

VOTE AS SOLDIERS FOUGHT, COX'S PLEA

End of War Menace Declared Purpose of War.

EGO PATRIOTISM DECRIED

Evangelist's Query, "Who Is My Neighbor?" Cited in Plea for "Broken, Bleeding Europe."

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Governor Cox of Ohio virtually finished his presidential campaign here tonight with a series of speeches to many thousands of persons, to whom he pounded home his league of nations and other doctrines.

In addresses here, at Gary, Ind., and Evanston, Ill., Governor Cox predicted victory for the "cause of peace" in Tuesday's elections and urged his audiences to "vote as our soldiers fought to end the war."

His largest audience was that tonight in the Coliseum, where his republican adversary, Senator Harding, was nominated.

The governor's political repertoire and his personal stamina as well were taxed by the number and size of his audiences today in a program which kept him the center of swirling crowds until midnight, when his train left for Dayton.

American Held Pledged. That American entrance into the league of nations was a "pledge" to the men who fought in the world war and to their mothers—a bond to end wars forever, if possible—and also a measure for national and world progress and moral, was stressed by Governor Cox in all of today's addresses.

Belief that President Wilson would be ready to retire from public life if the "league pledge" should be kept was expressed by the governor to an audience of women.

Declaring that the president presented the "saddest picture in all history," and deploring what he termed the "malicious policy of hate" against the executive, Governor Cox said: "He thinks of one thing and one thing only. He talks of it more than anything else, and it is this: That he gave a promise to the mothers of America, and that the promise has not been kept."

League Cox's Big Topic. The women's meeting opened the governor's program here. This afternoon the candidate gave his views on labor, settlement of strikes "without the bayonet" and other industrial questions to a crowd of several hundred persons at Gary, Ind.

Returning here, the governor motored to Evanston, discussing the league issue with a large audience at Northwestern university. His Coliseum meeting tonight was preceded by an automobile parade with torchlights, fireworks and other features.

The league issue was the big topic of all of the governor's addresses. Economic, as well as moral arguments in its behalf, were emphasized, and he reiterated charges that Senator Harding was evasive on the issue and "trying to wiggle and webble" into the presidency.

Mr. Christensen came to Portland 11 years ago from Salt Lake City, and soon established himself as one of the leading dancing masters of the city and coast. He at one time served as president of the National Dancing Masters' association, and it was through his efforts that the national organization held its annual convention in Portland last summer.

In addition to his standing in the dancing world, where he always was a strong advocate of the best and cleanest, he was a member of the Portland symphony orchestra, a violinist, he ranked among the best on the Pacific coast.

Mr. Christensen was a member of the Knights Templar and Mystic Stone lodges of Portland.

Our sincere thanks are hereby tendered our friends and fraternal orders who so kindly remembered us by their presence and floral tributes at the funeral of our husband and father.

We wish to express our thanks to our relatives and friends for the floral tributes sent also for the sympathy extended us at the death of our father and brother. Special appreciation is given the Loyal Order of Moose.

MRS. M. D. McDONALD AND DAUGHTER MAE L. Adv. MRS. WALTER McDONALD.

Phone your want ads to The Oregonian. Main 7070, Automatic 560-95.

MRS. HOUSEWIFE, Is Sunday a Day of Rest for You? Or do you spend hours preparing and serving Sunday dinner? Sunday dinner at

The Portland Hotel will mean a rest for you, as well as for your family. Everything is done to make the occasion truly enjoyable for you. Evening Dinner, $1.50 Noonday Lunch, 75c C. D. Schreier, Assistant Manager.

IMMUNITY TO ROSSI LIVERS STAMP TRIAL

Former Secret Service Man Testifies for Prisoners.

W. A. GLOVER IS WITNESS

Object of Appearance for Defense Is to Clear Himself of Odium Cast Upon His Work.

The case in the United States district court dealing with the alleged transaction of six men in altered war savings stamps, placed on the market after banks in the northwest had been robbed, will be resumed Wednesday morning, as Judge Wolverton adjourned court until that time in order to give the members of the jury an opportunity to cast their votes Tuesday.

