

DELAY IN DISARMING IS PUZZLING WORLD

People Said to Be Wondering
What Obstructs Action.

U. S. MOVE IS SUGGESTED

Harding Is Declared to Have Good
Opportunity to Signalize New Job by Calling Conference.

BY ARTHUR HENDERSON.
Ex-Member of the British War Cabinet.
(In his radio speech today, Mr. Henderson, who speaks for liberal thought in Great Britain, asks when some concrete step will be taken to end the world's armament. He sees possible light in Russia, but takes a gloomy view of the allied policy respecting German reparations.)
(Copyright, 1921, by The Oregonian.)

LONDON, March 19.—(Special by Wireless).—Amid the maneuvering of governments on the question of disarmament, the peoples of the world who are not only ready but eager for concerted disarmament, are wondering where the difficulty of making progress lies.

The United States has a big ship-building programme, it seems, but is ready to discuss armament reduction. Great Britain, owing, it is said, to the great naval increase in the naval strength of the powers, is being called upon by the governments to increase its navy so that it always may be the equal of any other single power.

Still the first lord of the British admiralty declared he welcomed the hint thrown out by President Harding regarding a disarmament conference on an early date. He said the suggestion would not only continue to meet the most cordial and helpful response her, but that he himself would take part in the discussions.

Competition Kept Up.

In the meanwhile, unless something definite is done, navy competition promises to proceed apace. British labor has lined up and is heartily in support of immediate steps to obtain international disarmament. It has gone so far as to propose that the government should enter into efforts to bring about disarmament wherever it has been rejected by the leading powers of the civilized world.

Labor feels that these powers should be approached at once, and that the request that joint consideration be given to the possibilities of disarmament. What is required for one of the leading nations to take the initiative?

President Harding could not better signalize his advent to the high office he now holds than by issuing in the name of the American republic an invitation to the other governments of the world to take part at once in a disarmament discussion.

American Initiative Suggested.

The European powers seem to be too busy liquidating the war situation to make a move, but great good for the whole world might result from the powerful initiative of America.

A large share of interest in London this week has centered about the British-Russian armistice. It is likely to lead to important developments internally as well as internationally. It not only has given a definite new turn to British policy in relation to Russia, but is almost certain to introduce more liberal inquiries into the Russian policy of the allies, and perhaps to extend a steady influence in Russia itself. For the past two years it is admitted that the hands of the soviet rulers in Russia have been strengthened by outside military assaults. They have been able to maintain their sway by rallying the Russian people to resist these assaults.

Outbreak Thought Significant.

With the fire of outside accusation and assault definitely quenched, it remains to be seen to what extent the soviet government can count upon willing support of the Russian people. The events of the past three days in Russia have been closely watched here. The Krasnodar outbreak is regarded as significant, and while it may not lead to a complete change of government, it indicates a serious cleavage internally.

What has been certain during many months past is that the allied policy of hostility has been a big asset to the bolsheviks. It has been a big counter proposal, to embody all the virtues and none of the faults of the Mill-creek enterprise. According to Dr. Fred Thompson, city health officer and leader of the opposition which defeated the bond issue, the only absolutely pure and sufficient source of supply within reach had been introduced before a half dozen other more or less deserving and somewhat similarly situated communities had arranged measures, and one of them passed one house of the legislature and came near passing the other.

Dangerous Precedent Seen.

"I cannot believe this is a fair disbursement of state funds. I cannot see wherein the taxpayers of distant parts of the state can be justly taxed for this appropriation. Besides, this is a most dangerous precedent and opens the vaults of the treasury to every locality that makes some kind of a showing of need of assistance."

"In fact this state has been introduced before a half dozen other more or less deserving and somewhat similarly situated communities had arranged measures, and one of them passed one house of the legislature and came near passing the other."

An Appropriation of $5000 for extermination of squirrels and other injurious rodents is disapproved by the governor because in his opinion legislative liberality in providing funds for state college field and extension work makes the extra squirrel appropriation unnecessary.

Seattle Police Relied Upon.

House bill No. 194, also vetoed, is an act prohibiting the maintenance of games for hire in the vicinity of the University of Washington and providing penalties for violations.

Governor Hart explains his veto of house bill No. 194 as follows:

"I can see no good reason for limiting the provisions of such a bill as this to the vicinity of the state university. Amendments offered in good faith in the house to extend its provisions to the state college and normal schools were strenuously and successfully objected to by the friends of this measure and the charge made on the floor that this was intended to protect a particular poolroom was not denied."

"I cannot believe the Seattle police less capable of keeping pure the local atmosphere around an institution of learning than are those of Pullman, Bellingham, Cheney or Ellensburg, fully relying upon the city authorities to act promptly and effectively whenever complaint shall be made by the regents or president of the university."

ASTORIAN SOVIET ENVOY

Santori Nuorteva, Finnish Editor, High in Red Councils.

ASTORIA, Or., March 19.—(Special).—That the Russian soviet government is planning to send Santori Nuorteva as ambassador to the United States, if diplomatic relations are re-established, is stated in advices received from Helsinki by the local Finnish papers. Toverti, Nuorteva was secretary to Ludwig I. A. K. Martens, bolshevik agent in the United States, and left this country last fall while the senate investigation was in progress. He went to Canada and thence to England. He was deported from there to Finland. According to reports received here Nuorteva has acted as chief Russian foreign commissar of northern Europe. He was editor of the Finnish paper here from 1911 to 1914.

NEGRO HANGED BY MOB

Prisoner Accused of Attack on Aged White Woman Is Victim.

