week on the bridge across Grays river for the new South Grays river road. This bridge will be 120 feet in span with an additional 150 feet for approach on the south side. It will cost in the neighborhood of $5000.

The north side is witnessing the building of the Ocean beach highway, while the south side is being opened up by the county. The south side has been settled for years, but there has never been a road to serve its people, all transportation being carried by pack animals. It is planned that this road will be built the entire length of Grays river and then extended on to the Columbia river terminating at Altoona, Wash., thus giving direct connection between the Ocean beach highway at Grays river and the Columbia river.

The contractors on the Ocean beach highway have completed the grading of about 2000 feet of the road and the big shovel was skirting the foot of the hill below the cemetery. Work has been somewhat hindered by slides the last few days.