The fight yesterday centered mainly about the efforts of the defense to prove that a promise of immunity had been made to Angelo Rossi, one of the defendants.

William A. Glover, former secret service operative, who occupied the witness stand at the adjournment of court Friday, was the first witness called yesterday and his testimony aired a number of important angles of the case that involves, in its ramifications, Robert La Salle, former city detective; Dave Stein, Rossi, William Brenner, W. E. Smith and Fred Peterson, an ex-convict, who confessed to altering some of the stamps found in his possession, all as defendants.

Operative Offers Immunity. Glover testified that, while he knew John Veatch, assistant United States attorney, in charge of the prosecution, would not attempt to shield anyone, Joseph Walters, one of his operatives, had promised Rossi immunity and that he had assured Rossi that he would not be double-crossed. This was said by Glover to have been before the time when the secret service knew that Rossi was involved in the disposal of the stamps, and the main reason was to induce Rossi to get a line on the men who had robbed a number of banks, and whose loot was estimated at $200,000.

Glover, after reviewing his record as a secret service operative for 20 years, until this fall, when he resigned of his own free will, said that he wanted to get certain evidence connected with his part in the present case introduced as a matter of public record, and that this was the reason why, when he discovered that the government was not going to use him as a witness, he had asked Barnett Goldstein, a friend and former United States district attorney with whom he had worked on several cases, to ask certain questions one day last week that were challenged by Veatch as having been asked for a purpose.

Went Over to Defense. Glover also told how, when he found that he was not going to be called by the prosecution, he asked to be called as a witness for the defense so that he might air his connection with the case. Glover told how he had been asked by his chief in Washington to give his version of a certain report by a federal grand jury concerning the present case. He said that he had not as yet made any answer as he wanted the testimony, now being given in open court and taken down by a stenographer, to go to Washington. Glover's admission that an effort had been made to make a stool pigeon, or informant, out of Rossi, in this case, was qualified by the statement of both himself and his assistant, Walter, that they had hoped to gain information of such value that it would more than offset the protection of Rossi. They were blocked in this, they said, by the United States attorney's office taking the case out of their hands and placing it in the hands of the special investigation department of the department of justice.

According to the evidence adduced in the trial to date, in none of the stamp deal as described on the stand was there any seemingly large margin of profit. Smith, one of the defendants, testified that he took 40 or 50 of the stamps from Rossi in payment of a $200 debt and that he sold them to his employer, Joseph Hertz, a jeweler, and then returned the money to Rossi, on his urgent plea that he needed it. John Veatch insisted that the government had made no use of any information in this case obtained from Rossi under any promise of immunity, and that all that has been used was of his own free will, after he had been warned of his position as a possible defendant. In his testimony yesterday Glover failed to recall any other specific instance of the government granting immunity under similar circumstances. Smith was on the stand when the case was adjourned and likely will be the first man up when the trial resumed. Smith is a watch maker, by profession, and worked for Rossi.

Albany.—The Court of Appeals has denied motions for a re-argument of the so-called New York City five-cent fare cases. This decision culminated these proceedings as far as the courts are concerned. The Court of Appeals recently held that where a maximum local trolley fare was fixed by franchise agreement the Public Service Commission was without authority to alter such fare. It was held that the only remedy available to the traction companies was the consent of the governing board of the city. The application for the eight-cent fare was made by the rapid transit companies of New York City.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Governor Cox of Ohio virtually finished his presidential campaign here tonight with a series of speeches to many thousands of persons, to whom he pounded home his league of nations and other doctrines.

In addresses here, at Gary, Ind., and Evanston, Ill., Governor Cox predicted victory for the "cause of peace" in Tuesday's elections and urged his audiences to "vote as our soldiers fought to end the war."

His largest audience was that tonight in the Coliseum, where his republican adversary, Senator Harding, was nominated.

