

80 WILL MAKE EAST OREGON TRADE TRIP

Many Expected to Sign for Reservations This Week.

TOUR STARTS OCTOBER 21

24 Principal Cities East of Cascade Mountains to Be Visited on Six-Day Jaunt.

Eighty members of local commercial firms and organizations have signed to take the eastern Oregon trade excursion, which is scheduled to leave Portland by special train Sunday morning, October 21, and it is expected that during the coming week the special train accommodations will be filled to capacity.

The itinerary as mapped by the Chamber of Commerce, under whose auspices the trip is being made, will cover the eastern Oregon territory thoroughly, 24 of the principal cities east of the Cascade being included in the six-day jaunt.

Nathan Strauss, chairman of the excursion committee, has taken up the matter of preparing arrangements with the various cities along the route to be taken by the excursion, with the result that many enthusiastic letters from commercial bodies in enterprising eastern Oregon towns are on file at the Chamber of Commerce.

Two Banquets Scheduled. Banquets will be tendered the visitors at Pendleton and Enterprise and all the cities communicated with have expressed the intention of "going the limit" in the way of entertainment.

Typical of the spirit exhibited by the cities and towns along the route is a letter received from C. M. Lockwood, secretary of the Enterprise chamber of commerce. Declaring that every one of the 500 members of that organization will be on hand to welcome the visitors, he says, in part: "Committees from our chamber are now at work planning for your entertainment. The programme will consist of a banquet, music and addresses of welcome from our mayor, the oratory of the evening will be furnished by members of your party. Not but that we could furnish orators, and silver-tongued ones at that, but we desire to hear your speakers—ours can be heard any old time."

Enterprise insists it's host. "I am very sorry to inform you that we cannot accept the invitation of the eastern Oregon trade excursion to be their guests at the banquet; being guests on our own stamping ground is out of our line. We insist on being hosts on this occasion, and we are not going to let a bunch of men from a small town like Portland put anything over on us in the way of entertaining."

Impressive Funeral Ceremonies for Newton Moak, Who Died of Battle Wound.

OREGON CITY, Or., Oct. 9.—(Special.)—The first funeral services for a Clackamas county boy having lost his life during the world war while overseas, was that of Newton Moak, formerly of Oregon City, and son of W. H. Moak, now of Portland, held last Sunday. The services were conducted by Rev. H. H. Sawyer, pastor of the Christian church, Portland, and were largely attended, many ex-servicemen attending in uniform. The service Miss Jessie Sawyer, Portland, sang most impressively "Oh, Dry Those Tears" and "My Own United States."

The casket was draped with the national colors and, following the services at the chapel, removed to the Mountain View cemetery, where the last rites took place. The flag was removed from the casket previous to being lowered to its final resting place, and presented to the aged father.

At the cemetery taps were sounded and a firing squad fired three volleys over the grave. The pallbearers were ex-service men and all men taking part in the services, as well as the commander of Willamette Falls post, No. 5, Lloyd Harding and Adjutant Julius Spigle, having charge of the services, were in uniform. The floral tributes were in great profusion and beautiful. Among these were from the Willamette Falls post, No. 5, Red Cross branch of Clackamas county and Loyal Neighbors order. Newton Moak's death was caused from blood poisoning due to being shot in the leg with shrapnel. Moak was a member of the 368d U. S. Infantry of the 88th division. He died December 2, 1918. His body was laid to rest in a French cemetery near Paris, and was recently removed. Moak is survived by his father, W. H. Moak of Portland, two sisters, Mrs. Claude Rittenhouse of Oregon City; Mrs. Ben Hoover of North Ender, Or.; a brother, Philip R. Moak of Portland.

Moak was a native of Clackamas county, born at Damascus, January 27, 1893, and attended the Parkside and Currieville schools. He entered the service on Easter Sunday in 1918.

INDIAN REPORTS THEFT

Valuable Personal Property Taken From Home at Toppenish.

Chita-mista is the name by which he is known to his tribesmen, but

Homer Watson is the name under which he made complaint at the office of Sheriff Hurlburt yesterday, concerning the theft of valuable personal property from his home 13 miles north of Toppenish, Wash., on September 1. Asking that information concerning the property be sent to Sheriff Hutchinson at Yakima, Wash., Watson listed it, with a valuation of $100, as follows: Woman's buckskin dress, man's buckskin suit, three ordinary feather head-dresses and one for which $500 was paid, a white Alaskan fox hide, bead-decorated gloves, three sets of harness, three fancy, heavy wool Canadian shawls, six beaded belts, seven Indian blankets and two Yakima shawls in fancy patterns.

WAR DOGS AT EXHIBIT

CANINES WHICH SERVED IN FRANCE TO BE SEEN.

French Collie and Bull Will Guard Veterans' Trophies at Daddies' Show.

There will be two overseas veterans in the exhibit of war trophies of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, at the harvest festival and street fair to be given by the Daddies' club around the armory October 14-15, who are regarded as real heroes of the war. "Punkins" is one of the heroes. He is a bulldog, drafted by an American unit and taken with the outfit to France. Throughout the war and afterwards until it was disbanded, he stayed with his company, and is thought to be the only dog in the world who has an honorable discharge from the United States army.

