

HARDING CAMPAIGN IS CLOSED IN OHIO

Republican Candidate Gives Party Cause to Voters.

SOBER VERDICT AWAITED

Senator Invades Bitterplace and Present Home of Cox, Cheering Crowds Welcoming Him.

COLEMBUS, O., Oct. 30.—Senator Harding, resting the republican cause on an appeal to dependable, intelligent public opinion, told the voters of the nation in his final campaign speeches today and tonight that his party wanted a calm, sober verdict on the polls, based on good faith and attained by honest political methods.

Coming to Columbus after a day of campaigning over the stamping ground of his democratic opponent, Governor Cox, the republican nominee delivered a big meeting in the memorial hall here his last campaign message from the stump. He was greeted at the railway station by a cheering crowd and later was acclaimed by thousands as he drove through the streets.

In all of his speeches, Mr. Harding emphasized his stand on domestic issues, which he declared the democratic managers had sought to obscure by a fog of debate about the league of nations. He also asserted repeatedly that it was the "confidence" of the nation to which he was appealing, and that the methods of his party in the campaign had been free from sectional or class appeal.

Campaign Closes From Start. "There isn't anything that has happened in this campaign," he said, "that the republican party or its nominee is ever going to be called upon to apologize for."

On the way here from Cincinnati, where he spent last night, the senator spoke at Middletown, the boyhood home of Governor Cox; at Dayton, where the governor lives and at Springfield, the home of one of Governor Cox's newspapers. In none of his speeches did he mention his opponent's name, but he made many references to the democratic nominee's campaign utterances and voiced in pointed terms his own reply to them. At Middletown, where many steel workers were in the crowd, Mr. Harding argued for the protective tariff policy to preserve the American steel industry and repeated his declaration that intelligent public opinion must be the judge at the polls.

"We are witnessing today," he said, "practically the close of a great political campaign and as one speaking for the republican party, I rejoice to say to you that we have tried to make our appeal to the confidence of the American people."

Appeal Made to Intelligence. "We have tried to speak to the intelligence of America, because in popular government dependable, intelligent public opinion is the final authority."

"We have sought to promote unity and understanding. We have sought to bring Americans together. We have sought to eliminate all thought of class. We have sought to ignore every suggestion of party, race, color, more, there isn't anything that has happened in this campaign that the republican party or its nominee is ever going to be called upon to apologize for."

Dayton turned out a crowd so great that although they were packed around the rear platform of his train in a dense mass, many could not get close enough to hear the short speech. They cheered his hits at one-man government and bade him goodbye in a great roar of applause when the train pulled out. It was the republican nominee's first campaign visit to the home town of his opponent and in his talk he declared his hesitancy about bringing a republican message there.

Apology Made For Invasion. "I have some notion about the ethics of politics," he said, "which made me feel that I did not care to come to Dayton with a republican message and personally to speak for opposite parties. I am a believer in government through political parties."

He added an apology for the short stop made by his train, saying that "the campaign fund which we possess is not so large as some of you may have heard or thought, and we are not traveling on a special train."

Two speeches were made by the senator in Springfield. One was in Memorial hall, packed by a crowd that cheered him repeatedly, and the other to an overflow crowd that blocked the street outside.

Two Rivals for Justice.

On the ballot are two offices to be filled for which no names are printed. These are for judge of the supreme court and attorney-general. George M. Brown, who recently was appointed to the bench by Governor Olcott, is a candidate. Mr. Brown is a republican and has the indorsement of the republican state committee. W. O. McCarthy, democrat, is also a contender and is being backed by the democratic organization. The names of Mr. Brown and Mr. McCarthy must be written in on the ballot.

For attorney-general there are three republican aspirants—J. H. Van Winkle, who was appointed attorney-general after the resignation of Mr. Brown; J. O. Bailey, formerly an assistant attorney-general; and J. J. Johnson, who has been connected with the grange. The democratic aspirant is O. H. Coshow. Those desiring to support any of these candidates must write in the name of their choice on the ballot.

There is no other contests on the state ticket, and all republican nominees will be elected. The same is trials of the republican nominees for office in Multnomah county. In the municipal election there are four aspirants for mayor, with Mayor Baker, candidate for re-election, the popular choice. Contending for second place are Herbert Gordon and Dan Keilaker. Norman Richards is bringing up the rear. Preferential voting is permissible but not compulsory for mayor. An elector may vote for three choices if he desires. For city commissioner the preferential voting does not rule. There are two commissioners to elect, no second choice is allowed. The nominees are J. M. Mann and A. L. Barbur, incumbents, and T. L. Perkins and J. B. Ziegler.

18 Measures on Ballot. To add to the worries of the electors, there are 11 measures on the

REPUBLICANS FORECAST MAJORITIES.

