GAZ carnival features, saucy balloons of brilliant hue and a wealth of spring flowers lending added color and a breath of springtime gave the Waverley Country club ballroom a festive appearance on Tuesday night, when Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Shevin entertained at the smartest Mardi Gras ball that probably ever has been witnessed in Portland.

Strikingly lovely were the gowns of the women and the supper tables were most attractive. Mrs. Shevin was regal and lovely in a gown of deep, rich blue elaborated with crystal beads.

Except that the fair guests wore evening gowns instead of costumes, the affair reminded one of the Mardi Gras balls of San Francisco. The same spirit of merrymaking and festive charm held sway that is found in the social affair that is the annual event of the bay city.

And, as many Portlanders are interested in that other social affair, it is not amiss now to recall San Francisco's brilliant ball of this same evening. It was held in the Exposition auditorium there, and from point of fantastic splendor was the most colorful and gorgeous Mardi Gras carnival ever held there. The queen, Mrs. Katherine Ross Hoyt, wore a Black velvet was used, with tulle on the bodice.

Mrs. Henry Cheney was gowned in black, which she wore with distinction.

Mrs. Erskine Wood was lovely in a gown of pink chiffon.

Black satin with tulle and touches of gold were combined in the gown worn so charmingly by Mrs. Curtis Bailey.

Mrs. Ferdinand Smith wore a chic gown of white satin.

Mrs. Lee Hawley Hoffman was beautiful in blue satin.

White satin and white lace were fashioned into a charmingly lovely gown worn by Mrs. Victor Johnson.

Mrs. Hunt Lewis was gowned in black, with a suggestion of gold as a contrasting note.

Mrs. Morris Crumacker, Mrs. Richard V. Look, Mrs. Bert Mackay and many others were especially attractive, but to choose those most lovely would be a task, for there were scores of most beautiful gowns, and when the festive paper caps of the carnival were worn each dancer caught the spirit of enthusiasm and the throng of gayly attired guests made a picture of color and dazzling array.

On Washington's birthday the Alameda Tuesday club is to give a colonial tea at the home of Mrs. Charles Dant. A community clubhouse is the goal to which the enthusiastic Alamedans are working. No effort is being spared to present an attractive programme. A cordial invitation is extended to all. True colonial dames will dispense hospitality.

Mrs. Cameron Squires entertained the Junior league on Monday, when a business session was followed by a tea. Miss Irene Dely was elected president of the league, succeeding Rhoda Runelin (now Mrs. Daniel D. Madden), whose marriage was an event of last night. Mrs. Carlton Swift was chosen first vice-president; Mrs. Henry Ladd Corbett, second vice-president; Miss Gwendys Bowen, treasurer, and Mrs. Cameron Squires, secretary.

Portland smart set of the older families will be interested in the announcement received here by friends of Colonel J. J. Bradley, U. S. A., to the effect that Miss Frances Shaden Bradley, daughter of Colonel and Mrs. Bradley, will be married in Easter week in the Palace chapel at Coblenz, Germany, to Lieutenant W. E. Chickering, U. S. A., aide to General Fred W. Sladen, U. S. A. Society who knew Mrs. Bradley will remember her as Carrie Sladen, one of the popular and charming members of the social and army sets. She was a girlhood friend of the Fallings, Corbetts and Hoyts and her marriage was a brilliant military event at the old church at Fourth and Alder streets. The daughter, Miss Frances Shaden Bradley, is said to be a strikingly lovely and accomplished girl. She hasn't been to Portland for a long time but Colonel Bradley has visited here and General Fred Sladen and his brothers are well-known in the west.

Mrs. Elliott Corbett entertained on Monday for Mrs. Richard V. Look, who is visiting her aunt, Mrs. C. Hunt Lewis. On Friday evening Mrs. Lee Hawley Hoffman was hostess for Mrs. Look.

Mrs. William MacMaster entertained at Ardour on Tuesday, when she had guests to make up eight ta-
