THANKSGIVING EDICT OUT

OLCOTT NAMES NOVEMBER 25 AS DAY OF GRATITUDE.

Governor Proclaims Legal Holiday and Urges People to Observe Feast With Prayer.

SALEM, Or., Nov. 13.—(Special.)—Governor Olcott, in a proclamation issued here today, declared Thursday, November 25, as Thanksgiving day and urged the people of Oregon to halt their commercial and industrial activities on that occasion that they might appropriately observe the national holiday.

SALEM, Or., Nov. 13.—(Special.)—The annual teachers' institute of Marion county will be held in the high school building here, November 22, 23 and 24. Mrs. Mary L. Fulker, county school superintendent; Miss Cora Reid, deputy; and Frank H. Scrubbs, rural school supervisor, will be in charge. The program includes addresses by prominent Oregon educators, discussions and a number of other features.

Babies To Be Examined. ALBANY, Or., Nov. 13.—(Special.)—A better baby convention will be held in the Community house here next week under the direction of Miss Charlotte Walker, county health nurse, and the Red Cross chapter. One hundred ninety-one babies have been entered and three days will be devoted to judging the youngsters. Two days will be utilized for clinics.

Students Explore Mounds. OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE Corvallis, Nov. 13.—(Special.)—History students under Professor J. B. Horner left early Saturday morning for prehistoric burial mounds on the Calapoosia river, where they spent the morning exploring the mounds. Two historical museums at Albany were visited on the trip. The party left Corvallis at 8:30 and returned about 1 o'clock.

Teachers' Institute Scheduled. SALEM, Or., Nov. 13.—(Special.)—The annual teachers' institute of Marion county will be held in the high school building here, November 22, 23 and 24. Mrs. Mary L. Fulker, county school superintendent; Miss Cora Reid, deputy; and Frank H. Scrubbs, rural school supervisor, will be in charge.
