PREVENTION PARADE

Event Biggest of Its Kind Ever Staged Here.

FLOATS CARRY MESSAGES

Procession in Many Ways Pictures Methods and Means Employed in Combating Flames.

Lessons in fire prevention were presented in a hundred different ways to the thousands of persons who viewed the annual fire prevention parade yesterday afternoon. Floats, decorated automobiles and modern and ancient fire apparatus made up the largest parade of its kind ever seen in Portland. At the auditorium last night fire prevention week in Portland came to an official close with a programme which was filled with sparkling en-tertainment, sprinkled here and there with facts on fire prevention, brought to the attention of the audience through motion pictures.

In the parade state, city and county officials followed a platoon from the Fifth regiment. Oregon National guard, under command of Captain Hall. Next came state, county and city officials and representatives of the fire prevention committee and various clubs and organizations active in the work of reducing fire loss. Three Bands in Parade.

All music in the parade was donated, one band being furnished by the mu-sicians' union, another by the Multnomah guard and the third by the Wash ington high school. A platoon of fire-fighters, led by Fire Chief Young, marched in the fore part of the parade. Progress in the Portland fire department was visualized by the dis-play of fire-fighting equipment used in Portland's early days, followed by modern equipment. In this division, arranged by Fire Marshal Grenfell, first came a hand-pumper, Portland's pride in 1864; then a steamer which was the latest in fire equipment in 1879; then a horse-drawn steamer which became obsolete in 1911; then the first motorized steamer, and final ly a combination pumper and hose wagon which represents the latest in fire-fighting equipment.

Many attractive floats were in the line of march, some built by the firemen and others entered by different firms of the city. One of these floats was a replica of the battleship Oregon, built and entered by the 58 exnavy men now in the fire bureau.

Arson "Convicts" Exhibited. A float built to represent a steel cage with two bold "convicts" who were presumed to be serving a "jolt" for arson, attracted many laughs because of the argusted assignment of the contract cause of the sensation created early in the week by the announcement that arson convicts from Salem would be used in the parade.

Long banners on which were painted pictures of burning buildings were carried by several companies of boy scouts. The Washington and Jefferson High school fire squads in the parade brought attention to the fire prevention methods in vogue at the various schools of the city.

The use of airplanes for "spotting fires" in the forest regions of the state was called to attention by the

The Portland Vegetable Oil Mills Company with its proposed mill of 100 tons daily capacity, should furnish imports for this harbor in excess of $4,000,000.00 per annum, which is more than double the value of total imports for 1919. To make possible this increase in the imports of Portland harbor the citizens of Portland and of Oregon are asked to subscribe to this offering of $200,000.00 of capital stock of the Portland Vegetable Oil Mills Company.

Had Portland been alive to the opportunity offered ten years ago when Mr. C. A. Painton established the first vegetable oil refinery on the Pacific Coast in Portland, and had our citizens supported the then new industry as it should have been supported. Portland might today easily have been the center of the Vegetable Oil Industry on the Pacific Coast.

The story was not so written and today San Francisco is the center of the Cocoanut Oil Industry and Seattle is the center of the Soyabean and Peanut Oil Industries. Each of these cities has been doing a vegetable oil business in excess of $30,000,000 per annum. Portland investors are said to have subscribed more than $25,000,000 in the vegetable oil industry of San Francisco, in plants which might

Not until the Palmolive Company's plant burned in December, 1919, did Portland fully realize what she was losing. The Palmolive Company in 1918 absorbed the old Kaola Company of Portland and last January after its fire decided to center its Pacific Coast interests

This gave Portland the opportunity to revive this industry with local capital, resulting in the organization of the Portland Vegetable Oil Mills Company, capital $1,000,000.00. Twenty-eight prominent bankers and business men of Portland have subscribed the required first half million (50%) of the proposed capital stock in order that the company might be organized under the Blue Sky Law of Oregon and Directors and Officers elected. The Directors of this company now offer to the general public of Portland and of Oregon, $200,000,00 of its capital stock. When this offering shall have been fully subscribed the company will commence the erection of its plant, but no contracts will be entered into for plant construction or for machinery until a total of $700,000.00 of the capital stock of $1,000,000.00 shall

The Portland of the future will develop as her citizens invest in, foster and build up her home industries. Perhaps no city in the Union has so many diversified manufacturing interests as has Cleveland, Ohio, and perhaps no city has so many of its citizens represented as small stockholders in those manufacturing industries. Portland should do likewise and her citizens should educate themselves to become stockholders in Portland manufacturing industries of unquestioned merit. It is hard for any company not of unquestioned merit to receive a license to do business in Oregon under the new Blue Sky Law.

Portland is coming into her own as a PORT, but a port to be useful must be utilized by a steady flow of exports and imports. The exports are rapidly increasing but the imports are still lacking. This company will furnish more imports for home manufacturing than all other industries in the territory of this port.

The citizens of Portland realizing the benefits to this port and to the general shipping interests of this port, and further realizing the opportunity of securing a safe and profitable investment in a rapidly growing business of proven merit, should subscribe for this stock in amounts of from one share ($100.00 par value) to 100 shares ($10,000.00). No stockholder will have any advantage over any other stockholder as to cost of stock or as to dividends received therefrom.

It is the hope of the directors of this company that this present offering will be absorbed at once so that immediately after November first contracts may be entered into for the construction of the company's plant and for the purchase of the necessary machinery.

The retention of the vegetable oil industry in Portland and its future development here is dependent upon the prompt action of the public on this offering. The company has at this time no corps of stock salesmen and it is not planned to have any. It is assumed that those desiring investment or information will call at the company's office or will communicate direct by Please mail copy of your announcement of stock offering and application blank to A copy of the announcement of this stock offering containing a short history of the vegetable oil industry, its growth and its profits, together with an application blank for subscription to the company's stock, will be mailed