WATER VALLEY, Miss., March 19.—A negro charged with attacking an aged white woman yesterday, was taken from the jail here by a mob today and hanged. His body was then riddled with bullets.

LESS MEAT IS CONSUMED

American Appetite Slumps Ten Pounds Per Capita.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—Americans ate ten pounds less meat per capita last year than during 1918, but 11 pounds more than during the first war year, according to figures made public today by the department of agriculture. The consumption of meat and lard combined last year was 154.3 pounds per capita.

Less meat was produced, less exported and less consumed in 1920 than in either of the two preceding years, the announcement said. Beef consumption has fallen from 78 pounds ten years ago to not quite 56½ pounds per head of population last year. Veal was said to be gaining steadily in favor and calves marketed last year were more than double that of six years previous.

Jews Organize Defense.

LONDON, March 19.—(Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—A Jewish defense guard has been organized throughout Russia and Ukraine to protect Jewish communities against pogroms, according to M. Salzman, a relief representative of Canadian Jewry, who has just returned here from Russia.

Obituary.

NEWPORT, Or., March 19.—(Special).—Frederick Greenbrook, an early-day farmer, died on his Big Creek farm near Newport March 8 from heart disease. Mr. Greenbrook was 76 years old and had been identified with the upbuilding of Lincoln county since 1877.

Born in Denmark, he became a sailor at the age of 12 and sailed every sea, finally finishing in the great lakes after marrying Miss Mary Leveque, a French Canadian, in Chicago when he was 35 years old. Once he was the sole survivor of a wreck in the Indian ocean and he was wrecked on several other occasions.

Coming to Oregon, he helped to clear land now in the center of East Portland and then moved to his late residence. He was on the surveying crew which laid out the Yaquina bay branch of the Southern Pacific Railroad company, then under private

FIVE BILLS VETOED BY GOVERNOR HART

State Investment in Farm
Loan Bonds Stopped.

REALTY TITLE PROTECTED

Appropriation of $100,000 for
Union High School at Bremerton
Meets Executive Disapproval.

OLYMPIA, Wash., March 19.—(Special).—Governor Hart today vetoed senate bill 80, senate bill 75, house bill 104, house bill 130 and house bill 89. Senate bill 80 is an "act making farm loan bonds a lawful instrument and a lawful deposit for certain purposes." In explaining his veto on this measure Governor Hart says:

"Two reasons might be given for making any class of bonds eligible for investment of public funds. First, on account of a shortage of this class of securities to supply such demand. Second, to stabilize and raise the price of such securities. Surely the first condition does not exist at this time, nor will it for some time to come. I cannot see any reason for rushing in to make federal farm loan bonds eligible for investment of our school funds at a time when we cannot take 'Biting and recording certificates of delinquencies in the county auditor's office is not much of a burden upon the people who deal in this class of securities. I know of no good reason for maintaining a portion of the chain of title to real estate in the office of the county treasurer. The only effect of this bill would be to cloud titles and increase litigation, and it is therefore vetoed."

Best Estate Titles Kept Clear.

In vetoing house bill No. 130, Governor Hart explains his action as follows:

"From time immemorial the people have been taught to look to the recorder in the office of the county auditor for notice to the public of condition of title to real estate. 'Biting and recording certificates of delinquencies in the county auditor's office is not much of a burden upon the people who deal in this class of securities. I know of no good reason for maintaining a portion of the chain of title to real estate in the office of the county treasurer. The only effect of this bill would be to cloud titles and increase litigation, and it is therefore vetoed."

House Bill No. 130 is an "act relating to redemption of land belonging to minors or insane people to seven years after sale for delinquent taxes, the governor says the choice of the University of Washington and providing penalties for violations."

Governor Hart explains his veto of house bill No. 194 as follows:

"I can see no good reason for limiting the provisions of such a bill as this to the vicinity of the state university. Amendments offered in good faith in the house to extend its provisions to the state college and normal schools were strenuously and successfully objected to by the friends of this measure and the charge made on the floor that this was intended to protect a particular poolroom was not denied."

High School Bill Vetoed.

Senate bill 75, appropriating $100,000 for construction of a union high school at Bremerton, on argument that the district is financially handicapped by expropriation of the navy yard property from taxation, is another veto recorded today, justified by the governor as follows:

"There is no doubt regarding the burden the people of Bremerton are carrying in providing schools and school facilities for the children residing there. Whether the navy yard is an asset or a liability, I have no doubt there are numerous localities in the state that would be willing to accept the plan with all the things that go with it, even to the extent of furnishing school facilities as required."

"In fact only three or four years ago, Pierce county paid $2,000,000 to locate an army cantonment in that county, and at the same time permanently took from their tax rolls real estate of that value. I do not cite this with intent to express any opinion as to the propriety of the bargain, but merely to show what different localities will do. It is claimed that the federal government has many millions of dollars' worth of property in Bremerton not on the tax roll. Grant it. The government put all the wealth there, while in Pierce county the people deliberately took the property off the tax roll."

Dangerous Precedent Seen.

"I cannot believe this is a fair disbursement of state funds. I cannot see wherein the taxpayers of distant parts of the state can be justly taxed for this appropriation. Besides, this is a most dangerous precedent and opens the vaults of the treasury to every locality that makes some kind of a showing of need of assistance."

"In fact this state has been introduced before a half dozen other more or less deserving and somewhat similarly situated communities had arranged measures, and one of them passed one house of the legislature and came near passing the other."