"Punkins" mate in the exhibition is a French collie, credited with a record of saving 111 lives by carrying water and dressings across the battlefields to wounded Pollus. In the course of one of these trips of mercy the collie was laid low by a shell of the Germans and seems proudly to exhibit the stump of one leg lost at that time. The exhibit of the Veterans of Foreign Wars is a small part of the festival which is to be conducted by the fathers of American soldiers and sailors.

Workman's Fall Proves Fatal. C. Lavagetto, 64, of 797 East Twenty-seventh street, died yesterday at Good Samaritan hospital from injuries sustained Friday when he fell from a lumber pile while at work in the Southern Pacific shops at Brooklyn. His back was broken.

BANK HOME IS STARTED

FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM IS BUILDING NEW OFFICES.

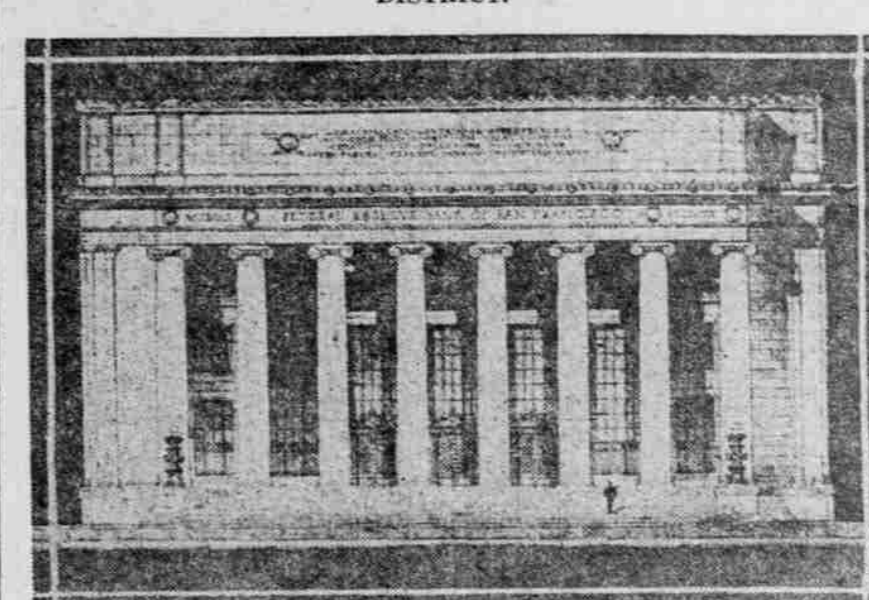

San Francisco Block to Be Used in Housing Growing Financial Concern.

The Federal Reserve bank of San Francisco has commenced construction of its new home. When completed, about the end of next year, this head office for the Federal Reserve system in the 12th district, will be a most imposing addition to the financial district of San Francisco. The bank, which opened for business in San Francisco November 18, 1914, in the rear part of the room of the Merchants National bank, with a staff of 23, including officers, clerks, watchman and janitor, has expanded so rapidly that it now has a force of 1019 in the head office and its branches in Portland, Spokane, Seattle, Salt Lake City and Los Angeles.

In the fall of 1917 and the spring of 1918 a building site for the head office was purchased comprising the entire block bounded by Sansome, Sacramento, Battery and Commercial streets—119 1/2 feet by 275 feet. Located on this property was a six-story building, which the bank remodeled for temporary use, and has occupied since September 28, 1918, the additional space required being leased in a neighboring building.

Immediately upon purchasing this building site, George W. Kelham was chosen as architect and P. J. Walker company as construction superintendent. Building plans were approved in the fall of 1918, but construction was at that time deferred in order to aggravate a situation already difficult by reason of the acute shortage of labor and materials and inadequate transportation. Since then the law was enacted providing for the transfer not later than June 30, 1921, of all the sub-treasury operations to the Federal Reserve bank. The need for additional facilities has become so pressing that preparations for immediate construction are now under way. All the buildings on the premises, except that now occupied by the bank, are being razed, and the piling of the ground will immediately follow so that the foundations may be completed prior to the arrival of the steel, which has been contracted for delivery in November and December.

ROYAL ARCANUM TO MEET

Grand Council of Oregon Will Hold Annual Convention in Portland.

The seventh annual session of the grand council of Oregon, Royal Arcanum, will convene in Portland next Tuesday at 8 P. M., in the peacock room of the Multnomah hotel.

Plans are already under way for the annual sale of Christmas seals by the Oregon Tuberculosis association, of which Mrs. Sadie Orr-Dunbar is the executive secretary. Robert W. Osborn, a recent graduate of Reed college, has been named seal sale director for the entire state and will leave this week for a tour of the state to perfect the city and county organizations. Mr. Osborn has just completed a tuberculosis survey of eastern Oregon and in the four counties covered by him he found great interest in the work of the association and volunteer assistance was proffered by many organizations and individuals. Public health associations exist in nine counties of the state and in each of these counties the sale of seals will be conducted by the association. The other counties will be organized within the next few weeks by Mr. Osborn. Four and a half million of the Christmas seals, which will be sold at 1 cent each, have been received by the Oregon association. The 1920 seals feature a tiny green elf, who carries aloft the standard of the anti-tuberculosis fight, the red double-barred cross, while riding atop the pack of gifts carried by Santa Claus. Charges of child stealing which were made several weeks ago against Perry McDowell by his divorced wife have been dismissed by Deputy District Attorney Deich after a thorough investigation. It was learned that McDowell had taken his daughter to central Oregon before his wife had procured a divorce, and the prosecuting attorney held that no crime had been committed.