Conservative estimates, based on reports received from every county in the state, warrant the following prediction: First—Harding and Coolidge will carry Oregon by 60,000 votes. Second—Robert N. Stanfield, republican nominee for United States senator, will be elected by plurality of 20,000 to 25,000 votes. Third—C. N. McArthur, republican nominee for congress in the third district will be elected by 18,000 to 20,000 votes.

Fourth—Representatives W. C. Hawley, N. J. Sigmund will be elected by a comfortable majority, so large that they are impossible to estimate. The voters of Oregon are determined to stand solidly behind Harding and Coolidge and to give them the support of a republican senate and congress. (Signed) R. E. WILLIAMS.

Democrats Also Claim Oregon.

In 1918, 246,000 voters were cast for the leading candidates, of which Mr. Hughes received 126,000, Mr. Wilson 120,000, 77 per cent of the total registration in 1916 voting for the two leading candidates. Basing the estimate vote for next Tuesday 260,000 for the leading candidates, assuming Mr. Cox will receive the Wilson vote of 1916, plus 10 per cent increase on account of the league of nations, which I believe to be conservative, will give Mr. Cox the state by 16,000. A conservative estimate on the majority for chamberlains in this state will be 25,000. We also predict the election of Dr. Lovejoy for governor in the third district by not less than 10,000.

state ballot and seven on the municipal ballot. Active campaigns have been conducted for and against several of the state measures, but on the city ballot the only measure against which there has been opposition is the 3-mill levy. Heretofore when municipal and other elections were held on the same day, it has been customary to have separate ballots. For convenience, however, on this occasion, presidential, state, county and city candidates and measures have been printed on one ballot, which makes it a long strip of paper.

On the legislative ticket the republican candidates have everything their own way. For the senate only one democrat is a candidate and for the house of the 13 names on the ballot, with 12 to elect, 12 are republicans and one a democrat. Mrs. M. L. T. Hadden, however, has announced herself an independent candidate for representative in the legislature in campaigning to have her name written in on the ballot.

AIR SERVICE INVOLVED

Democratic Members of Congress Also Made Parties to Action Based Upon Alleged Conspiracy.

THE OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, Oct. 30.—E. L. Rice, an inventor, formerly of Spokane, now located here, brought suit today in the supreme court of the District of Columbia against Newton D. Baker, secretary of war; Postmaster General Burleson, several army officers and 100 or more democratic members of congress, demanding damages in the sum of $1,000,000.

The suit grows out of negotiations between Rice and the war department for the sale of several aircraft inventions submitted by the inventor at the beginning of the war.

Inventions Are Turned Over. Rice charges that his inventions, together with several costly models, were turned over to the war department and that two of the defendants, who were officers in the war department, reported to the department that the inventions were valuable, but that the real inventor was D. L. Webster, who is made a party to the suit.

The plaintiff says efforts were made to have him sent to San Francisco in order to get him out of the way, and that a position was given him as consulting engineer in the war department to hush him up, but finally he received no salary.

He sets forth that Secretary Baker refused to investigate charges that he was being robbed of his invention, but that President Wilson ordered an investigation, which resulted in the indictment of the two alleged conspirators and directed that Rice be paid salary withheld and that he be reimbursed for his inventions.

Rice says that Secretary Baker pigeon-holed this report and discharged from the army the officer who wrote it. Secretary Baker, he recites, refused to reveal this report, even when ordered by a resolution of the house, passed at the instance of Representative Johnson of Washington. The members of congress who are made defendants appear to be brought into it by reason of their votes against the Johnson resolution. Rice says that by reason of the treatment received he was impoverished to the point where he lost his family, that though young his hair turned white and besides he lost models which it would now cost $2000 to produce. Also he says he was deprived the opportunity to sell his inventions to the allied governments.

Leaves Are Car Hazard. SALEM, Or., Oct. 30.—(Special)—Fred G. Buchtel, chairman of the Oregon public service commission, in a letter written and addressed to Franklin T. Griffith, president of the Portland Railway, Light & Power company, called attention to complaints that falling leaves, especially on grades, had made operation of the corporation's cars hazardous. Request was made by Mr. Buchtel that the company take some action to remedy the conditions and thereby insure the safety of passengers.

Taxpayers Turn to Gordon. Owing to his stand against the extra 3-mill levy, saddling approximately $900,000 onto them, the taxpayers throughout Portland are turning to Herbert Gordon as the only man who can lead them out of the financial wilderness. Reports from all points, excepting the north end, indicate this. (Paid Advertisement, Gordon-for-Mayor club; Ralph Coan, Pres.; C. C. Stout, Secy.)