The governor's political repertoire and his personal stamina as well were taxed by the number and size of his audiences today in a program which kept him the center of swirling crowds until midnight, when his train left for Dayton.

American Held Pledged. That American entrance into the league of nations was a "pledge" to the men who fought in the world war and to their mothers—a bond to end wars forever, if possible—and also a measure for national and world progress and moral, was stressed by Governor Cox in all of today's addresses.

Belief that President Wilson would be ready to retire from public life if the "league pledge" should be kept was expressed by the governor to an audience of women.

Declaring that the president presented the "saddest picture in all history," and deploring what he termed the "malicious policy of hate" against the executive, Governor Cox said: "He thinks of one thing and one thing only. He talks of it more than anything else, and it is this: That he gave a promise to the mothers of America, and that the promise has not been kept."

League Cox's Big Topic. The women's meeting opened the governor's program here. This afternoon the candidate gave his views on labor, settlement of strikes "without the bayonet" and other industrial questions to a crowd of several hundred persons at Gary, Ind.

Returning here, the governor motored to Evanston, discussing the league issue with a large audience at Northwestern university. His Coliseum meeting tonight was preceded by an automobile parade with torchlights, fireworks and other features.

The league issue was the big topic of all of the governor's addresses. Economic, as well as moral arguments in its behalf, were emphasized, and he reiterated charges that Senator Harding was evasive on the issue and "trying to wiggle and webble" into the presidency.

Mr. Christensen came to Portland 11 years ago from Salt Lake City, and soon established himself as one of the leading dancing masters of the city and coast. He at one time served as president of the National Dancing Masters' association, and it was through his efforts that the national organization held its annual convention in Portland last summer.

In addition to his standing in the dancing world, where he always was a strong advocate of the best and cleanest, he was a member of the Portland symphony orchestra, a violinist, he ranked among the best on the Pacific coast.

Mr. Christensen was a member of the Knights Templar and Mystic Stone lodges of Portland.

Our sincere thanks are hereby tendered our friends and fraternal orders who so kindly remembered us by their presence and floral tributes at the funeral of our husband and father.

We wish to express our thanks to our relatives and friends for the floral tributes sent also for the sympathy extended us at the death of our father and brother. Special appreciation is given the Loyal Order of Moose.

MRS. M. D. McDONALD AND DAUGHTER MAE L. Adv. MRS. WALTER McDONALD.

IMMUNITY TO ROSSI LIVERS STAMP TRIAL

Former Secret Service Man Testifies for Prisoners.

W. A. GLOVER IS WITNESS

Object of Appearance for Defense Is to Clear Himself of Odium Cast Upon His Work.

The case in the United States district court dealing with the alleged transaction of six men in altered war savings stamps, placed on the market after banks in the northwest had been robbed, will be resumed Wednesday morning, as Judge Wolverton adjourned court until that time in order to give the members of the jury an opportunity to cast their votes Tuesday.

The fight yesterday centered mainly about the efforts of the defense to prove that a promise of immunity had been made to Angelo Rossi, one of the defendants.

William A. Glover, former secret service operative, who occupied the witness stand at the adjournment of court Friday, was the first witness called yesterday and his testimony aired a number of important angles of the case that involves, in its ramifications, Robert La Salle, former city detective; Dave Stein, Rossi, William Brenner, W. E. Smith and Fred Peterson, an ex-convict, who confessed to altering some of the stamps found in his possession, all as defendants.

Operative Offers Immunity. Glover testified that, while he knew John Veatch, assistant United States attorney, in charge of the prosecution, would not attempt to shield anyone, Joseph Walters, one of his operatives, had promised Rossi immunity and that he had assured Rossi that he would not be double-crossed. This was said by Glover to have been before the time when the secret service knew that Rossi was involved in the disposal of the stamps, and the main reason was to induce Rossi to get a line on the men who had robbed a number of banks, and whose loot was estimated at $200,000.

