

EASTERN OREGON UP IN POLITICAL GAME

Long Disregarded Section Takes Important Role.

U. S. SENATORSHIP WON

Effect of Organization Also Is Noted in State Legislation on Port of Portland.

Long disregarded, Eastern Oregon is coming to the front politically and is playing an important role. Formerly western Oregon monopolized the offices, almost exclusively, but there is now a steady movement under way by which Eastern Oregon is a factor to be reckoned with.

Legislation is affected. When the port of Portland bills were in the senate, at the recent legislature, the Eastern Oregon senators manipulated the situation until they succeeded in having Thompson and Thomas Mahoney elected on the commission.

Entrenchment is increased. Eastern Oregon, through the reapportionment bill, will have more strongly entrenched in the 1923 session than ever before.

Formerly Eastern Oregon had one man, Marion Jack, on the fish and game commission.

For collector of internal revenue, Eastern Oregon has H. Pearce, of La Grande, against Clyde G. Huntley, of Oregon City, and any other contender who may aspire to this place.

The interesting feature is this. The grip which Western Oregon has held politically on the state is being loosened and Eastern Oregon is demanding its full share of patronage and recognition.
