Head of Portland Chamber of Commerce and Others Appear Before Senate Committee.

THE OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU. Washington, D. C., May 21 .- A picture of the greatest ultimate irrigation possibilities in the Columbia river basin to be found in any one dis-trict of the American continent was presented to the irrigation and arid

As the meeting was for all western states, Mr. Dodson informed the sen-ate committee that he did not present figures on the great Columbia river states, Mr. Dodson informed the senate committee that he did not present figures on the great Columbia river watershed for invidious comparison, but merely to impress upon the nation as a whole the enormous opportunity for land reclamation in the tunity for land reclamation in the states of Oregon, Washington and Columbia's Flow Enormous.

"The Columbia discharges nearly as much water annually as the Mississippi," said Mr Dodson, "yet its watershed covers only about 250,000 square miles, while the Mississippi basin contains approximately 1,250,00 square miles. At the mouth of the Columbia the annual flow is nearly 200,000,000 acre-feet, and at The Dailes, where the stream leaves the semi-arid region needing irrigation, the mean annual flow for 30 years had

As number includes approximately 120 surveys continue, as the demand for applicants residing outside of the food grows in this country, as the value of land rises, enormous acreages will be declared available for High School B reclamation in the western states, which now are passed as non-com-mercial. And when the needs of the nation dictate use of these lands the

While the speaker did not empha-size the point, as the meeting was for all the west, the effect of his fig-ures and argument was that the Co-lumbia basin region, with several times more water than all the other streams of the west combined, must inevitably become the theater of reclamation work comparably beyond anything yet witnessed.
As significant of the importance of this work to the entire nation, Mr. Dodson called the attention of the committee to the total relative areas within the reclamation states and outside. In this he set forth the landed area of the United States proper was placed at 1,900,000,000 acres. The 16 reclamation states have a landed area of slightly more than 1,000,000,000 acres.

"Here you have half of your total area in the nation proper in a condition where it is conceded that fur-ther material agricultural develop-ment depends upon irrigation," he continued. "Except for your over-flow lands in the southern and east-ern states, you have no other section where you can extend your serious.

In the end, with lower prices for money as well as for commodities, including labor, the country can do business with a smaller capital investment. In times of stress there was consequently no uniformity of banks action and no certainty that business could secure credit or the price that would have to be paid for it. The banks loaned money to the limit permitted by the reserve position. When their reserves were reduced to the point beyond, which the law said they must not go they stopped lending and panic often followed.

Problem Delicate One. The theory—and the practice so far as it has been tested—of the reserve banks is that merchants and manu-

Irrigation work has reached the point where it must be done in great units, often by heavy storage of flood waters, and no other agency than the government can attempt this properly. If the nation wants more food, if it wants more room for young men who seek agricultural opportunities, it can go nowhere else than to this western haif included in the reclamation group, or to the overflow lands. The greatest opportunities are in the west. The whole nation must be interested in this issue."