Glover, after reviewing his record as a secret service operative for 20 years, until this fall, when he resigned of his own free will, said that he wanted to get certain evidence connected with his part in the present case introduced as a matter of public record, and that this was the reason why, when he discovered that the government was not going to use him as a witness, he had asked Barnett Goldstein, a friend and former United States district attorney with whom he had worked on several cases, to ask certain questions one day last week that were challenged by Veatch as having been asked for a purpose.

Went Over to Defense. Glover also told how, when he found that he was not going to be called by the prosecution, he asked to be called as a witness for the defense so that he might air his connection with the case. Glover told how he had been asked by his chief in Washington to give his version of a certain report by a federal grand jury concerning the present case. He said that he had not as yet made any answer as he wanted the testimony, now being given in open court and taken down by a stenographer, to go to Washington. Glover's admission that an effort had been made to make a stool pigeon, or informant, out of Rossi, in this case, was qualified by the statement of both himself and his assistant, Walter, that they had hoped to gain information of such value that it would more than offset the protection of Rossi. They were blocked in this, they said, by the United States attorney's office taking the case out of their hands and placing it in the hands of the special investigation department of the department of justice.

According to the evidence adduced in the trial to date, in none of the stamp deal as described on the stand was there any seemingly large margin of profit. Smith, one of the defendants, testified that he took 40 or 50 of the stamps from Rossi in payment of a $200 debt and that he sold them to his employer, Joseph Hertz, a jeweler, and then returned the money to Rossi, on his urgent plea that he needed it. John Veatch insisted that the government had made no use of any information in this case obtained from Rossi under any promise of immunity, and that all that has been used was of his own free will, after he had been warned of his position as a possible defendant. In his testimony yesterday Glover failed to recall any other specific instance of the government granting immunity under similar circumstances. Smith was on the stand when the case was adjourned and likely will be the first man up when the trial resumed. Smith is a watch maker, by profession, and worked for Rossi.

Albany.—The Court of Appeals has denied motions for a re-argument of the so-called New York City five-cent fare cases. This decision culminated these proceedings as far as the courts are concerned. The Court of Appeals recently held that where a maximum local trolley fare was fixed by franchise agreement the Public Service Commission was without authority to alter such fare. It was held that the only remedy available to the traction companies was the consent of the governing board of the city. The application for the eight-cent fare was made by the rapid transit companies of New York City.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Governor Cox of Ohio virtually finished his presidential campaign here tonight with a series of speeches to many thousands of persons, to whom he pounded home his league of nations and other doctrines.

In addresses here, at Gary, Ind., and Evanston, Ill., Governor Cox predicted victory for the "cause of peace" in Tuesday's elections and urged his audiences to "vote as our soldiers fought to end the war."

His largest audience was that tonight in the Coliseum, where his republican adversary, Senator Harding, was nominated.

The governor's political repertoire and his personal stamina as well were taxed by the number and size of his audiences today in a program which kept him the center of swirling crowds until midnight, when his train left for Dayton.

American Held Pledged. That American entrance into the league of nations was a "pledge" to the men who fought in the world war and to their mothers—a bond to end wars forever, if possible—and also a measure for national and world progress and moral, was stressed by Governor Cox in all of today's addresses.

Belief that President Wilson would be ready to retire from public life if the "league pledge" should be kept was expressed by the governor to an audience of women.

Declaring that the president presented the "saddest picture in all history," and deploring what he termed the "malicious policy of hate" against the executive, Governor Cox said: "He thinks of one thing and one thing only. He talks of it more than anything else, and it is this: That he gave a promise to the mothers of America, and that the promise has not been kept."

League Cox's Big Topic. The women's meeting opened the governor's program here. This afternoon the candidate gave his views on labor, settlement of strikes "without the bayonet" and other industrial questions to a crowd of several hundred persons at Gary, Ind.

Returning here, the governor motored to Evanston, discussing the league issue with a large audience at Northwestern university. His Coliseum meeting tonight was preceded by an automobile parade with torchlights, fireworks and other features.

