DEATH ESCAPED BY MEDALED WAR HERO

Veteran of Great Conflict Hit by Stray Shot.

LIFE IS SAVED

From Strenuous Experiences Since Return Home,

Two narrow escapes from death have been recent experiences of Lieutenant-Colonel W. A. St. Lawrence, 26, who barely escaped death many times on the European battiefields.

on the European battlefields.

His latest adventure was that of being shot by a stray bullet; while sitting on the porch of his father's mountain home in Clackamas county, 18 miles from Oregon City. The accident occurred on Thursday afternoon. The bullet, which wounded St. Lawrence. rence, first passed through the back of his old nurse, Mrs. W. A. Wilcox. She is not expected to recover. It is thought that hunters fired the shot.

St. Lawrence was in his mountain home recuperating from a hair-raising adventure, worthy of a melodramatic moving picture film, in which he rescued a girl from certain death at the risk of his own life.

He was riding in July with his friend, Captain E. W. Graham, Miss Mary Meadows, who is now Mrs. Graham, and her father, along Squaw creek, near Medford, toward a mine operated and owned by St. Lawrence's creek, near Medford, toward a mine operated and owned by St. Lawrence's father. The trail ran along the canyon with a sheer drop of 600 feet.

The girl's horse stumbled and started for the edge of the precipice. Instantly St. Lawrence leaped for the girl, threw her from her saddle onto the trail just as her horse and his went over into the canyon. The only thing which saved his life was a small tree onto which he caught. The horses were both killed.

St. Lawrence was injured internally, although no bones were broken. He acted as best man recently at the wedding of Captain Graham and Miss barter and trade exclusively among ourselves, Franklin D. Roosevelt declared tenight in an address which terminated a two weeks' campaign in upper New York state.

Although this normally is a strong republican district, Mr. Roosevelt received an enthusiastic reception.

"If we are to continue to be prosperous as we have been under a democratic administration, we must participate in the unselfish development of the civilized or semi-civilized portions of the world, and must continue to expand our interchange of commodities with other nations," he said. "There are two ways of securing modities with other nations," he said.

"There are two ways of securing our share in the development of the world's resources. One is the policy of brute force by means of such a tremendous standing navy and army as would permit us to reach out and grasp whatever we might, because no other nation or combination of nations would be strong enough to gainsay us. The other way is by establishing such close intimacy and friendly agreements with the rest of the world as to establish our place with them by mutual concern in the world's progress."
