WASHINGTON, D. C., June 25.—(Special.)—The democratic leaders are getting ready to decide among themselves on matters of policy, and to begin aggressive public action on the tariff. They may have some difficulty in formulating a policy with regard to the tariff which will command the complete loyalty of all democrats. But this difficulty does not trouble them much. They rather count on a few democrats in the senate and house, from Louisiana from Florida and elsewhere acting with the republicans on the tariff issue.

The novelty of the form of the present tariff bill as it will ultimately appear, and the changed conditions otherwise, will cause democratic leaders some delay in working out their policy. If they find it expedient to present to the country an alternative tariff programme, they will do what it is always possible and easy for an opposition party to do, namely, confine themselves to criticizing the republican measure. Things are generally easy for the democrats in a republican tariff session. Tariff-making, even at its best, even when it is done according to scientific principles, is full of opportunities for criticism. This is inherent in the nature of the case. A protective tariff, frankly, is a government paternalism toward some sections of the community, and an alert opposition is always able to make the most of the unpopularity of this sort of thing. The democratic leaders are full of hope and confidence. They believe that an energetic programme, adopted and pushed vigorously for a year, will enable them to regain congress in the election next year.

Phrase Rap Party.

That sounds like a large order. It is a fact, however, that the republican leaders who came here recently to attend the meeting of the national committee brought with them reports of disaffection. It was immediately after the meeting of the republican national committee that the town became full of phrases like "The honeymoon is over." "The honeymoon is over." It can always be taken for granted that at a period of a few months after the inauguration of a political party such phrases as these will begin to float about, and there will be the beginning of one degree or another of disaffection. It may or may not be associated with merit. Fundamentally, it is part of the tidal ebb and flow of popular mood, which forms an essential part of politics.

Phrases Rap Party.

The phrases about the "end of the honeymoon" which float about Washington are not commonly applied to Harding personally, nor to his cabinet. It is generally agreed that Harding's growth in the affections of the people continues. But as respects the republican party generally, some of the disaffection is undoubtedly real. It is reported not only by democratic leaders but by republican leaders also. That disaffection has gone a long way, for example, in one of the pivotal middle western states. It is said if the congressional elections, which are to be held next year, were held now, so far as this far is concerned, it would go democratic. This condition is said to be due not wholly to reaction on the part of the public, but to a certain extent, it is due to politics in the state in question. A good many of the appointments made by the present administration seem to have been distributed in such a way as to renew and inflame the always more or less intense factionalism within the republican party in the state.

Sentiment on Wane.

But if the condition is worse in some states than in others, it is a fact that political sentiment in the country has reached a point where the republicans can no longer rely on the warm enthusiasm of last November, but must depend on a colder light by performance or non-performance. It is on non-performance on the part of the new administration that the democrats are to rely for the immediate future, are going to rely for the principal weight of their assault.

Other day had an amusing session.

The democrats in the senate the other day had an amusing session. They took one or two hours off for a purely political demonstration. The occasion for it was the appearance of an article about republican achievements in a local newspaper, to which some of the democratic senators, the son of Mississippi, referred, with such accuracy as may be, as "the mouthpiece of the party that now controls the government." The newspaper recounted the things which the new administration had done during the first 14 weeks of its existence, and the democrats devoted their afternoon of war-dancing to countering with a list of what the republican party ought to have done but hadn't.

Democrats Offer Battle.

It wasn't really a debate or a fight, because none of the republican senators replied or took part in it. It was wholly an example of parliamentary "shadow boxing," so to speak. The democrats were eager to drag the republicans into it. Repeatedly one democratic senator or another would say, "if what I am saying is not true, I invite an interruption from distinguished senators on the other side of the aisle," but the distinguished senators on the other side of the aisle did not interrupt. Whether it was a case of that exalted dignity which ignores assaults, or whether it was a more portentous hesitancy to get into the fight no one can tell. It was more probably the latter, for the republicans realize very well that the indictment of dilatoriness has merit.

Not only that, but the republicans realize their dilatoriness is not merely temperamental, but not merely a lack of leadership, but in due to a real fear on their part of the consequences of what they have to face, and the lack of a thought-out programme for doing what they have promised to do. Taxation worries the republicans probably more than anything else. The republicans did not promise in their platform to reduce taxation, but during the campaign everybody took it for granted that the republicans would reduce taxation.

The republicans hesitate to break the disagreeable news that taxes aren't likely to be reduced. But those ### Mutes Are Married.

SALEM, Or., June 25.—(Special.)—Roy Riltner, governor of Oregon during the temporary absence of Governor Olcott from the state, today denied application for the extradition of Sam Segal, wanted in Boston on a charge of non-support preferred by his wife. Segal is now in jail in Portland.

Testimony Introduced at the extradition hearing held in the governor's chambers showed that Segal has a wife and three children residing in Boston; also that Mrs. Segal is a semi-invalid and had been compelled to seek financial assistance from the city.