The league issue was the big topic of all of the governor's addresses. Economic, as well as moral arguments in its behalf, were emphasized, and he reiterated charges that Senator Harding was evasive on the issue and "trying to wiggle and webble" into the presidency.

Mr. Christensen came to Portland 11 years ago from Salt Lake City, and soon established himself as one of the leading dancing masters of the city and coast. He at one time served as president of the National Dancing Masters' association, and it was through his efforts that the national organization held its annual convention in Portland last summer.

In addition to his standing in the dancing world, where he always was a strong advocate of the best and cleanest, he was a member of the Portland symphony orchestra, a violinist, he ranked among the best on the Pacific coast.

Mr. Christensen was a member of the Knights Templar and Mystic Stone lodges of Portland.

Our sincere thanks are hereby tendered our friends and fraternal orders who so kindly remembered us by their presence and floral tributes at the funeral of our husband and father.

We wish to express our thanks to our relatives and friends for the floral tributes sent also for the sympathy extended us at the death of our father and brother. Special appreciation is given the Loyal Order of Moose.

MRS. M. D. McDONALD AND DAUGHTER MAE L. Adv. MRS. WALTER McDONALD.

DAN KELLAHER RIGHT HERE IS THE PROOF:

FROM THE WALL STREET JOURNAL, OCTOBER 23, 1920

5-CENT FARE UPHELD

Court of Appeals Gives Final Decision Against Increase in New York City Traction Case.

Albany.—The Court of Appeals has denied motions for a re-argument of the so-called New York City five-cent fare cases. This decision culminated these proceedings as far as the courts are concerned. The Court of Appeals recently held that where a maximum local trolley fare was fixed by franchise agreement the Public Service Commission was without authority to alter such fare. It was held that the only remedy available to the traction companies was the consent of the governing board of the city. The application for the eight-cent fare was made by the rapid transit companies of New York City.

DAN KELLAHER for Mayor MEANS 5c FARE!! BALLOT 99X

(Paid Adv., Kellaher for Mayor Committee, by M. P. Brennan, Mgr.)

Overseas Veteran 23 Months

P. J. SIMMONS FOR SHERIFF OF MULTNOMAH COUNTY BALLOT No. 82

If Elected I Will Maintain the Highest Standard of Efficiency and Courtesy in All the Departments

Paid Adv. by Simmons Campaign Committee.

J. O. Bailey for Attorney General

Recommended on Merit

J. O. Bailey's proven qualifications and ability as Assistant Attorney-General for the past five years to creditably perform the duties of the Office of Attorney-General are recognized by the lawyers in Portland and throughout the State of Oregon. A few of the many who indorse his candidacy are the following:

