

SWEET AND COOLING CONVERSE PROMISED

Ice Cream Topic of Portlanders This Week.

COAST CONVENTION OPENS

More Than 1000 Persons Interested in Great Industry Coming for Annual Meet.

Brisk east winds may not bring thoughts of ice cream to the average Portlander, but ice cream promises to be one of the leading topics of the week, because of the gathering of more than 1000 persons in Portland who are interested in the ice cream industry to attend the fifth annual convention of the Pacific Ice Cream Manufacturers' association and the All-Pacific exhibitions of ice cream supplies, equipment and machinery by the association of ice cream supply men.

The convention opens tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in the public auditorium, continuing throughout the week. The business sessions as well as the exhibits will be open at all times to the public, with a special public meeting on Wednesday night when food specialists will discuss milk and ice cream and their relation to public health.

Members of the Portland ice cream industry are making every effort to make this convention a success, because upon the success of the meeting this week hinges the selection of Portland as the 1921 meeting place for the national ice cream manufacturers' association, composed of thousands of members.

The convention will be opened tomorrow by Joseph E. Dunne, president of the association and manager of the Hazelwood company. HOME ATMOSPHERE IDEAL

COTTAGE TYPE OF BUILDING FAVORED FOR ORPHANS.

Dr. Philip A. Parsons Tells Civic League That Object Is to Get Away From Barracks Idea.

The "cottage" type of construction for institutions for housing homeless and orphan children has been adopted by the child welfare commission as the type most fitted for such use, according to Dr. Philip A. Parsons, director of the Portland school of sociological work of the University of Oregon and member of the child welfare commission, who spoke at the luncheon of the Civic league yesterday at the Benson hotel.

Dr. Parsons said that this type of construction made for the home atmosphere so much desired for the children. "We want to get away as much as possible from the barracks-like track building, from the uniform and large dining halls and everything that makes for lack of home atmosphere so often seen in institutions," he said.

Dr. Parsons also touched on the need for an institution for taking care of the boys and girls who had inefficient parents or lack of care and so had certain careers of crime ahead of them. He said that there were many children in the pre-incorrigible stage of their existence and there was need for a place where they could be put and thus saved to society.

One of the big problems coming up in the care of orphan children, Dr. Parsons said, was the proper placing of the child in a home. He said that an effort was being made to work out some system, as it certainly should not be the practice to place a child wherever someone could be found who would take it.

A plea that each person should not think of himself, but have a broad and generous interest in humanity was made by Wm. D. Wheeler.

J. E. Dunne, president Pacific Ice Cream Men's association.

wright, head of the child welfare commission, who told of the work which is being done by various orphanages and baby homes in the city. "The kind of selfishness I want you to have is that divine selfishness which takes delight in doing for others," he said.

Miss Ethel R. Sawyer of the library spoke on children's book week at the library.

TURKEY PRICE UNSETTLED

FEW DEALERS BUY SUPPLY FOR THANKSGIVING TRADE.

Country Shippers Reluctant to Set Figure, Hoping for Rise Later in Season.

Poultry dealers are unable to tell just what will be the price of Thanksgiving turkeys. Few of them have bought their supplies because shippers are reluctant to make a price yet, hoping that the market will improve at the last moment.

It is the opinion of retailers that prices will be no higher than last year, and may be lower. Last Thanksgiving the price averaged about 60 cents for the best turkeys and dealers hope that the price will not go over 50 cents this year.

Other poultry also promises to be in good supply. Dressed hens are selling at 35 to 45 cents, according to size, and are expected to hold at that. The same prices prevailed last year.

Dressed geese are expected to bring 50 cents, as they did a year ago. Prices of other Thanksgiving goods have declined slightly and some of them, cranberries, especially, are higher. There was a short cranberry crop in the United States this year and the price has advanced about 25 per cent.

POLICE SEIZE PIE FILLER

30 Gallons Have Lofly Kick; 2 Cooks Lose $71 in Pay.

ROSEBURG, Or., Nov. 13.—(Special.)—J. A. Keller and S. A. Savensky, cooks employed at a road camp near here, were arrested yesterday by police officers on charges of having in their possession a barrel of moonshine whiskey.

The cooks said the contents of the barrel were intended for mince-meat to be served to laborers during the holiday period, but the officers declared the liquid part of the concoction entirely too strong to pass government inspection. Thirty gallons of the mixture were found at the camp, and the foreman has held $71 out on a life insurance policy carried by the material contained in the concoction.

SALEM, Or., Nov. 13.—(Special.)—The annual meeting of the Older Boys' conference for western Oregon will be held in Salem December 10, 11 and 12. More than 200 boys will be in attendance at the conference.

WAR BRIDE IS DEFENDANT

Soldier Married on Transport Instigates Suit for Divorce.

A homesick war bride who remained with her husband on this side of the Atlantic but two months is defendant in a divorce suit filed yesterday by William Jones against Henrietta Jones. They were married by the chaplain on the transport Susquehanna coming from Bordeaux, France, in August, 1919. Jones says his bride left him October 22, saying her mother was ill in France. He has never seen her since, although he learned that she had borrowed $100 from the Red Cross in New York city.

Supreme Court Appeal Filed.

An appeal was filed yesterday to the supreme court by Mrs. Minna Trautmann from the decision of the circuit court in September in her suit against the supreme lodge of Knights of Pythias. She sought recovery of $1000 on a life insurance policy carried by her husband, John Trautmann, who before his death was engaged in the saloon business. The defendant maintained that he was ineligible to carry a policy in the order on this account.

WOMAN LINKED TO DEAL

Grand Jury and City's Chief Executive Tilt; Investigation Ends Monday.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 13.—(Special.)—W. M. Whitney, former president of the Young Men's Republican club here, was not engaged as a "detective" in the $10,000 street-car probe, Mayor Caldwell declared today.

Whitney was not engaged by me to investigate the deal," said Caldwell. "He had not received any money appropriated for my investigation of the street railway purchase. He was not sent east by me."

A part of the $10,000 appropriated by the city council for Caldwell's probe of the traction deal was reported to have been devoted to Whitney's "junketing" trip to Boston and New York and other eastern cities. The mayor also denied that Mrs. Sweetman, the "mystery woman" of the grand jury investigation, was connected in any way with his probe of the street-car deal.

Hearing unexpected developments, indications today were that the grand jury's inquiry into Caldwell's investigation of the city's street railway purchase—a probe within a probe—will be completed Monday.

This, it is believed, will conclude all the grand jury's activities for this year. The jury will file a written report of its findings with J. T. Honold, presiding judge, before being dismissed.

The mayor said he did not believe the jury would get anywhere with its investigation so long as Brown was conducting the examination of witnesses.

He criticized the prosecutor for "gumming up" his investigation of the street-car deal.

Brown replied that the mayor "is getting unduly excited, using his tongue instead of his head."

It is manufactured exclusively in Patrick woolen mills and made up into garments in Patrick factories. Patrick controls every manufacturing process—from raw wool to finished garments.
