STREAMS AND CREEKS OF DOUGLAS COUNTY BETWEEN RANGES 8 AND 9 ARE CITED

Information Sought as to Where Canyon Creek Flows Into Umpqua River From Residents of Glide or Winchester—Maps Lacking in Detail.

BY ADDISON BENNETT.

This is the 27th of a series of articles by Mr. Bennett on Oregon waterways. The 28th will follow at an early date, presumably the Sunday following this article. Readers of The Oregonian would do well to save these articles, for when concluded they will present the first authentic tabulation of our rivers, lakes and creeks.

Having finished the streams in township 23 south, ranges 1 to 3 west (Douglas county), I will now begin at the west border of the county at the line between ranges 8 and 9, in township 23 south. The first stream is in township 1, Lookingglass creek, 16 miles long, which has one named feeder, Olallie creek, 23 miles long; next is Roberts creek, 12 miles long; then Lee creek, nine miles long; Rick creek, eight miles long; then White Rock creek, eight miles long. The latter has one named feeder, Copperhead creek, seven miles long. That finishes the streams flowing into others in township 23 south. Beginning at the west side of township 27 south, the first stream is Bear creek, five miles long; then Panther creek, 11 miles long; Five Mile creek, 12 miles long, all flowing into Lost creek, 25 miles long, in Douglas county. This stream flows into Coos county.

Stockie creek, seven miles long, then Deer creek, ten miles long. It flows into the South Umpqua at Roseburg and has two named branches. (Continued on Page 3.)

Bengal — American Made Oriental Rugs

Created in America to Fit Present-Day Needs

Reproduced in Feraghan, Mahal Kirman, Bokara

The inspiration of the Bengal Oriental rug came twenty-five years ago to one who made a life study of the weaver's art. The desire was to faithfully reproduce the beauty and service of the rugs of the Old World—to re-create in America for those who held the Oriental rugs as an ideal—a fabric which embodied not only harmony of colorings and artistry of design, but one which was woven in an unbroken surface—entirely in one piece and as soft, flexible and rich of pile as its prototype the Oriental rug, at the same time always keeping in mind the necessity for a price low enough to bring the rugs within the reach of the average purse.