- George B. Guthrie, Jas. H. Wilson, E. C. Emmerson, A. B. Winters, George E. Alexander, J. A. Stronbridge, Everett A. Johnson, E. E. Heckbert, John Guy Wilson, George S. Shepherd, Geo. Arthur Brown, Ernest W. Hardy, L. E. Davis, L. E. Saville, Charles J. Zergan, Charles C. Hindman, John A. Loring, C. G. Wheelock, Edward D. Williams, J. C. Veeble, Robert Treat Platt, Harry D. Platt, H. N. Phelps, H. B. Wilson, H. B. Huntington, W. M. Huntington, Geo. Riestand, Tom Garland, Walter S. Ashler, Forrest S. Fisher, Robert L. Sabin Jr., Arthur L. Kaiton, Alex C. Shaw, James B. Kerr, Clarence E. Moulton, Gus C. Moser, R. S. Sleight, J. H. Kelly, J. H. Stockman, Charles E. McCulloch, John C. McCue, Charles A. Hart, George L. Rauch, Guy C. H. Corliss, Robert Krims, Edith Cohn, W. B. Elwell, Ben C. Dey, E. B. Seabrook, W. B. Shively, L. G. English, M. E. Erickson, P. C. McDougal, O. L. McDougal, Oliver M. Hickley, David P. Matthews, N. H. Jacobson, Henry Hartle, Ernest W. Friendly, Clarence H. Gilbert, H. G. McInturf, W. I. Harless, A. H. McCurtain, George W. Gearhart, Carl M. Little, Win. G. Smith, Oscar Purser, Robert B. Rankin, Robert F. Maguire, Letus L. Langley, John F. Sedgewick, J. N. Hart, J. H. Rigger, J. Harold Hart, John M. Pines, George A. Pipes, M. B. Meschem, Frank S. Schlegel, Waldemar Seton, Carl B. Wintler, W. E. Critchlow, F. J. Erickson, O. A. Neal, J. E. Bailey, John B. Dickson, Ashby C. Dickson, Bradley A. Swers, H. L. Gannon, E. J. Mendenhall, J. N. Pency, A. S. Dresser, A. S. Booth, F. M. Sargent, Wm. P. Richardson, E. K. Grieshaber, P. C. Howell, H. Daniel, F. E. McGinnis, Robert J. O'Neil, George W. Wilson, George J. Perkins, Ora H. Porter, D. C. Lewis, A. C. Spencer, Wm. P. LaRoche, Wm. McElroy, John T. Logan, Fred J. Janson, Fred M. Dempsey, H. N. Taminson, L. E. Latourrette, J. C. Mackay, Ben H. Conn, James P. Alexander, J. C. Christensen, D. C. Christensen, Swers, A. J. Christoffersen, Albert B. Hildway

Brown Praises Bailey

As a witness in the Hyde-Benson cases Attorney-General Brown testified: "I saw that if I tried these cases personally, it was going to take all of my time. In the meantime, I saw it was possible to obtain as an assistant an attorney that I believed entirely qualified to try these cases, and I attempted to get the best lawyer in Oregon I could for the money allowed me to try the Hyde-Benson cases. With this end in view, I invited John O. Bailey to become one of my assistants. He had no political pull with me, so far as I was concerned, and was selected simply for his own qualifications."

The vacancy in attorney-general's office occurred too late for printing names on ballot. Therefore your choice will have to be written in, as follows:

FOR ATTORNEY-GENERAL: To fill vacancy caused by resignation of Attorney General Geo. M. Brown to succeed Justice A. S. Bennett. VOTE FOR ONE—By Writing in Name

J. O. Bailey

(Paid Adv., J. O. Bailey for Attorney-General Committee.)

For Congress

43X Esther Pohl Lovejoy Your Candidate and Her Work

To the Believers in True Democracy

The spirit of life is the spirit of sacrifice even unto death. That spirit is stirring in the earth today. Millions have manifested the spirit of high sacrificial service during the last four years. It is the spirit that prompted Esther Pohl Lovejoy to volunteer for service.

She realized that war carried misery in its wake, not only to the actual fighters, but to the old men, to the women and to the children. She followed in the wake of the war and helped to give relief. Hers was the constructive part, to mend, to heal the wounds of war, to build where necessity had torn down. She fought for restoration of life, of happiness and peace. Her name is known wherever measures for the relief of devastated regions are discussed.

Her volunteer service and her service with the Red Cross extended during the entire war and for several months after. On account of her ability and work she was made the head of the American Women's Hospital Service for the relief of war sufferers. This service is now being carried on and will be carried on until those little children whose fathers and mothers were in the war are old enough to care for themselves.

Her experience, her hopes and her ideals are incorporated in her writings. The royalties from these writings are now being given for war relief work. Esther Pohl Lovejoy comes before the voters of Multnomah county and seeks permission to throw her energies into the reconstruction problems confronting this nation. She stands shoulder to shoulder with the returned war veterans who are striving to make the United States a real democracy.

Men and Women of Multnomah County

When you cast your vote, vote for one who has shown by her whole life and her years of service in war work that she holds fast to the ideals of this democracy.

VOTE 43X ESTHER POHL LOVEJOY

(Paid Adv. by Oregon Popular Government League, B. A. Green, Sec.)