Each Day Sees New Fall Modes Arriving

Suits Exploit Fur and Buttons
Fur collars appear on many suits, and fancy buttons take an important part in trimming. Straight lines rival the youthful ripple-back jacket, as brown now leads the favored navy. The pile-like fabrics, yalama cloth, chamoisine, duvetyne and bolivia, make unusually handsome suits—and prices are gratifying to the woman of limited means. There's a specially fine assortment of velour, yalama cloth and mixtures at

$59.50

Satin Frocks Are Beaded

Elaborate beading trims many satin dresses. Sashes outline the new low waistline. Tailored frocks of tricotine, serge and velour show brilliant embroidery or beads and are quite dressy enough for many occasions. Remarkably striking are some models at $39.50 to $49.50

Heavily beaded in jet is a bloused satin model with ribbon sash at the low waistline. It comes in navy or brown and is only $37.50

Artfully smart is a ripple jacket suit of brown yalama with a novel back offset with stitching—at $59.50

All Honors to the Wrap Coat

Enveloping as to line and exquisite of material are the fall coats of ondulette, cordova, congo, lustrala, chamoistyne. Collars are huge and cape-like, sleeves cut comfortably in one, linings gay of color. There's a splendid group at $79.50 to $89.50

Sensational Cleanup Sale of Blouses $12.50 to $17.50 Blouses $8.45

To make room for new arrivals this group of beautiful georgette and crepe de chine blouses is slashed in price. Materials are the finest quality—colors white, flesh, bisque, peach, Adriatic, orchid, coral and rose. Many are clever novelty styles, with beading, embroidery and lace adding to the effect. Both long and short sleeves are shown. The woman who knows values will seize this opportunity to invest in blouses for the coming season. Most of them sold for $15.

The Millinery Department Invites You to the Third Floor

Early autumn has brought a host of interesting new styles to our millinery headquarters. For present wear the small hat of duvetyne, velvet or feathers is favored, while prominent colors are vivid reds, blue, warm browns and dashing black.

Prices vary, but there's a wonderful variety at $10 to $20
