doubled, New Courses Added and Additional Degree to Be Granted.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Aug. 7.—(Special.)—Dr. Elwin Clyde Robbins, formerly professor in the department of economics and sociology, has been named dean of the school of commerce of the university by the executive committee of the board of regents, which met here tonight to act on the resignation of Dean D. Walter Morton, former head of the school, who has accepted a position with the J. C. Penney company of New York.

The resignation of Dean Morton has been anticipated for some time by his close friends, as he has several times received flattering offers from large business concerns.

Several Changes Planned.

Dean Robbins has planned several changes in the school of commerce for the coming year including new courses, the granting of an additional graduate degree and the strengthening of the faculty with the aim of making it rank among the best in the country.

The faculty for the coming year will number ten, which is double the number of last year. Such a group will be able to handle effectively the large number of major students in the school, now the largest and most popular on the campus, and in addition will be composed of the best and most highly trained instructors possible to obtain.

Dean Robbins and Dr. James H. Gilbert, head of the department of economics, are working out a close co-operation between the school of commerce and the department of economics. Courses will be dovetailed in such a manner as will enable the student to take the great deal of work in both economics and commerce, economics courses counting as major work in the school of commerce.

Good, sound training in business is to be the aim of the school for the coming year, according to Dean Robbins. Great stress will be laid on the development of the resources of the state of Oregon and of the exporting possibilities in the Columbia river basin, special courses being offered in these lines. The field of foreign trade is one in which the school of commerce expects to place many of its graduates in the future, and courses in all phases of this work will be offered.

Dean Robbins, with the exception of a two-year period, has been a member of the faculty of the university since 1915 as professor of economics. In 1917 he joined the faculty of the school of business administration of the University of Minnesota, a year later obtaining a leave of absence to take up the duties of assistant director of the civilian relief for the central division of the American Red Cross.

He received his B. A. degree from the State University of Iowa in 1910 and his M. A. degree in 1912. He entered Columbia university in New York city in 1913, holding a scholarship during his first year, and winning the Garth honor fellow in economics during his second year. He taught in Mount Holyoke, Mass., in 1914-15, receiving his Ph. D. degree from Columbia in 1915.

EVA WORKMAN RELEASED

GIRL HELD COMMITTED TO SCHOOL ILLEGALLY.

Opinion of Judge Tucker Rules District Court Exceeded Its Jurisdiction in This Case.

The district court did not have jurisdiction to commit to the state industrial school for girls at Salem Eva Workman, who was charged with having unlawfully broken the state board of health parole, declared Circuit Judge Tucker in an opinion handed down yesterday in this case. The girl was released.

Judge Tucker ruled that the district court did not have jurisdiction in this case because the district courts at the time of their creation in 1915 did not have jurisdiction of the misdemeanor of unlawfully breaking quarantine, since no such misdemeanor existed in 1915. When the district courts were created, their jurisdiction was defined as the criminal jurisdiction of the justice courts as conferred by law in 1915. The misdemeanor of breaking a state board of health parole was not defined until March 1, 1919.

"A great many other matters were discussed by counsel during the argument which are not germane to the issue presented by a consideration of the writ," stated Judge Tucker in giving his opinion. "The object of the state board of health in the administration of the provisions for parole

UNIVERSITY EXPANDS WITH NEW BUDGET

Offices of Four Deans of Colleges Separated.

DOCTOR DEGREE OFFERED

Dr. George Rebec, Formerly Director of Portland Extension Work, Leads Graduate School.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Aug. 7.—(Special.)—The passage of the higher educational millage tax bill on May 21, 1920, marked the beginning of a new era for the University of Oregon.

The increased budget has made possible certain developments in the organization of the university that have for some time been recognized as desirable. The offices of the dean of men and of the college of literature, science and the arts have been separated and each established as a distinct incumbency.

At a recent meeting of the regents Professor Colin V. Dyment was made dean of the college.

Dean John Straub will continue as dean of men. He will be general advisor of all the male students of the university.

With the recent decision of the faculty to offer the degree of doctor of philosophy, the graduate work will assume a new importance. Dr. George Rebec, formerly director of the Portland center of the extension work of the university, has been elected dean of the graduate school to succeed Dr. Frederick Young, who recently resigned.

The work of the school of commerce has been seriously handicapped by the inability of the university to command the services of a sufficient number of adequately prepared instructors. For 1920, the faculty of this school will number at least ten, all of whom have been carefully selected as specialists in their various fields.

Both the chief of construction and inspector of mechanical plant will be members of the faculty of the school of architecture and will devote part of their time to instruction of students. The construction of new buildings, actually in operation, will make possible a considerable amount of practical laboratory work on the scene of operations and under the direction of practical interested men. This possibility is of real value as supplementary to the theoretical courses in architecture.

The faculty of the law school will include six men.

REPUBLICANS GET BOOST

POINDEXTER TO EXERT AID IN STATE ELECTION.

Message Received by Head of Harding-Coolidge Club Hopes for Party Victory.

Senator Poindexter of Washington, as chairman of the senate republican campaign committee, will exert full power of his committee in an effort to increase the republican majority in the senate, and counts on winning in Oregon, according to a message received yesterday by President Banks of the Harding and Coolidge Campaign club.

In his message to the local club, just entering its campaign for 15,000 members, Senator Poindexter says: "Hearty congratulations and best wishes for 15,000 membership and for election of the republican ticket, including United States senator. Republican senate is necessary to maintain complete American independence. Am sure your efforts will substantially contribute to an overwhelming republican victory in the great republican state of Oregon."

When interviewed in Spokane, Senator Poindexter said the senatorial campaign committee seeks to return a more comfortable margin in the senate for the republicans than the present narrow 48-47 majority. The official headquarters of this republican national senatorial campaign committee will be Spokane between now and November 4, although there is also a Washington, D. C., office.

WOMENS' WAGE IS UPHELD

$18 WEEKLY MINIMUM GETS WASHINGTON INDORSEMENT.

Hotel and Restaurant Men of State May Appeal to Supreme Court.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 7.—(Special.)—In an opinion dictated this morning Judge John M. Wilson of Thurston county superior court sustained the constitutionality of the state industrial welfare law and the legality of the action of the industrial welfare commission in fixing wages for women and girls employed in hotels at $18 a week, with one day's rest in seven.

Associated hotel men of the state, in an appeal taken from the commission's findings, attacked the procedure followed by the commission in calling the hotel employment conference as insufficient and invalid. The procedure followed by the commission in calling the hotel employment conference was upheld by the superior court.

Judge Wilson overruled this contention, sustaining the commission throughout. It is expected that the hotel men will appeal to the supreme court. Restaurants and lodging houses are included in the $18 minimum scale.

Virtually the same issues have been raised against the industrial welfare commission's action in fixing an $18 minimum for women and girls in factory employment. This scale was voted by a factory employment conference called after the hotel employment conference had been held, but the industrial welfare commission.

Mrs. Dunn said that the poison was in a cup out of which she took a drink and gave one to her daughter and that the poisoning was accidental.

She was until recently an inmate of the state hospital and it was at first thought that the poisoning was intentional. She is said to have sent her husband out on an errand before the accident.

Mr. Dunn said that he returned to find his wife and little girl on the floor unconscious. Hospital attendants said late yesterday they were improving.
