COAST TRACK MEET WINNED BY WASHINGTON

Six Records Are Broken and One Is Tied.

DISCUS SENT 148 FEET 6

Pope's Strong Arm and Hurley's Winged Feet Give Decision to Northern Competitors.

BY L. H. GREGORY.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, May 21.—(Special.)—The winged feet of Victor Hurley and the strong arm of Gus Pope gave the University of Washington the Pacific coast conference college track meet here today by a margin of 12 points over Oregon Agricultural college, her closest rival.

The score in points stood: Washington 60, Oregon Agricultural college 48, University of Oregon 38, Washington State college 18.

Although neither the University of California nor Stanford university were represented at Charley Paddock, the university of southern California's world champion sprinter, was kept away by illness, the athletes from the four northwest varieties upheld the honor of their section by setting a fast pace.

Six Records Are Broken.

In the course of the afternoon they broke six Pacific coast conference records and tied another. The former conference marks in the mile run, the two-mile run, the discus throw, the shot put, the half-mile and the javelin all went by the board. And in the 100-yard dash, the tiny Hurley of Washington sprinted the distance in 9.45 seconds, tying the former conference mark.

Three watches caught this time, so there can be no question about it. The Pacific coast and world's record, set years ago by Dan Kelly of Oregon and tied recently by Paddock of Southern California, is 9.25 seconds, but 9.45 is the century mark in racing fast. It ties the coast conference record made last year by Kirksey of Stanford.

Six Records Summed Up.

The six new Pacific coast conference records, which must not, however, be confused with Pacific coast records, were as follows:

One-mile run, won by Walkley of Oregon in 4:28, which is one-fifth of a second faster than the former mark.

Two-mile run, won by Hobart of Oregon Agricultural college in 9:21.45, the previous conference record being 9:54.45.

Discus won by Pope of Washington with 148 feet 6 inches, the previous mark being 138 feet 11 1/2 inches, held by Bartlett of Oregon.

Shot put, won by Sims of Oregon Agricultural college in 1:57.1-5, 4-5 of a second faster than the former distance mark, held by Pesky Sprott of California.

Shotput, won by Pope of Washington, with a heave of 45 feet 8 inches, bettering the former mark of 44 feet 6 1/2 inches, held by Powell, Oregon Agricultural college.

Javelin, won by Tuck of Oregon, at 123 feet 8 inches, which is 10 feet better than the former conference record held by Hanner of Stanford.

Conference Only Three Years Old.

This throw of Tuck's was five inches shorter than his own Pacific coast record of 133 feet 8 inches, made here last Saturday in a dual meet with Oregon Agricultural college, but it is a new conference mark for the same, as the longest throw yet made in a conference meet.

Similarly, the other records set here are not as good as previous Pacific coast marks yet are better than anything done previously in a coast conference meet. The coast conference, incidentally, is only three years old, consequently, conference records do not yet rank in importance with coast records.

Victor Hurley of Washington, a diminutive whirlwind on legs, was the individual star of the meet. He was first in the 100, in the 220 dashes and in the 200-yard low hurdles, the great events he entered. This gave him 15 points, the high individual score of the day.

Gus Pope, the Washington captain and weight man, was second high runner on the Washington team, but tied with Draper of Oregon for third point honors of the meet. Alvin Robert of Washington, Tuck of Oregon was second point winner with 10 1/2. He got his three-quarters of a point as one of the runners on the Oregon relay team, which took second place. After running his lap Tuck keeled over, plumb done up.

The crowd enjoyed a thrill when the runner of the 100-yard dash was announced, but the really spectacular event of the day was the mile run. Walkley, a lanky Oregon youth and second high runner on the Oregon team, strained neck and neck to the tape in a heart-breaking finish. They were so close that the thickness of a man's little finger did not separate their breathing of the tape. It was almost a dead heat. The judges ruled that Walkley finished a hairsbreadth in the lead, so he got first place. Both runners, utterly spent and winded by their efforts, tumbled in crumpled heaps on the cinder. Walkley later jogged to a fourth in the two-mile.

Sims Runs Beautiful Race.

Sims of Oregon Agricultural college ran a beautiful race in the half. It was a struggle from first to last, but at the finish Sims sprinted into the lead and was running away from the field at the tape. His time was 1:57.1-5 and it only a few fifths of a second under the coast record.

Arthur Tuck of Oregon was expected to better his coast mark of 133 feet 1 inch in the javelin, and obliged the spectators with one giant flip of the spear for 136 feet 2 inches. That would have given him not only the coast record, but the national college record as well, which is 134 feet 3 inches. But, unfortunately, Tuck had stepped barely over the line as he threw. That made it a foul, and he couldn't come up to the effort in succeeding tries.

An innovation in the quarter and the relay was introduced when the runners in both events were required to run in lanes. The purpose of the ruling was to obviate roughness and crowding on the track for inside positions. First in today's meet counted 5 points, seconds scored 3 points, thirds 2 points and fourths 1 point.