After leaving Boston, following his return from overseas, where he participated in a number of major engagements, Segal came to Oregon, and later married a Portland woman. This marriage was explained by Segal's attorney, who said his client said that he was served with divorce papers by his first wife prior to the time he enlisted.

Several weeks ago Segal was arrested in Portland on a charge of bigamy. Segal is now being held in Portland pending a hearing before the grand jury on this charge. Because of this, Governor Riltner was advised by the attorney-general that he was not authorized to issue an extradition return for Segal from the jurisdiction of Oregon.

Boyd, 35 years old, was arrested at the White Rock farm on the Lewis river last night by Sheriff Thompson and deputies on a charge of operating a still, which, with a barrel of syrup, was confiscated. The officers went to make the arrest without a search warrant.

TEN-MILE FLUME IS PROPOSED.

COTTAGE GROVE, Or., June 25.—(Special.)—There is a possibility that there will be erected here one of the longest flumes in use in the mill business in the west. ### DUNN ISSUE OF ELECTION

Cascade Locks Voters Carry Row Over Principal to Polls.

HOOD RIVER, Or., June 25.—(Special.)—A factional row, precipitated as a result of the retention of J. H. Dunn last spring as principal of the Cascade Locks school, resulted in a record attendance at the school election of the highway town, according to reports of citizens there.

Professor Dunn resigned the principalship last winter when arrested on a statutory charge involving a girl student. He was re-elected following a verdict of acquittal by a jury in the circuit court here.

The voting was reported to be close, indicating that the Dunn and anti-Dunn factions remain nearly equal in numbers. W. M. Lane and William Sundsten, Dunn candidates, according to the report, were defeated. Successful candidates were Frank Hall, director, and S. E. Hill, clerk.

THE FIGURES UPON WHICH THIS ANALYSIS IS MADE ARE ADMITTEDLY INCOMPLETE, BUT THEY FORM THE SOUNDTEST OF PREMISE UPON WHICH TO BASE THE ABOVE CONCLUSION. SOME TIME WITHIN THE COMING WEEK THERE WILL BEGIN THE COLLECTION THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY OF DATA TO SHOW JUST WHERE THE SAVINGS BANK DEPOSITOR STANDS COMPARED WITH WHERE HE STOOD A YEAR AGO. AS FAR AS THE INFORMATION IS COLLECTED IT WILL BE FORWARDED TO THE CONTROLLER OF THE CURRENCY HERE AND WHEN IT IS COMPLETED—PERHAPS THREE MONTHS HENCE—IT WILL BE IN SHAPE FOR PUBLICATION.

SAVING DEPOSITS MOUNT.

In the meantime, the federal reserve board has a good line on the situation through the figures submitted to it each week by large national banks and trust companies in more than 100 of the chief cities of the country. In nearly all of these instances savings departments pay interest on time deposits. Steadily the amount of money on deposit—comparable with savings bank deposits—has been mounting during the past year. At the close of business this week, the volume of savings in the 517 banks reporting to the board stands at $238,000,000 more than it stood a year ago, which was then a record.

THE BOARD'S REPORT SHOWS THAT THE 517 BANKS HAD ON DEPOSIT THIS WEEK THE SUM OF $2,942,901,000 IN SAVINGS DEPOSITS. SIX MONTHS AGO, JUST BEFORE LAST CHRISTMAS, THE SAME BANKS HAD ON DEPOSIT $2,790,197,900 IN SAVINGS. A YEAR AGO THEIR SAVINGS DEPOSITS WERE $2,842,497,000. DURING THE SAME PERIOD THE BUSINESS MAN'S BANK BALANCE HAS DROPPED. A YEAR AGO THESE BANKS HAD ON DEPOSIT $11,500,000,000 BELONGING TO INDIVIDUALS, FIRMS AND CORPORATIONS IN BUSINESS. MORE THAN $1,000,000,000 HAS BEEN CLIPPED FROM THE BALANCE DURING THE YEAR.

DEPOSITORS ESTIMATED AT 15,000,000.

There have been setbacks to the savings here and there, notably in the south and west, where land values dropped and those who purchased at the great of the wave lost a part of their savings, but the country as a whole has gone forward. Labor disorders, economic readjustment, enforced idleness on the part of many workers—these haven't made a dent in the balance. The family sock has no hole in it.

THERE ARE, PERHAPS 15,000,000 SAVINGS BANK DEPOSITORS IN THE UNITED STATES AND THE NUMBER IS GROWING EVERY MONTH, ACCORDING TO ALL REPORTS RECEIVED HERE, NOWHISTANDING THE TEMPTATION AND OFTEN THE NECESSITY TO SPEND. THE BULK OF THE SAVINGS IS STORED IN MUTUAL SAVINGS BANKS, WHICH LAST YEAR NUMBERED MORE THAN 5,500,000 DEPOSITORS. STOCK SAVINGS BANKS
