Toyland-Santa's Land

A real, live, busy little world occupies a prominent part of our spacious second floor with its cities, buildings, trains, wagons, automobiles, soldiers, aeroplanes, battleships and all. It is guarded by great armies of gayly-dressed soldiers, watched by gracefully-flying aeroplanes hovering over it like huge birds, surrounded by big gray battleships that frown upon its walls, and it is honey-combed with swiftly-moving railroad trains, both steam and electric. Hurrying onward to their destinations, these trains pass through tunnels, over bridges, by stations and pass other trains. The whole picture is complete—it is a veritable child's paradise and every boy and girl in Portland should see it before writing to jolly old Santa Claus.
